Library comes to second grade classrooms

To date 106 EC second-graders have been issued library cards as a result of the program

EL CERRITO — Senior Branch Librarian Janet Hildebrand was at it again last week.

As part of the county's "Contra Costa Reads! 2000" program Hildebrand was at Harding Elementary School making hats out of newspapers, reading to second graders and generally extolling the joy of reading.

She visited three second grade classes at the school to get the students interested in reading and in visiting the library.

In Wendy Miller's second grade classroom last Thursday Hildebrand dazzled the youngsters with tales such as "A Fish Out of Water" by Helen Palmer, "The School Mouse" by Dick King-Smith and the story that seemed most familiar to the second graders: "Your Mother Was a Neanderthal" from Jon Scieszka's "The Time Warp Trio" series.

Hildebrand also talked to the kids about the public library and how to borrow the books, videos, audio tapes and other neat stuff available there.

JOANNA JHANDA

ALLYSON JAGODA, Henry Treadway, Keisa Reynolds and Nikki Clark listened to El Cerrito librarian Janet Hildebrand during the program.

She also touted the library's June 16 through Aug. 26 Summer Reading Program "Reading Picnic" where young readers can read books to earn prizes such as a Round Table Pizza coupon.

When Hildebrand reported that one of the prizes is a pass to the Lawrence Hall of Science in Berkeley, an audible buzz of excitement went through the 18 second graders in Miller's classroom.

"It was very cool," said 8-year-old Samuel Winter of Hildebrand's visit and storytelling. He said he liked the story Hildebrand told (with the aid of a newspaper hat) about a little girl who kept making different hats out of newspaper. "I liked all of the stories," said 7-year-old Andrew Lin.

AMS volleyballer named 'ambassador' to Australia

Sarah Mallard one of 11 girls selected nationwide for pre-Olympics competition

By Amy Chen
CORRESPONDENT

Standing no more than 5 feet tall, Sarah Mallard is every inch the teenager. Clad in overalls and a white shirt, she saunters into the cafe with a spring to her step.

Her brown eyes sparkle with anticipation as she gushes about scoring backstage passes to a 'N Sync concert. Proclaiming Justin Timberlake of 'N Sync fame as her favorite, Mallard could easily be mistaken for the average teenager. But as the world will soon find out, there is nothing average about this 13-year-old. She has just been selected for a two-week summer ambassador sports program to New Zealand and Australia, site of the 2000 Summer Olympics.

Despite being one of only 11 girls in the nation to be selected for this athletic and civic honor, this seventh grader is as grounded in reality as they come.

"It was a surprise to me actually," Mallard says. "I came home from school one day and there was a letter waiting for me in the mail."

This letter will be Mallard's ticket to what is guaranteed to be the eye-opening, mind-blowing experience of a lifetime. As part of the People to People Sports Ambassadors Program for volleyball, Mallard will compete against New Zealanders in Auckland before heading to Sydney, Australia for the Surfin' and Slammin' Invitational. The special pre-Olympic volleyball tournament will have her flying halfway across the world to play against international teams.

Initiated in 1956 by former President Dwight Eisenhower, People to People has sent thousands of students overseas. Delegates are first selected on ability but then are interviewed by phone to ensure they will represent the United States well.

HOW TO HELP

Sponsorship contributions in the form of check or money order should be made payable to:

People to People Sports Group; with Sarah Mallard - 555056 in the memo field.

Marker dedication enhances Veterans Memorial Garden

By J.R. Deaton
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — The El Cerrito Veterans Memorial Garden will become even more memorable after improvements to the memorial are dedicated this Flag Day, June 14.

Phase I of the memorial garden was dedicated in a patriotic ceremony Veterans Day, Nov.11, 1999, and now Phase II is nearing completion.

Phase II of the memorial, dedicated to all El Cerritans who have served in the country's armed forces, includes enhanced landscaping, paving and plants that attract butterflies.

"Installation of a paving stone walkway leading from San Pablo Avenue up to a Blue Star Memorial marker donated by the garden club will complement the garden," reports Esther Sergeant of El Cerrito who spearheaded the memorial effort last year by the Veterans Memorial Garden Committee.

The memorial garden is located at City Hall, 10890 San Pablo Ave., and includes garden plants, shrubs and trees, a lighted flagpole, benches, and a large granite memorial stone with plaque.

The Blue Star Memorial Highway markers, often seen at freeway roadside rest stops throughout the United States, are placed to honor men and women who have served in the nations's armed forces. The program was started after World War II to honor veterans.

Creek restoration gets attention on two fronts

Protection sought for wild Codornices steelhead

By Tony Hicks
STAFF WRITER

The area around San Pablo Avenue isn't the likeliest place in Northern California for wild fish to spawn. But swimming upstream may be a joy ride compared with predicting the future of Codornices Creek.

Berkeley Mayor Shirley Dean wants to meet this week with Albany and UC Berkeley officials, hoping the university will clarify its plans for a waterway the city hopes to restore.

"We need to lay it all out on the table, so we have a definite idea of how we want to approach this," Dean said Friday.

Codornices lies hidden on the Berkeley-Albany border, marked from the street only by a chain link fence near the University Village family housing units. It meanders from the hills, through North Berkeley to the Bay just north of Golden Gate Fields.

The university owns most of the creek's north bank along its lower stretch. City officials are worried over Cal's plans for the creek, which runs close by university facilities that could complicate restoration.

"The creek is fairly constrained with existing development," said Keith Lichten, an engineer with the San Francisco Bay

Plan for park linking Bay, BART step closer

El Cerrito Plaza offers a quarter-mile strip along Cerrito Creek to the city

By Kate Darby Rauch
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — The dream of creating a Cerrito Creek parkway from the BART tracks to the San Francisco Bay is a swath of land closer.

The owners of the El Cerrito Plaza shopping center have offered to donate a quarter-mile strip of land bordering Cerrito Creek to the city for restoration.

The land, now mostly parking lot, extends north from the creek, which runs at the south edge of the shopping center.

The offer is good for five years. The City Council voted last week to accept it, but won't formally claim the property until it has the money to start restoring the creek. The city has applied for a restoration grant from the California Department of Water Resources.

"Anytime we have the chance to save a creek, we'll jump at it," said Councilman Larry Damon. "We're going to go ahead and do what we can."

The murky water travels through a steep, narrow ditch lined with brush. In many places, parking lot asphalt comes right to the top of the banks.

The city hopes to create a parklike buffer zone, removing some of the parking lot. The park would include wiggle room for the creek to meander as well as space for a trail, benches and public gathering spots.

Long-range goals include building a creekside park and hiking trail from the Ohlone Greenway, under the BART tracks east of the shopping center, to the Bay.

To city officials and creek advocates, the shopping center portion — which ranges from 40 to 70 feet wide — is considered a vital link.

"It's really exciting, I'm really happy," said Susan Schwartz, president of Friends of Five Creeks, a nonprofit organization devoted to cleaning up East Bay creeks.

"I don't have worries about getting the money. We'll get the money, " she added.

The land donation did not come without controversy. The city initially said it would need about 40 feet of parking lot space to provide adequate protection for the creek.

Several plaza business owners balked, saying that would gobble up too much parking and would hurt business.

Plaza owners and city officials went back to the drawing board and, with the help of consulting hydrologists, came up with a plan that business owners approved.

The parking lot will be reconfigured as part of the planned shopping center

El Cerrito High grad night set; parent volunteers still needed

El Cerrito High School's 13th annual "Grad Night" is being held in honor of its Graduating Seniors following the graduation ceremony on Friday, June 16.

Grad Night is a "safe and sober" celebration for the seniors, an all-night party put on by the parents, with the support of the school district, local businesses, alumni, and community members.

The "safe and sober" party is a way of gathering seniors on the night of their graduation, and giving them a place to celebrate with their friends that is free from drugs and alcohol, and the tragedies that sometimes accompany their use.

Contributions from local businesses and individuals have helped raise the funds for this years event, including major sponsorships from Tileshop in Berkeley, Chevron, El Cerrito Lighting, and Pastime Hardware in El Cerrito, among many others.

After nine months of planning, fundraising, and construction, the ECHS gym will be transformed into another world as a place for the graduates to celebrate all night long with their fellow graduates.

This year's theme is "Emerald Club 2000", a night club where music, dancing, games, good food, and entertainment will keep the graduates busy from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Entertainment for this year's event will include DJing by Dana Sam, an appearance by local radio DJ personality Rick Lee and his crew from KMEL, hypnotist Alan Sands who has performed at every ECHS Grad Night for the past 10 years, and other activities and events.

This year's Grad Night Committee is fortunate to have ECHS Alumni Mark Canepa assisting in the design and construction of the club theme.

Canepa graduated from El Cerrito High in 1977, and is now a professional artist and set designer. He has worked extensively in Southern California as part of design and construction for night clubs, exclusive

Library-sponsored events for young adults

The Albany Library is planning a number of cultural events for young adults this summer. Bust-A-Move and the Albany Library Young Adult Services will present two playreading series: one for Albany High students, one for graduating eighth graders from the Albany Middle School. "Summer Playreaders" gives teenagers a chance to get together and read parts in great plays. No acting experience is necessary. Parts are distributed, and readings are done "cold" without preparation. Refreshments are served. The first session opens with multiple readings of Arthur Miller's "View from the Bridge." Dates in June and July are to be determined. Preregistration is required. Call 526-3720,Ext 17 or e-mail: Prockwell@aclibrary.org

Dance lessons for middle school graduates

Bust-A-Move, the library sponsored Dance and Culture club, also announces a summer series of five dance lessons, "From Lindy Hop to Salsa". The beginner series features popular, experienced dance instructor Charlene Van Ness. Space is limited to 15 guys, 15 girls. The series is free. Dance lessons take place at the Community Center on Mondays, June 19 -July 24, 6 to 7 p.m. (no class July 3). The series is limited to Albany Middle School graduates and friends, and pre-registration by phone, in person, or e-Mail, is required. Call 526-3720,Ext 17. E-Mail: Prockwell@aclibrary.org.

Puppet show kicks off summer reading program

The Kensington Library starts off its summer "Reading Picnic" program on June 15 when Randall Metz performs his puppet show "Why Mosquitoes Buzz in People's Ears" at 3:30 p.m. Metz will use various puppets to enact the classic story, including hand puppets, marionettes and stick puppets. A demonstration will be held for all participants at the end show. While there, kids can learn about the Reading Picnic summer reading program. Participants who read 10 books by Aug. 26 will recieve a variety of prizes and have a chance to win the picnic ant farm on display at the library. The ant farm will be given away in a drawing at the end of the summer. The Kensington Library is located at 61 Arlington Ave. For details call 524-3043.

Fun, learning at Tilden

Kids can look at and learn about forms of life so small they go unnoticed at two free programs led by naturalist Alan Kaplan at the Tilden Park Nature Area. On Saturday from 2-4 p.m. its' 'Bugs "R" Us: Insects and Others." Lots of insects and their relatives are thriving at the park and participants will catch, observe and release them, learning the meaning of "metamorphosis" and who is related to whom. On Sunday it's Ponds are Places for Plankton and People, a "Youth & Family" program from 2-4 p.m. that will offer good views of small creatures. Participants will catch them with nets, and the Discovery Scope will make them 14 times bigger than life. Info: 525-2233.

Numerous vandalism incidents report

By K. Osborn
CORRESPONDENT

ALBANY — On the morning of May 28 a resident on the 700 block of Madison Street reported that during the night vandals had climbed on the hoods of three cars parked on Madison Street and Washington Avenue and smashed the front windows using an unknown device. They also caused dents in the hoods. The cars were a white '89 Pontiac, a white '60 Ford pickup and a maroon Honda Civic.

■ At about 2 a.m. on May 29 officers noticed that vandals had etched words into the glass window of a business on the 1100 block of Solano Avenue.

■ At about 2:30 a.m. on May 29 officers cited a silver '99 Honda Accord on the 1000 block of Peralta Avenue because the registration had expired. A further check found it had 13 outstanding parking citations and the registered owner of the car, a Peralta Avenue resident, had an expired California driver's license. The vehicle was towed. On the evening of May 31 the owner of the car called the Albany police to report that her car had been stolen and was told that it had been towed.

■ On the morning of May 29 a resident on the 600 block of San Gabriel Avenue reported that during the night vandals had scratched the exterior of her new car. She did not witness the incident but gave information to officers on who may have done the damage. She had recently had a confrontation with a 22-year-old Albany man in her neighborhood who police say has a history of criminal activity. Police are investigating.

■ On the morning of May 29 an employee at St. Mary's High School on Albina Street reported that vandals had written graffiti on the buildings, vehicles and trash receptacles using black and white paint and pens.

■ On the evening of May 29 a woman reported that she was house sitting on the 1000 block of Ventura Avenue and discovered that over the weekend thieves had broken into the home through a rear door and trashed the interior.

■ On the evening of May 29 a Benicia man reported observing two men acting suspiciously while he was playing tennis on the 500 block of Pierce Street. He described the subjects as black males. A short time later he called Albany police again to report that his keys were missing. Officers took the report.

■ On the morning of May 30 officers located a bronze '84 Toyota van on the 1600 block of Marin Avenue that had been reported as stolen from Berkeley. They did not have anyone in custody. The owner was notified and picked up the van.

■ At about 9:45 a.m. on May 30 Albany officers assisted Richmond officers in the traffic stop of a vehicle on Interstate 80 near Central Avenue. Officers provided traffic control while all five occupants of the car were taken into custody and the car was impounded.

■ At about 3 a.m. on May 31 a Berkeley woman reported that about 15 minutes prior she was attacked by a subject while in a drive-through restaurant on the 600 block of San Pablo Avenue. She described the attacker as a black male, 17 to 22 years old, with short hair, gold teeth with initials in the gold, wearing dark clothing and a Northface jacket. Police are investigating.

■ At about 10 p.m. on May 31 a resident on the 1000 block of Santa Fe Avenue reported that three subjects he described as black male adults, one with cornrows, just robbed his house. The subjects reportedly ran into his house, grabbed shoes and other items and ran out again. They were last seen heading east in a white '70 Chevrolet Chevelle. They were gone from the area when officers arrived.

■ On the morning of June 1 a business owner on the 1400 block of Solano Avenue reported that during the night vandals had etched graffiti in her window.

Suspect arrested in theft, vandalism incide

STAFF REPORT

EL CERRITO — A man identified by police as San Francisco resident Ton H. Bahn was arrested in Berkeley last weekend after he went on what officers said was a spree of theft and vandalism of several El Cerrito area businesses while dressed to the hilt.

The suspect didn't make much of an effort to disguise himself the afternoon of May 26 as he smashed storefronts along San Pablo Avenue. People who witnessed various crimes described him as an Asian man with thick curly hair, square black sunglasses and a thin mustache, dressed in a white dress shirt, black vest and black dress slacks.

According to police reports, Bahn, 38, allegedly started the spree by throwing a large rock through the driver's window of a car passing him on Lincoln Avenue and Kearney Street in El Cerrito.

He went on to steal a guitar valued at $2,700 from Guitar Center at 10300 San Pablo Ave., fleeing in a stolen convertible Chevrolet, said police. Around the same time there were two hit-and-run collisions reported at the nearby intersection of Richmond Street and Moeser Lane, involving a car that matched the description.

The same well-dressed man was spotted minutes later shattering the glass window door of the post office at 11135 San Pablo Ave. by kicking it as he was leaving.

The vandalism continued when he allegedly smashed in the windows of several nearby business fronts by kicking them, including CFI Insurance and Bartels Realtors on San Pablo.

At about 3 a.m., May 27, a Berkeley police officer arrested Bahn and recovered the stolen vehicle after responding to a report of a collision with a building.

Bahn was transported to the Alameda County Jail/Santa Rita Detention Facility.

Any witnesses to any of these events are requested to contact Detective Robert De La Campa at 510-215-4422.

■ On the afternoon of May 10, a car was reported stolen from the El Cerrito Plaza parking lot. The car was later recovered and returned to its owner.

Two other cars were reported stolen from the Plaza, one May 10 and the other May 12. There were no suspects at the time. One of the cars has since been recovered.

■ On May 10 two men entered a business on 10636 San Pablo Ave. and tried to trick an employee into giving them $15,000. When the ruse didn't work, they fled the store. There were no suspects at the time of the report.

■ The night of May 9, the home of a 46-year-old man was broken into on the 6900 block of Portola Drive. The unknown suspect allegedly smashed a window to gain entry, ransacked the place and fled w… property.

Focus on Life Extension Supplies

Do you have tired blood? Feel blah? Joints that ache? You may need the help of Eve Cohen at Life Extension Supplies on Solano and all the wondrous things she has at her fingertips in the way of vitamins, herb, many natural therapies and magic elixers.

Life Extension offers high quality vitamins and alternative natural therapies for adults, kids and even your dogs. My personal favorite is Glucasimine, which is a joint lubricant that actually builds cartilage for people like me who suffer from arthritis. Many people are discovering that herbal therapies offer a safe approach to health that may extend life or make life more comfortable as we age.

Some people feel that vitamins are not needed because they eat healthy. That would be fine if all things were equal. For instance, the soil that we grow our food in is often void of the natural nutrients that were previously there and often the soil has become chemically treated, often not to our overall health advantage. Also, the amounts and types of food recommended keep changing.

Eve is an expert on everything she sells. She and her husband Bruce had an organic farm in New England for 17 years so she really knows about the best things to put into our bodies and why. She never would advocate herbal remedies over traditional medicine but often the two can work together and the result is the ultimate in good health.

The best of both worlds, as it were. She also has a plethora of medical experts to draw from if she needs further definition of a certain product and an extensive reference library for disease protocol.

Usually when you visit the store, her two whippets are there to greet you, but alas, they are off visiting their friends in Arizona for a while. Whippets or no, drop by for direction in the world of vitamins, Eve will help you as she has me, and can answer all of your questions. Life Extensions is at 1229 Solano Ave. Be healthy.

Annual Library Book Sale

The giant Friends of the Albany Library benefit book sale is set for June 17 and 18 at the Albany Library.

This is a great event where all of us can buy more of our favorite murder mysteries or biographies and at the same time add to the Friends of the Library kitty, which does so much for our library. Look for me there too.

Fourth of July in Memorial Park

Everyone should put this on his or her calendar. Once again, the city and various organizations are putting together a fun Fourth for the whole family. It will start with a pancake breakfast and continue with staggering fun events that will last until everyone is sated.

Del Norte neighbors air their BART parking concerns

By J.R. Deaton
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — The Del Norte neighborhood got its chance to sound off about BART parking last night at a meeting where some interesting ideas were discussed and clear preferences emerged.

The session was the second held by city officials to get input on parking issues arising from the June 27 decision by owners of El Cerrito Plaza to close a northeastern section of their parking lot and evicting BART commuters.

Traffic counts show that about 1,000 BART patrons use the Plaza parking lot each weekday. City planners, Del Norte neighbors and the City Council fear that these displaced BART commuters may flood onto neighborhood streets to find a place to park after June 27.

About a dozen or so residents who attended last week's meeting chose to BART and complained about being able to find parking near their homes if they can't use their driveways.

The majority seemed okay with limited on-street parking in areas immediately adjacent to BART parking; they favored four-hour non-resident parking restrictions on both sides of the street and would prefer some two-hour limits on residential streets adjacent to BART.

Some residents said parking limits are needed in the area, but that they would like to see even more enforcement by police. Several complained that people from outside the area, even other El Cerrito residents without city-wide parking stickers, were driving to their neighborhood streets and parking all day to take BART to work.

The only favored parking stickers were "none" and "sub-zone" differentiation so that only Del Norte area residents would be exempt from the four-hour restrictions in the area.

Most attendees also agreed that some type of guest or visitor placard or sticker needs to be available to residents from the area so that friends, family and household workers can park in the area without being ticketed.

The frustration and anxiety many people feel about neighborhood parking was evident in a question resident Cathy Weaver asked the civic leaders at the meeting.

"It's a dumb question, but I'm going to ask it anyway," Weaver said. "So you get community input and everyone says, no, we don't want parking meters or, no, we need to figure out some other solution — to what extent are you going to listen to what the community says?"

Resident Paul West and others at the meeting asked about the city's parking fines. The city's current fine for a four-hour parking zone violation is $23. Police Sgt. Peter Statton said the city generally has one parking enforcement officer on duty most days.

"Some days we have two, and they're responsible for the entire city. They're also responsible for a very large commercial area, on top of the parking around the BART neighborhoods," Statton said at the meeting.

"We're looking at this because we're finding that so many cars are inundating our El Cerrito streets and that parking is not free," said Councilwoman Gina Brusatori about the parking issue in El Cerrito. Brusatori and colleagues Janet Abelson and Larry Damon were at the meeting.

"There's wear and tear on our nerves as citizens and residents; there's wear and tear on our pavement; there's additional traffic,"Brusatori said.

"We're thinking that by having this discussion, of course, we're going to have more diligent control of the zones. We'll have to look at additional resources."

Annual AHS Art Show a hit at new location

By Clare Curley
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — Backed by a $700 grant, some 20 students helped teachers turn a former clothing store at El Cerrito Plaza into a gallery for the biggest Albany High Art Show yet.

They had all of 24 hours to buy supplies, remove shelving, install lighting and paint the walls to make the vacated space as presentable as Nexus, the Berkeley gallery where the show usually takes place.

The location attracted a larger-than-usual turn-out, probably due to the fact that for the first time, it was in walking distance for many Albany residents and had ample parking for everyone else.

"We had over 800 people total. It was a huge crowd," said Ed Hill, who teaches basic art at the school.

Between 6 and 9 p.m., residents had easy access to the paintings, ceramics, photos, and countless other samplings of what students produce in their art classes throughout the year.

Plaza management lent out the space, allowing extra cash for tables of free food, as well.

From the extensive wall space hung 74 paintings and 50 photographs, surrounding some 50 selections of pillows, dolls, weavings and other items from the basic arts classes.

Free of charge, students, teachers, Albany Art Council members and passers-by kicked back and observed the displays.

Where mannequins used to stand, the Pacific Jazz Band (May 31) and the Nexus Jazz Band (June 1) performed live for the crowds.

Scott Kagawa, a senior involved in various school music groups, arranged all of the music for the show.

Jazz teacher Tom Lillienthal was also on display when he stood in the storefront for a jam session with students.

Hill said he prefers the traditional gallery setting for the annual show.

"You go into Nexus, it looks like a gallery, it smells like a gallery," said Hill.

Across from Long's Drugs and the old Emporium, the converted storefront was a change, to say the least.

"I was reluctant — I dragged my feet," Hill admitted. "But it turned out beautifully."

Another reason for the large turnout: This is the first year that the art show is a requirement for all art students. So those in choral, instrumental, theater and art classes alike had to at least show up at the event.

The head of visual and performing arts, Sarah Samonsky, teaches about every medium possible, including ink, color pencils, water color, book illustration and print making. The third member of the visual arts team, Ellen Goldman, teaches ceramics and mixed media.

Though the show may return to Nexus next year, Samonsky says it may have outgrown its old space.

"Every year it's growing," she said.

The 12-year-old tradition originated as a way to show off the large paintings of the advanced students. But it has expanded considerably over the years to include much more than oils on canvas.

After Samonsky joined the team five years ago, she began adding more mediums to the curriculum and art show to show the range of what students were learning.

"We started adding ceramics and photos," she said. Then came fabric arts, sewing, weaving and 3-D art.

The range of classes has also expanded.

A parcel tax that passed last year brought in extra money for science and art programs at city schools. At the high school it has enabled two theater study classes, two art classes, funding for instrumental classes and an art specialist at the elementary school.

Part of the purpose of the show is, in fact, a general lesson in the world of art outside school walls.

"We like to offer out students a glimpse at what's really involved in the life of an artist," said Samonsky. Part of this comes in the form of criticism by those viewing the artwork.

Some students gained a business lesson, as well.

Albany senior Waylon Bacon sold most, if not all, of the pieces he showed this year.

With a flair for the macabre, he paints using dark shades and eerie images. The subject of one such panting at the show resembled a sinister and disheveled version of the Cheshire Cat, sprawled with a cigarette dangling from its paw.

Samonsky says students didn't ask her advice on pricing their artwork.

The only thing missing was performance art.

Maybe next year, says Samonsky. Her dream is to integrate arts forms with one another, like displaying some of the visual arts at a theater.

The Albany Arts Council selected several items, which are on display at the Community Center Fower Gallery through Aug. 31.

Both Hill and Samonsky would like to combine the best of both worlds, hoping a local art gallery will donate its space next year.

"Not a shoe store," prayed Hill.

Richard Jay Kohn, 51, Tibetologist

By Jeff Greenwald
SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

Tibetologist, professor and filmmaker Richard Jay Kohn, Ph.D., succumbed to cancer at his home in Kensington on Sunday, May 28. He was 51.

Dr. Kohn taught Tibetan and Buddhist Studies at Indiana University and UC Santa Cruz, and was a Research Associate at the Center for South Asian Studies at UC Berkeley. He lectured widely, and served as Associate Curator for the historic "Wisdom and Compassion: The Sacred Art of Tibet" exhibition at the Asian Art Museum of San Francisco. A prolific scholar, he published in scores of academic and popular journals and anthologies. His first book, Lord of the Dance: The Mani Rimdu Festival in Tibet and Nepal will be released next year by SUNY Press. Recently he was a founding director of the International Buddhist Film Festival, and executive editor of its forthcoming book, Buddhism on Film.

Kohn's long relationship with Tibet and Buddhism began when he was a teenager. He was introduced to Tibetan music and art while working off-Broadway in Manhattan. His fascination with this otherworldly realm led him to the University of Wisconsin-at the time, the only institution in America to offer a comprehensive program in Tibetan language, culture and philosophy. Kohn earned an M.A. and Ph.D. in South Asian Studies, complementing his knowledge with adept skills in anthropology, art history and photography.

In 1979, Kohn won a Fulbright Fellowship to study Tibetan ritual and art in Nepal. He spent five years in the Himalayan kingdom, translating texts so obscure that their existence was virtually unknown before his arrival. "Rituals are what Tibetan monks spend most of their time doing," he observed. "If we want to understand these people on their own terms, we should look at their rituals."

His deep understanding of the great Sherpa festival of Mani Rimdu came to fruition in 1985, with the release of his documentary film, "Lord of the Dance/Destroyer of Illusion." The film embodied Kohn's meticulous attention to detail.

"I want my (audiences) to know," he said, "that when you enter a Sherpa monastery at four in the morning to begin a 14-hour day of ritual, your tea from the night before is frozen solid in your cup."

"Lord of the Dance" was a critical success, hailed as "a jewel" and described as "mesmeric" and "ravishing." Variety saluted Kohn "for having penetrated a secret world." A shortened version-Destroyer of Illusion: The Secret World of a Tibetan Lama-was narrated by Richard Gere, and broadcast on the Discovery Channel and PBS. Kohn often showed his film at benefits, donating the proceeds to help restore the ancient Tibetan Buddhist monasteries he had filmed.

To his many devoted friends, Richard Kohn will be remembered for his generous heart, unflagging humor, and intense appreciation of good food, good films and great music. A gentleman scholar, he had the taste of a count-and the soul of a poet.

Richard Kohn died peacefully on the evening of May 28, with his beloved wife Marianne by his side. Their 8-year-old son, Jack, helped perform the customary Tibetan Buddhist farewell rituals.

Dr. Kohn was cremated, in accordance with Buddhist tradition, at Sunset View Chapel in El Cerrito.

Participants in the run included Detective Jeffrey Albrandt, Sgt. Daniel Hurley, Sgt. Gary Priebe, Officer Scott Erwin, records specialist Alicia Ramos-Banales and Sgt. Wayne Mann.

The route was along San Pablo Avenue from the entrance of the El Cerrito Plaza to the intersection of San Pablo Avenue and Barrett Avenue in Richmond.

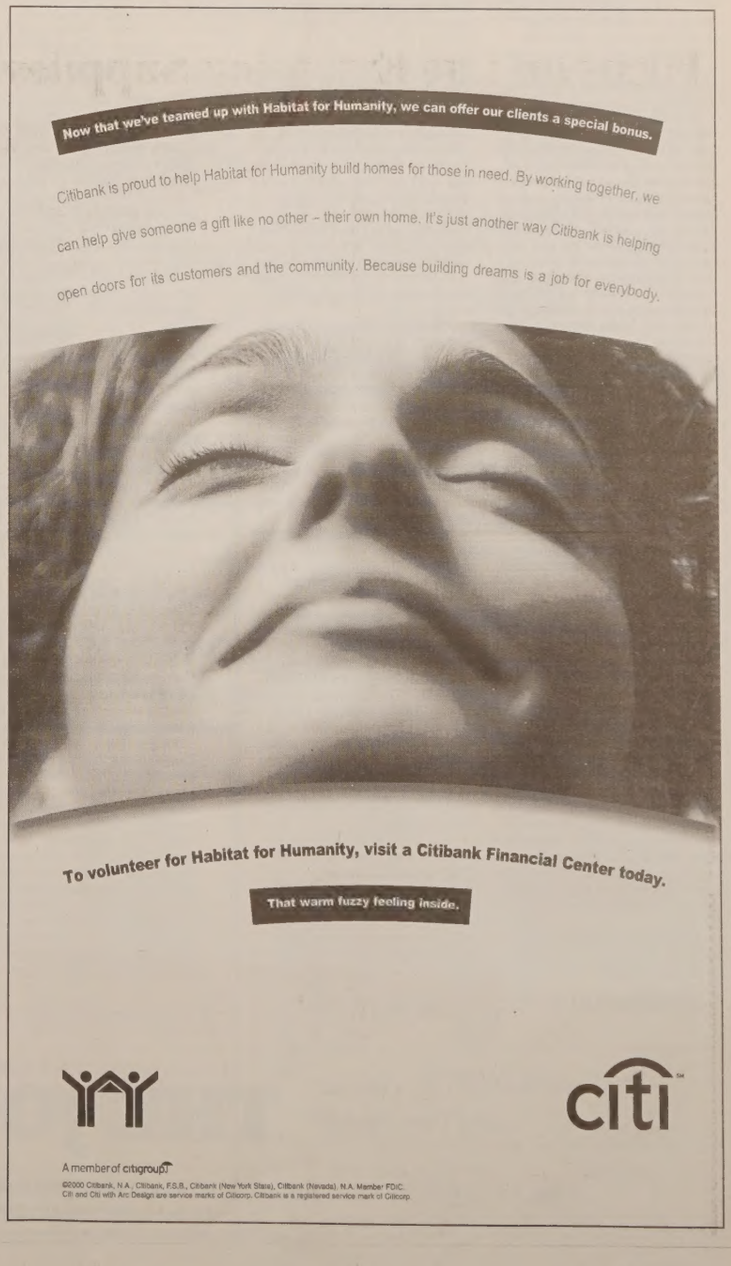

A lit torch was carried along the route and passed on to members of the Richmond Police Department and the Pinole Police Department. The torch was then carried to the Pinole Police Department.

The event continued Wednesday with the participation of other law enforcement agencies in Central Contra Costa County.

Opinion

Around Town

By Chris Treadway

Adventures in commuting

You can't blame people for being skeptical about the renovation of the El Cerrito Plaza.

The El Cerrito City Council "fast-tracked" approval of Phase I of the Plaza project last year so that demolition work could begin and EBMUD could work on relocating storm drains under the property. With that approval finally in hand the owners turned around and promptly — did nothing. Almost a year after the approval shoppers and merchants are still waiting for something to happen at the Plaza. Less eagerly awaiting the start of work are the hundreds of BART commuters (around 1,000 each weekday by one estimate) who have enjoyed the free use of the Plaza parking lot as overflow space.

Even the entry of a new co-owner that bought the stake of Milton Bilak's Plaza Company in the center, Regency Realty Company (which owns or co-owns some 350 shopping centers nationwide), did little to generate optimism that work would start.

Just last week a local merchant (in Albany, actually) asked this space if something was "really going to happen" at the center.

Apparently it is and Regency has even set a date: June 27. That's the date "El Cerrito Plaza renovation is scheduled to begin," according to the yellow fliers Regency is putting on the windshields of cars in the Plaza lot. (And notice that even Regency hedges by saying "scheduled.")

The sale by Bilak to Regency isn't official yet, but according to city officials it's all but a done deal, with only the t's to cross and the i's to dot.

In its flier Regency suggests alternatives for commuters such as the lots at the Richmond and North Berkeley stations or using the Richmond Parkway Transit Center and Hilltop Park and Ride lots — earnest but probably not practical advice for most commuters using Plaza BART. The Plaza station, after all, serves not only EC, but Albany, Kensington, the Richmond Annex and part of Berkeley.

With the city already looking at expanding parking restrictions around the Plaza station, and with a solution to which alternative to use for the Measure C funds intended for a Plaza station parking garage nowhere in the immediate future, our suggestion is to dust off those walking shoes, dig that bicycle out of the garage or invest in a pair of rollerblades. The City Council, to its credit, has proposed an alternative to a parking garage at the Plaza BART station: A shuttle service that would bring commuters to the station and lessen the need for added parking. Whether such a plan would work — as noted above the station serves more than just El Cerrito — remains to be seen. But such a service could be in place far quicker than a new parking structure that the immediate neighborhood already opposes. Perhaps seeking preliminary funding for a one-year trial with the remainder of the funds contingent on the results would gain more support, particularly given the impending parking shortfall.

CALCULATION AND SPECULATION: As we've all heard before, the Plaza renovation means a lot to city coffers in the form of increased sales taxes. But there is another aspect to remember. When Milton Bilak bought control of half the Plaza he took advantage of a state law that allowed him to transfer the tax benefits of a Southern California property his firm controlled that had been condemned and taken under redevelopment. The result, one that did little to win Bilak friends at El Cerrito City Hall, is that the Plaza property has been valued at well below its market rate worth for property tax purposes.

Unless Regency has a similar loophole, the property should rise to its previous value and more as it's renovated.

AN OVERDUE SALUTE: With each generation people grow more detached from what happened Dec. 7, 1941 to 1945, or even what happened during the Korean or Vietnam wars. Many were called to serve their country and many died in that service.

El Cerrito's Esther Sergeant remembers and she wants future generations to remember as well.

The dedication of Sergeant and numerous others who donated their time and funds led to the creation of a memorial site outside El Cerrito City Hall for veterans. But it hasn't stopped there.

El Cerrito next week will dedicate a Blue Star Memorial marker to those who served in the military during World War II and subsequent conflicts. Sergeant, typically upbeat, hopes to restore a measure of patriotism in people who may have become too detached from the cataclysmic events of the past 60 years.

"It's been such a mountaintop," says Sergeant, who thanks her fellow members in the El Cerrito Garden Club for their efforts. "It's taken a lot of time and energy. But for the club to accomplish it and the city to accomplish it, it was worth it." From a son whose father returned to the Philippines with MacArthur, here's a salute to Sergeant and everyone else involved with this laudable project.

AROUND TOWN: A feature article in an affiliated publication last year noted the popularity of Harding Park in El Cerrito and Memorial Park in Albany as gathering places for dog owners and their pets. Harding is a site where dog owners can be seen in early evening putting their canine through its paces, letting it run and just enjoy being a dog.

From personal observation, it's safe to say that dogs are growing in popularity as pets. And dogs need a place to be dogs. But from talking to people at the school and park users, the presence is not universally appreciated. Dogs enter Harding Park past a sign noting that canines are not allowed. And while most dog owners are responsible, some aren't, which messes it up for everybody. Dogs were cited by Harding Elementary School's principal as one of the reasons a cyclone fence was put up between the school and Harding Park. Even then dogs can be regularly seen on the school playground romping with their owners.

And if you've come home from work a little late, are tired, or just need to let Sparky do what he has to do, a drive to the end of increasingly congested Central isn't always practical.

The upshot? Maybe it's time for El Cerrito and Albany to consider a joint effort to create a dog park.

Ironically, this area is home to the Cadillac of dog parks at Pt. Isabel at the end of Central Avenue in Richmond ...

The new "art bench" in front of Fat Apple's in EC, painted by Emily Duffy and dedicated last week is a welcome addition to the local landscape. But the comments by Mayor Mark Friedman, in our opinion, were off-base. "Every time somebody goes by here they're going to say, El Cerrito is not a plain vanilla generic place anymore," was the quote from Friedman at last week's bench dedication. With all due respect, Mr. Mayor, we've never heard anyone say that ...

COMMUNITY ART PROJECT UPDATE: "The El Cerrito community art column is (pretty much) finished," reports Lori Dair of Sustainable El Cerrito, the group that is co-sponsoring the project along with Celebrating Culture & Community. The artists on the project are Denyse Biagi, Lisa Greenstein and Arlin Robins.

"It is now on tour with art columns from other Contra Costa County cities, as part of an Arts Millennia project to celebrate the year 2000. The three-sided columns, all of which are 8 feet high, are currently on display at the Sun Valley Mall in Concord. You'll have an opportunity to see it

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Baxter Creek truly has many friends

Because of the selfless support and generosity of so many people, the second annual Baxter Creek Plant Sale was a roaring success.

As this year's event coordinator, I want to send my deepest appreciation to all who helped in any way. Special mention must go to last year's coordinator, Rosemary Loubal and her husband Peter. I also appreciate all the heavy lifting and carrying provided by Kathie Perka, Phil Shaw, Miriam Jocelyn, Lily Polk and Larry Damon.

The musical performance of Eric Forno, Suzette Lalime Davidson and Susan Aberg of the folk group "The Attenders" added a special touch.

Sales assistance and on-site support by our stalwarts, Maryann Aberg, Lisa Viani, and Bea O'Keefe, our lily expert, made the hard work easy. Of course the sale wouldn't have had anything to sell had it not been for the generous donations of so many individuals and especially the 53 flats of flowers from Annie's Annuals and all the plants, shrubs and trees from the Mira Vista PTA.

Finally, thanks to our resident naturalist, Jim McKissock, who spends so much time caring for the City's environment and sharing his expertise so generously with others.

Creek benefit an overwhelming success

Due to the enthusiasm and hard work of Coordinator Emmy Damon, Friends of Baxter Creek's second annual Plant Sale was an incredible success, racking up nearly $1,000 in sales from plant lovers all over the Bay Area.

Hearty thanks go out to Emmy and Larry Damon, Rosemary and Peter Loubal, Bea O'Keefe, Kathie Perka, Phil Shaw, Miriam Joscelyn, and the other tireless volunteers who spent hours planning this event, lugging an endless variety of plants to and from the site, sorting and pricing sales items, chatting with customers, passing out cookies and pouring coffee and lemonade for passersby, and describing FOBC's plans to restore the creek.

Thanks also go out to the countless people who donated plants and other items to the sale, El Cerrito naturalist Jim McKissock (who spent several hours discussing native plants and papermaking with visitors), and Berkeley-based folk band "The Attenders" (who braved the harsh sun to play two lively sets before an appreciative crowd).

Thank you, one and all, for making this year's Plant Sale so fun and rewarding! All money raised at the sale will be donated to FOBC's creek restoration efforts, with unsold items to be donated to Habitat for Humanity.

Supermarket not what it used to be

I agree absolutely with the letter by J. Ashley Larmuth about Albertson's grocery store. Since they bought out Lucky's, the store has gone down the tubes. The shelves are half empty and prices have gone up. And the store is half-empty all the time, even on Fridays and Saturdays.

I now shop at Safeway and assume others have done the same.

Elian was exploited

This letter is in response to the angry one from Gary Buffon (May 19) concerning, among other things, the forceful removal of Elian Gonzalez from his Miami relatives and his reunion with his dad.

I strongly suspect that Mr. Buffon and other like-minded individuals have never been in the position of Elian's father. Have they ever had a 6-year-old child of their own held by relatives in a foreign country, relatives who refused to let that child go to his only living parent? I doubt it.

It was painfully obvious that this youngster was being exploited, manipulated and paraded before TV cameras like a prize trophy of some kind, all by "loving" Miami relatives claiming to have his best interests at heart.

Surely the Miami Cubans can think of another way to spit in Castro's eye. Elian needs his father, and his father and baby brother need him. These needs should take absolute precedence over any political/ideological conflict among adults.

Education takes a loss

Recent editorials in Bay Area newspapers [illegible] been critical of the Alameda County Board of [illegible] ucation's wishy-washy behavior toward Berk[illegible] ley's Lawrence Hall of Science. I'd like to [illegible] those comments further.

The most recent pronouncement on [illegible] by the board serves to emphasize the lack of [illegible] spect the board members seem to have for [illegible] cation. Who can we expect to know better [illegible] the EPA about environmental effects on pu[illegible] health? For five members of the board, the [illegible] fessional from the EPA, who has devoted his [illegible] reer to public protection, didn't carry enou[illegible] weight.

By not rescinding their original action, [illegible] board also chose to diminish the standing of [illegible] State Department of Health Services, the Agen[illegible] for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, [illegible] National Institutes of Health, and the Departm[illegible] of Energy, among others, and anyone else [illegible] brings knowledge, education and experience [illegible] this issue.

I have flown in a lot of airplanes over the [illegible] few years. I've also folded some paper planes [illegible] my young sons, and I've constructed some [illegible] board planes, too. I'm embittered to learn [illegible] none of this experience qualifies me to [illegible] jumbo jet. I'm disillusioned that my advice [illegible] airline safety to the FAA would solicit only a [illegible] lite "Thank you."

I guess I have to accept that my opinion [illegible] merely that, and my aviation experience and [illegible] ing pale in comparison to that of the multitu[illegible] of professionals who are in the air business.

Sometimes it takes more than opinions [illegible] a loud voice and political access to contribute [illegible] a meaningful way to issues.

Why can't the Alameda County Board of [illegible] for the importance of the Lawrence Hall of [illegible] ence than for an education board to give [illegible] groups equal weight. Maybe board meet[illegible] should all go to LHS once a week until they [illegible] derstand.

To the board president I would say: "If [illegible] the board did their credibility permanently [illegible] age by raising the tritium question and [illegible] only one view. The board did a gross disser[illegible] to education by raising the question again [illegible] giving the advice of both sides equal weight.

Send your good wishes to Mr. Shadi for his 100th birthday

MARTIN SNAPP

Snapp Shots

What a year for birthdays! First, Joseph Charles, the beloved Berkeley Waving Man, turned 90 in March.

Now get ready for another milestone: One week from today, June 16, Sundar Shadi — the revered El Cerrito man who has brightened our lives for so many years with the elaborate floral sound-and-light displays he erected in his front yard — will turn 100!

"Actually, nobody knows what his real birthday is," says his daughter Vera. "They just didn't keep records like that in small villages in India 100 years ago. But when he came to America, they made him supply a birthdate. So he chose June 16 because it's one month before my mother's birthday."

It's impossible to overstate what Mr. Shadi has meant to El Cerritans — and not just El Cerritans, either.

From the late 1940s until failing eyesight forced him to quit in 1996, tourists by the charter busload (by conservative estimate, more than 70,000 visitors every year) would come from as far away as San Jose and Sacramento, just to see Mr. Shadi's latest Christmas masterpiece.

When he retired, former mayor Jean Siri spoke for many when she said, "I feel a great vacancy. First it was my tradition, then my kids' tradition, and now it's my grandchildren's tradition."

This tradition includes his annual Halloween display (featuring ghosts and goblins), his Thanksgiving exhibit (complete with a flock of plaster turkeys), his Easter display (a veritable Persian carpet of intricate floral designs) and, especially, his elaborate Christmas displays.

For many people, Christmas just wouldn't be Christmas without Mr. Shadi. He's a real life Santa Claus who gave his neighbors something more precious than candy or toys: namely, the true spirit of the season.

The incredible work he went through every year was his gift of love to us.

And now here's our chance to give a little bit of that love back. Since Mr. Shadi's retirement in '96, I've been urging you readers to send him Christmas cards every holiday season; and you've responded magnificently. Vera tells me he's always stunned to find his mailbox crammed with Christmas cards. "It makes him feel so good to know that people care," she says.

So this year, in honor of this extra special birthday, let's send him birthday cards, too! (After all, how often does a guy turn 100?) Mail your card to Sundar Shadi, 944 Arlington Blvd., El Cerrito, CA 94530.

If your heart has ever been gladdened by Mr. Shadi's creations — and whose hasn't? — please send him a birthday card. You'll be making a wonderful old man very happy.

On the other end of the age spectrum, let's hear it for Zachary Bunnell, a public-spirited citizen who lives in the Westbrae neighborhood of North Berkeley. Zachary is only 6 years old, but he's already spearheading his first fundraising drive.

It started when he noticed that someone had swiped the charming little water fountain in the garden next to Toot Sweets. Unlike the rest of us, who merely tsk-tsk when things like this happen, Zachary decided to take action. He marched into Toots and handed the manager this letter:

"My name is Zachary Bunnell. I am 6 years old. I liked the fountain in the garden that used to be there. Today I found out it was stolen! I thought of a way to get a new fountain. First, you'll put a sign that says 'donate your money right here.' Once you have enough donated money you can get a new fountain. That is all I wanted to say. Thank you if you like that idea. From, Zachary."

Who can resist an appeal like that? Certainly not the owners of Toots, who have set up a huge collection jar on the front counter and have promised to match any funds that are donated.

And when the new fountain is installed, there will be a big ceremony to celebrate. And I'll bet you can guess who will get the honor of pushing the button that turns it on.

Jerry Lutz, the head of the Aircraft Carrier USS Hornet Museum, has asked me to correct a mistake I made in last week's column: It turns out Capt. Jim Dodge, the last C.O. of the Alameda Naval Air Station, wasn't the one who sued the Navy in the effort to save the Hornet; it was Lutz himself.

Not that he's trying to hog the credit. He just doesn't want to get Dodge in trouble with the Navy brass.

By the way, last Sunday's ceremony aboard the Hornet to honor the heroes of Midway was moving and inspirational in the extreme. If you missed it, your next best bet is to see the Hornet on Father's Day, when they plan to "bring the ship to life" and simulate what it felt like to be on the ship when it was in action.

The pilots who flew the missions off her deck will be on hand to describe them for you, minute by minute.

You can also visit the bridge and listen to the man who was the helmsman during the Apollo 11 recovery tell you exactly how he fished Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins out of the water.

This is living history of the very best kind. Be sure and bring the kids, dad.

Meanwhile, I hope to see you this Sunday at the Berkeley-East Bay Humane Society's annual "Bay To Barkers" Dog Walk at Caesar Chavez Park. I've said it before, but I'll say it again: The Berkeley-East Bay Humane Society does more good with fewer resources than any other organization I think of. (If they only had more money, the mind boggles at what they could do!) And they deserve our support.

In honor of the occasion, Berkeley Mayor Shirley Dean has declared Sunday as "Bay To Barkers Day" in the city. The mayor will be able to be there herself, since she's at a mayors conference in Seattle. But she's sending her chief Black Lab, Ben, as her stand-in.

Finally, felicitations to Dominican Father Antoninus Alberto, one of the founders of the Graduate Theological Union on the hill in Berkeley, who just celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

In his youth, Father Antoninus studied theology at the Dominican Pontifical University in Rome, where one of his fellow students was a young priest from Poland named Karol Wojtyla.

Hmmm. I wonder whatever happened to him?

Daily lobbying trips to Sacramento underway

On June 1 community organizations and volunteers began making daily trips to Sacramento to maintain a high profile for the district's request to get out from under the burden of onerous debt payments currently being made to the state of California.

The actions are a follow-up to the May 11 community rally in Sacramento, when over 400 students, teachers, parents, labor, faith and civic leaders gathered on the steps of the capitol to seek equity in educational funding for the students of this district.

At this time, daily trips are scheduled to continue through June 15.

If you or your organization would like to take responsibility for one of them call Alex Mitgang at 925-376-4266.

Budget study sessions

On Monday the school board held its second public study session looking at the development of our budget for the next fiscal year which begins July 1. At press time, a first reading of the budget is scheduled for June 7 with a second and final reading scheduled for June 21.

The study sessions have been galvanized by the current discussions in Sacramento around funding for public education. Best estimates at this time suggest that our school district could be eligible for up to an additional $10 million in funding by the time the legislature and governor finish their work on the budget.

Unfortunately, because of the timetables involved, we will need to adopt our own budget based on existing revenue sources, prior to the time the state adopts its new budget. Once the new state budget is a known quantity, we will come back and amend our own budget.

In the meantime, the superintendent, her cabinet, and the board have been rolling up their sleeves to plan use of new funding. All of the districts unions and employee associations have also been invited to submit suggestions.

Current proposals seek to increase funding for instructional programs, support for instructional programs, and salaries and benefits. A major initiative is being proposed to provide school sites with a significant increase in discretionary funds. Get ready site councils!

Bond work moves ahead

At press time, the school board is scheduled to approve new roofing projects funded with Measure E bond funds for Juan Crespi, El Cerrito High, Helm Middle, Dover Elementary, Grant, Highland, Pinole Middle, Pinole Valley High, and Richmond High schools. Paving projects are scheduled for El Cerrito, Cameron, Madera, Portola, Ford, Gompers, Kennedy, Grant, Downer, Helms, Shannon, and Mira Vista.

Committee looks at after school programs

A joint City of Richmond/WCCUSD committee continued its work earlier this week with a meeting that focused primarily on the development of after school programs.

Recent federal and state grants received by the school district will result in significant new after school activity being offered at selected school sites during the 2000/2001 year.

The committee will be mapping where the gaps are once those programs come on line with the ultimate goal of after school programs being available at every school site.

Coaches like Acebo, Tara Drisicoll and AMS coach Terry Georgeson have also shaped Mallard's game.

"When I first got started, she (Georgeson) helped me a lot. Basically I took it from there," Mallard says.

Getting started and getting good does, however, have its price. At 13, Mallard has already learned the definition of multi-tasking. Following a regimented schedule of homework and practice, she travels with her Golden Bear teammates to weekend tournaments. Last weekend she went to a three-day tournament in Reno. This weekend she goes to UC Davis for more tournament play.

"I don't get much sleep," she admits. "But it's been exciting. I've done a lot of traveling. It's been fun."

Her mother, though bursting with pride, is understandably wary of letting her oldest daughter fly the coop so soon. She acknowledges that going to Australia is "an opportunity of a lifetime, especially for a 13-year-old. Playing international teams, you can't beat that. If this is what she wants, then I'm not worried. But it is halfway across the world."

The honor also comes with a price tag that hovers around the $3,700 mark. A few local businesses have already responded to Mallard's requests for sponsorship contributions. The UC Village Residents' Association and the State Farm Insurance office on Solano Avenue are among those that have helped underwrite the program's travel expenses. But with the final payment due on June 30, $1,500 still needs to be raised before she can hop on that plane to New Zealand.

In between spiking volleyballs and fainting over 'N Sync, Mallard is also busy designing a personal sponsors T-shirt to be worn during the tour. Name recognition on the T-shirt will be given to businesses and civic groups that contribute at least $100 and individuals who contribute at least $25.

"I want to keep going," Mallard says dreamily. "I want to play in high school and college. Soon I want to go for the Olympic team."

With dreams and family by her side, Mallard is proof enough that sometimes the best things in life do come in small packages.

Regency has given a green light to the land donation, as well as to the shopping center renovation plans. Construction is expected to begin at the end of June.

Judoists win gold medals

East Bay judoists Stephanie Hata and Sayaka Matsumoto continued their winning ways on the national judo scene yesterday by both taking gold medals in their respective divisions at the 2000 U.S. Senior National Judo Championships held at the George Brown Convention Center in Houston, Tex.

Hata, competing in the women's 44kg and under division, blasted through her opponents going 4-0, winning three of her matches by ippon, or full point, the equivalent of a knockout in boxing or pin in wrestling. In the first round, she devastated her opponent Ashley Rice of Missouri; in the second round ably handled Katherine Ensler from Oklahoma; in the third round defeated Leilani Akiyama from Washington, and in the final match, disposed of Jennifer McMillan from Texas.

Matsumoto, competing in the women's 48 kg and under division, also made quick work of her opponents, defeating Jessica Sternick of Pennsylvania in the first round, Christina Carrera of the U.S. Olympic Training Center Judo Squad in the semi-finals, and Kinanda Williams Murray of New York in the final match.

Both Hata and Matsumoto were coming off gold medal performances at the 2000 U.S. High School National Judo Championships held last month in Flagstaff, Ariz.

Betty Coates of the El Cerrito Garden Club designed the Phase II marker mounting, which was constructed by the El Cerrito Steel Co.

Fittingly, Coates has her own background of experience. She completed wartime training at Stanford University in 1942 and went to work as a draftsman at Convair in San Diego, then drew plans for seagoing tugs at United Engineering in Alameda until the war ended.

Sergeant says she has been overwhelmed "with the sincere interest of so many caring people" who have provided time, service and money to the memorial garden project.

"Local businesses were especially instrumental in making this vision a reality," Sergeant said.

Sergeant also specially thanked Community Development Manager Gerald Raycraft, Maintenance and Engineering Services Manager Bruce King and Maintenance Services Supervisor Bill Driscoll for their help with the project.

Shell Oil Co.'s PETALS program (Protect the Environment Through Action Learning and Service), the National Council State Garden Clubs Inc. and the California Garden Clubs Inc. also made contributions that helped fund the new landscaping.

212 students have been visited as part of the Reads 2000 program. One hundred and six new library cards have been issued to El Cerrito second graders.

The goal of Reads 2000 is to provide every second grade student in the library service area with a library card by the end of the year 2000. It is sponsored by the Contra Costa County Library in partnership with Pacific Bell, local schools, elected officials, local businesses and Friends of the Library groups.

County wide, the program will bring library staff into contact with nearly 11,100 students in 569 classes at 122 schools.

As of this month, more than 89 percent of second graders county wide have been issued library cards. More than 2,750 West County students have been visited since January 1999.

An average of 340 kids participate in the El Cerrito Library's Reading Picnic each summer, Hildebrand said. About 140 finish all 10 books in the program.

"We figure that a lot of children are reading at least some of the books, and then we have those who finish the whole program," she said.

Regional Water Quality Board, one of the agencies that would oversee any creek bed work. "A successful restoration design would require a wider creek."

Cal is in the midst of a major construction project on the western side of nearby University Village, replacing 392 units of decades-old housing with larger, modern buildings. A second phase involving 412 units is on hold while the university figures out renovation costs.

Protecting the creek is important, university officials say, but their main concern is protection from a 100-year storm, which could flood UC buildings nearby.

Meanwhile, local interest in restoring the creek increased in March, when a UC biologist discovered enough steelhead in the creek to make spawning a possibility.

"One of the important pluses of our position is that they've found steelhead in here," said Carole Schemmerling, co-founder of the Berkeley-based Urban Creek Council, a preservation group. "We've been seeing them for years, but now it's official."

Environmental groups and officials from both cities want to protect what's left of the creek's natural flow. They also hope to develop a half-mile trail on its north bank, from San Pablo to the railroad tracks, where both cities are developing ball fields.

Frustrated by a lack of information, the Berkeley City Council passed a resolution last month asking Cal to meet with a delegation from the cities.

UC planner Jacki Bernier said there are no immediate plans for the university's portion of the creek. But that could change in the next few months, she said, when the university hires a consultant to look at its best options for the area.

"It's going to be a long process," said Bernier. "We should have the study done in a year, maybe eight months."

Bernier said, "There's been a lot of misunderstanding" regarding Cal's plans, which have reportedly included a culvert for the creek and strengthening its banks to reduce chances of flooding.

"Yes, we are looking at calming the 100-year-flow in the creek," said Bernier. "But that doesn't mean a straight concrete channel, as we've been accused of. There are areas you can do restoration; there are areas you can't, because there are facilities (in the way)."

The obstacles to widening banks and other natural preservation methods include a small maintenance building at the end of Fifth Street, near the creek. Behind it sits a child care facility. A residential parking lot is a block west and close to the creek.

Schemmerling said her group would help the university get federal and state grant money to move the building, leaving more room for restoration. Bernier said that's not going to happen anytime soon.

"It's a heavily used maintenance facility," said Bernier. "Eventually, (a move) could happen. Right now, we don't have a place to expand the yard."

Schemmerling called Codornices possibly the last healthy creek in Berkeley. She said steelhead travel all the way to Monterey Street, often through long underground culverts, and spawn along the way.

"(Cal) has to, and we have to, protect this stream," she said.

Parks and Recreation has offerings for all ages and interests

One by one they came up, picture panels at the ready, their pride showing in the work they have done and are doing, and their joy in their work, also apparent.

The agencies that come under the purview of the Albany Park and Recreation Department were making their reports to the Park and Rec Commission. And I found it fascinating. So much planning, working, caring. And such creativity. I decided to talk with Melinda Chinn, the city's recreation and community services manager about it.

Chinn, it developed, has only been here for a few months, after working for some 20 years with the San Leandro Recreation Department, so she felt she could take little credit for the things I had heard reported. But she is delighted with the department and with the various agencies and was happy to talk about them.

But you must meet Melinda Chinn. She was born in Billings, Mont., but her family moved to the Bay Area when she was 2. She attended San Jose State and graduated with a degree in recreation administration. As noted, she worked for the City of San Leandro for 20 years, but when the Albany position opened up she realized she was ready for a change, applied and was hired. Melinda has been married for 18 years to Brian Chinn, who works for Pacific Bell, where he is training to be a direct service line (DSL) Installer. She loves to travel, inline skating (when they can find the time) and computer games, and collects beanie babies.

She was very enthusiastic about the department's teen program. It is so hard to find programs for this age group. But here, sprinkled through the offerings for the summer are recreational classes for teens, as well as for the younger children. And the Albany Teen Center offers these young people a place to meet, play, learn and enjoy. During the school year the Teen Center operates the Achieve afterschool program, which offers both drop-in and structured activities. Sports, arts and crafts, and field trips are a few of the planned activities. In addition, there is tutoring, computer lab and homework assistance.

> For the younger children there are many summer classes, several recreational classes, plus many arts and crafts.

She pointed out the enrichment courses, with sessions lasting four to six weeks.

They include a basketball clinic, drama and improvisational classes, art classes and an international cooking course, are some of the offerings.

In addition, the teens help with other programs, such as special events. They assist with the Fourth of July celebrations and the Halloween parties each year, which are held for the elementary school children. And they participate in other programs, such as the library's teen to senior tutoring program, the dance program so popular now.

For the summer the teens will be playing roller hockey, on inline skates, among other things, including a Karoake machine, and pottery classes; and Karate, and much more.

There will be field trips to Great America, Waterworld, Raging Waters. Oh, and there is Q-zar, a lazer tag game.

I asked how the new programs were created. Various ways, she replied. Sometimes someone will come to them with a program that person would like to teach, and if it seems a good thing for the children they are happy to have them. Sometimes it is started somewhere else, and they like it and adopt it. The Sky Hawk program was popular in the city where she used to work. She contacted them, asked if they would like to start it here, and they were delighted.

For the younger children there are many summer classes, several recreational classes, plus many arts and crafts. She pointed out such things as Clay and Crafts Experience, and Pre-Teen Pottery; Kids Carpentry, cooking classes, painting and even Piano & Keyboard (for kids 7 to 12 years)

I studied the 2000 brochure and realized how creative people are in devising classes for kids and programs to keep them happy and learning. It was a joy to see tap dance for children 6 to 14 years, and pre-ballet for the little ones, plus ballet classes for those 7 years and up.

And, of course, the summer camps: Summer Arts Camp, Drama Camp, Softball, Art & Discovery, Science , Soccer and what looks to be a wonderful Summer Music Program.

And there are senior programs, also. It is, of course, ongoing (as are the programs for children and teens) but they talked of new classes and events, of great trips, of Let's Go Out For Dinner at the Senior Center and classes such as Comparative Religions, Current Events, World Literature, Dramatic Reading and the Art Workshop group. There is more, and it is all very impressive.Jean Allen in the director of the Senior Center, and I know it to be a very active and creative center.

The thing that intrigued me was the variety of offerings for all the different ages and types. As I watched their presentations, I thought that Albany is very fortunate to have such creative people doing the things they do. I do know that every city has such a department, and probably offer very similar programs. So, I guess my feeling was that there are so many people doing so much for so many, and isn't that wonderful.

How can anyone be bored or feel 'out of it' with so much going on? And we haven't outlined everything. Just snippets of what's available. There are arts, there is tennis for everyone, and things like the Police Activities League, and — well, you received the brochure, or you can call the Recreation & Community Services Department at 524-9283.

Melinda Chinn says if people would like to teach classes, she would love to hear from them. Also if people have ideas for classes she would be very interested in talking with them. She invites them to call her.

Safe driving message gives young performers chance at CD fame

By Clare Curley

A group of local teenagers made the final round out of more than 300 entrants in a singing contest to promote safe driving. Their songs will be featured on an upcoming CD and may appear on radio stations, as well.

The teens were among the some 30 13- to 18-year-olds selected by a panel of judges in the latest Chief Operator Teen Driver music contest.

The group includes Albany High junior Luis Reader, Berkeley High junior Amani Casey-Simms, El Cerrito High senior Raymond William and freshman Tomar Martin, and a Royal Sunset High student, Martin Harris.

The selections were "based on talent, mass appeal, messages and uniqueness," said program coordinator Tanya Chalupa, who will be scheduling recording sessions throughout the summer.

The 8-year-old program is funded annually by a California Office of Traffic Safety grant amounting to roughly $100,000 and extending to nine counties and 155 high schools.

The pop songs that finalists performed will be recorded [illegible] summer for a CD, to be [illegible] the fall.

Arlington area undergrounding work set

By Clare Curley
STAFF WRITER

Preparations began along Arlington Avenue last week for Berkeley's first project yet to move utility lines underground.

Within two weeks, construction will begin at Arlington and Marin Avenue at Marin circle, and will extend about a mile up to Boynton at the border of Berkeley and Kensington.

Officials anticipate the whole project will probably take about three years," said Gary Holtmann, Berkeley's facilities maintenance superintendent.

The project encompasses Pacific Bell, PG&E and AT&T (cable) wires, as well as sewer and water lines. The city-appointed contractor, Lewis & Tibbitts, Inc., will initiate the process by digging trenches a couple of feet deep and installing conduit boxes.

A similar project was just completed along Los Angeles Avenue, a block from Oxford Way.

The reasons city officials give for the project are safety and aesthetics.

Conditions such as high winds and storms have posed problems in the past, blowing over telephone poles and, in some of the worst cases, causing house fires.

Commuters along Arlington in either direction can expect a detour for an unlimited amount of time, which will route traffic from one side of the road to the other, depending on construction.

"Anything that's opened up will be closed at night and backfilled," said Gary Manly, the estimator on the project.

Residents along the affected portion of Arlington voted in favor of the project more than 10 years ago. Each household will pay to have their individual pull box connected to the wires along the street —amounting to roughly $600 per residence.

There is no guarantee that residents will pay their potion.

Councilwoman Betty Olds said similar projects in Berkeley took longer than expected, partly because some residents didn't pay the fee, which leaves a trench in the household's front yard until the rest of the neighbors pitch in funds to complete it.

"It can be pretty rough," said Olds.

She says the project is necessary for both looks and safety, but adds that repairing wires may be a problem.

"Earthquakes are one of the big talking points," she said.

Though no earthquake testing has been done on underground wires, none of the existing examples were damaged in the 1989 Loma Prieta earthquake, according to Olds. What worries her and others is talk that a quake along the Hayward fault, running underneath Arlington, may have a different outcome.

Holtmann conceded, "If the ground moves and breaks up the pipes, we would have to dig (them) up and it would take longer to repair."

In general, he said, these wires need repair less frequently than those overhead and don't require breaking any ground.

The contractors only plans to be on the scene from June to January, 2001, after which the various utility companies will take over.

"People will have to be patient with us and talk to the foreman if there's a problem," said Manly. "He's the guy without any tools in his hands."

Not all residents consider the overhead wires to be such an eyesore. According to Olds, a residential portion of Creston near Grizzly Peak was not quite so receptive.

TRAFFIC AROUND the circle at Arlington and Marin will soon be impacted by construction work to put utility lines underground

She says that two residents in that area are now trying to convince neighbors to consider an underground project on their street. But their request, known as Measure B, would require that the residents foot the bill. This would amount to at least $800 a year over a period of 30 years

Though finalists in the teen contest were not among those who sang before an MTV Network panel, they may have their moment of fame yet

In the past, some songs by teen contestants have aired on the radio "One of my objectives is to work with statewide disc jockeys," said Chalupa

As to what's next?

"I haven't quite figured out how to use (the program) with migrant workers," she said.

...While only about 4 percent ...ers are teens, they are responsi... 9 percent of accidents.

...CD, just arrived at the Albany ...Department for distribution to ...ending communities.

...e objective is to reach a His... panic audience and Hispanic media with the message," said Chalupa.

The Albany department's famous singing detective, Bill "Elvis" Palmini, sings "Buckle Up" as a bilingual salsa tune, with 38 officers from throughout the Bay Area singing backup. Of the 38, about a quarter are Hispanic.

Police chiefs approved a few hours off work for each officer to record his part.

Distribution began recently with one officer handing out copies of the DC in a local elementary school.

Participants hope to create more of a bond between police and teenagers, both by having police sing a salsa tune on the CD and by creating teen role models to spread the word in their own communities.

It turns out, the program is receiving some unexpected media attention.

According to Chalupa, CBS's "Evening Magazine" contacted her recently about doing a feature on the Chief Operator program, to air June 23.

Whether the programs are effective is debatable. But, between 1992 and 1995, the counties involved in the program saw a 32 percent reduction in combined injuries and deaths alcohol-related in 15-18-year-olds.

While all of the singers will get some of their own copies, CDs will not be for sale. Music generated by the programs is used solely for promotional purposes.

Chalupa pointed out, "We listed 14 ways our product has been used (elsewhere), in workshops and conferences."

Most recently, a group of cops and kids in San Diego plans to play "Abrochate" during a drag race between high school students and police officers.

MONSTER SNAKE KILLED

A large snake, feeding for months on valuable birds and the eggs in their nests at the aviary of Henry Rowe at his home in the hills of Berkeley, was killed Saturday by the owner and the mystery of many deaths among his feathered pets was cleared. For the past three months Mr. Rowe has found the eggs in the birds' nests broken and the contents devoured. At frequent intervals the dead and bloodless body of a valuable foreign canary or finch would be found and the perplexity was only made the deeper.

Saturday when Mr. Rowe went to feed the birds a great crawling rattler slipped across the ground, interrupted in the midst of a feast on a new-born bird. Immediately Rowe was called and he shot the snake. It developed that this lone intruder had lived and fattened on the eggs and the young in the nests. A cavity was found in a rock where the snake had been living. Rowe estimates his loss to the snake at some $3000. He has imported dozens of beautiful French and Australian birds and is an extravagant enthusiast. He now has some 200 feathered occupants of his aviary. Among this number have the horrible tragedies of bird life taken place almost daily. The death-dealing enemy measured about four feet in length.

Talk of earthquakes and bicycles touted as a cheap, reliable non-polluting transportation alternative. It could be modern-day Berkeley, but it was also Berkeley at the turn of the century, as we see in this week's installment from the book "Berkeley 1900," by Richard Schwartz.

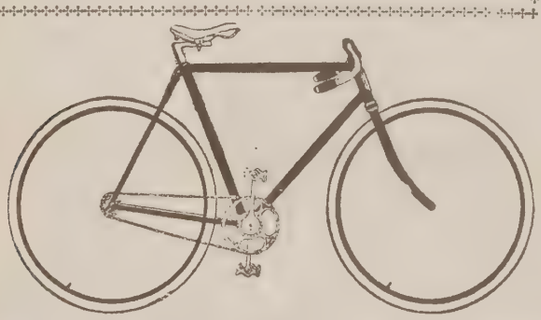

Mr. Schwartz is also the author of "The Circle of Stones," an investigation of a 65-foot circles of roughly piled stones in Stampede Valley north of Truckee. Both books are available in local book stores.

Heavy Midnight Shock.

Last Night's Earthquake Lasted Twelve Minutes.

One of the severest earthquakes that has ever been recorded occurred shortly before midnight. According to the observations of Dr. Townley of the University of California, the shock commenced at 11:54 o'clock.

The data given by the instrument of Professor Leuschuer at his home was almost the same being 11:53:58. It has been partially computed that the vibration continued twelve minutes, one shock being plainly felt.

The motion was from east to west the exact figures attending. The disturbance are being calculated at the Students' Observatory of the University of California.

A strong earthquake wave at about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon shook the buildings of Berkeley and startled the few citizens left in town. The shock did very little damage, but was accompanied by an unusually great displacement of the earth's crust.

The actual disturbance lasted nearly forty seconds. The shock began at a few minutes before 2 o'clock with a slight tremor which increased in intensity until the principal tremblor made itself felt at 2:01 o'clock, then dying away in a series of lessening vibrations.

The shock was recorded by the instruments of the Students' Observatory of the University of California, the records being among the best that were secured.

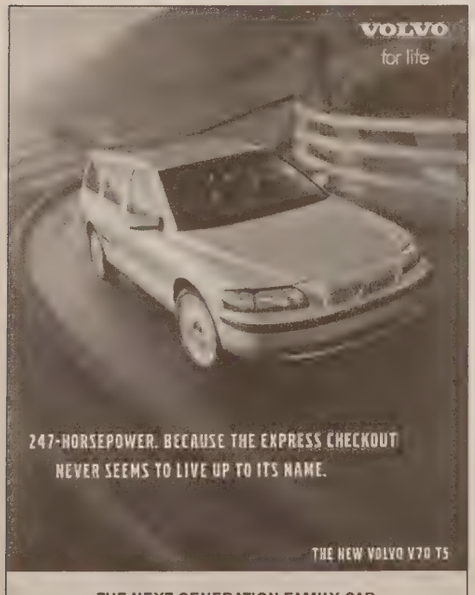

The tracings, as read by Professor A. O. Leuschner, who is in charge, show that the shock proceeded from west to east, the preliminary oscillations beginning at 1:57:32½, Pacific standard time, as registered by the Ewing seismograph. Oscillations lasting for about thirty-eight minutes can be distinctly traced upon the smoked-glass plate of the instrument. Several pronounced shocks took place during that time.

The principal one was also felt, and was accompanied by a displacement of the earth's [illegible] amounting to one-twenty-fourth an inch. As the majority of the ordinarily felt are caused by displacement ranging from 1-10 1-1000 of an inch, the tremblor this afternoon was an important The fact that the wave traveled a direct line with an entire absence of twisting motion, accounts for mildness with which the shock felt.

Getting around the house in Oakland's Oakmore neighborhood

The young couple had never considered a round house until they saw one. Although it was already sold, they instantly saw the advantages: higher quality; more distinctive; no wasted space; affordable.

That same year, 1966, they bought a beautiful Bay view lot for under $9,000. The following year, they had their own round house built in Oakland's Oakmore neighborhood. It was, and still is, one of the unique homes in a city of distinctive residences.

Ready to pursue retirement closer to family, they reluctantly are leaving their special home of 33 years. Located on a lot of almost one-third of an acre, landscaped with roses and flowering plants, the patios and gardens feel like a private, mini-park and offer wonderful outdoor living. With a twinkle in their eyes, the sellers say they will miss the fun of seeing the surprise and pleasure of first-time visitors to this special place.

The two- bedroom, two-bath property is located at 46 Melvin Court, and is priced at $369,000.

For further information, contact Don Dunning at Wells & Bennett Realtors, 510-531-7575, ext. 239.

A window washer's wonderous ways

Number 327 in a series of true experiences in real estate

True Experiences

By Tarpoff and Talbert

Of all the columns we've written over the years, this one which first appeared in June 1995, is our readers' favorite. We have had many requests to run it again.

Maybe it's because I look at so many houses that I love clean windows. Clear and slick, no streaks or smudges, even with the sun on them, these are truly clean windows. Every time I walk into a house with clean windows, I think again, "Such a small thing, so much impact."

Getting my own windows to that state, I've found, is not easy. For years I used Windex and paper towels. I sprayed and wiped and rubbed. The windows looked fine to me until the sun is glittering off the glass and I can see the spots.

Next I bought a rubber-bladed squeegee and some special window soap. With these, I got the window centers looking better, but the edges were still bad. It takes longer to wash windows with a squeegee, and there's a bucket of water to contend with, so I went back to Windex.

Then one good day we met Jill Heine. We were getting an old Berkeley house ready for sale and Jill had been hired to clean up after construction was done. Watching Jill washing windows that day, the procedure looked simple enough.

She washed each pane, went over the glass with a razor blade, brought the squeegee across, then wiped the edges of the window dry. The results were fabulous.

She was working in a large porch-like room at the back of the house which has oversized double-hung windows looking out to an apple tree in the garden. The room had been painted white and it looked clean and much better than it had before. As Jill washed the windows, the glass seemed to vanish and the green leaves of the tree appeared to rush inside, the white walls sharpening the green. It was beautiful.

I went right home to wash windows. I thought I was doing it just like Jill, thought I was going slow and being careful. But when I was done and I stood back to look, I was disappointed. My edges were still smeary.

The next time I saw Jill, I asked her to give me a lesson which she was happy to do, and I tried again, but I still didn't have it right. I didn't know what was wrong until last week when Anet and I went to look at a multi-story house on a downslope in the Berkeley hills.

Overlooking tall trees and the Bay, the large windows were strikingly clean. My very first thought was, "I'll bet Jill did these windows."

Now that says something. Can it be that the work of an expert window washer is instantly recognizable? Like the work of an artist? I guess so, because we went downstairs in that house and found Jill there. She was just finishing the last of the windows.

"I thought this had to be your work," I told her, "because the windows look so good," and we both laughed. Then I made my confession. "I've gone back to Windex," I said. "Could you tell me all over again what you do?"

Jill uses a little Joy dishwashing liquid in warm water and a terry-cloth wash rag to go over each pane. While the glass is wet, she scrapes off any paint around the edges and goes lightly over the surface with a single-edge razor blade.

the edges and goes lightly over the surface with a single-edge razor blade.

With a section of dry terry-cloth towel, she carefully wipes one edge of the glass, the edge where she will place her squeegee. She draws the squeegee across the pane, wipes the squeegee dry after each pass, then dries the remaining edges of the glass with the towel.

She does not vary her routine. She is patient and steady, never missing any part with her razor blade, making sure that the squeegee and the towel are completely dry before they touch the glass.

Jill said he thought my towel was damp; that's where I went wrong. Jill uses lots of towels, old bath towels she gets at Goodwill.

She uses No. 9 razor blades because they don't scratch the glass. And she has squeegees of various lengths, 16 inches the longest.

I asked how she became a window washer and if she likes it. She says that she enjoys cleaning things. She needed a job some years ago and figured she could clean houses.

"A lot of people think they don't know how to do anything," she told me. "They limit themselves with their jobs, but I began cleaning and then I wanted to know how to wash windows. I just went up to this guy— I didn't even know him — who was cleaning windows in a big commercial building."

"I asked if he would teach me. He was very kind and taught me everything. Then I practiced, but it didn't take too long to know I could do it."

Jill now works for Anet and me frequently.

She specializes in getting houses ready for sale. She washes every window in a house, inside and out. Sometimes this involves ladders (a 20-foot ladder is the tallest she can carry, so that's what she has), hanging out of windows ("I'm careful"), and a fair measure of ingenuity ("There's always one window that's a real challenge to get to").

She is pleased that I think clean windows are so important. Many people don't seem to. "The owners decide how much to spend on their houses; windows seem the least of it. Sometimes they'll give me a budget to work with that is too small; I can't spend the time to get the whole job done."

She understands that getting ready for sale takes time and money and that cleaning and windows come at the end when resources are running low.

It's easy to ignore professional cleaning, but it is a mistake. Nothing compares with clean.

When I go into a clean house and the windows are clean too, I feel good about being there. Unconsciously, perhaps, I like it better. I believe that this is a good house and that good people who care about the house live here.

So I went home and I washed windows again, and it worked! The technique is not hard, but it takes seemingly forever.

Too bad I don't become calm and meditative like Jill — I just want to hurry. I want to wash several panes at once, skip the razor part, wash inside but leave the outside alone.

I think it's easier, better to hire the right person for the job. I like things done well. How very good it is to know that, at least with windows, this is still possible.

She is patient and steady, never missing any part with her razor blade, making sure that the squeegee and towel are dry before they touch the glass.

Patio covers provide shade but must be constructed properly

Many building departments have handouts with illustrations that will assist the homeowner with projects like this. If they do not, they will still be able to answer any questions that you have.

JOHN SCHNEIDER

Q Now that summer is approaching, we want try to keep the house cooler by installing a cover at the rear of our home over our concrete patio. The patio measures 20 feet wide and goes out from the house 16 feet.

We haven't decided if we want a solid roof or one with fiberglass panels. Is there a limit on the size of the patio cover before you have to get a permit? Are there any specific requirements for installing patio covers? K.W., San Ramon

A Regardless of their size, constructing or installing a patio cover does require a permit because it is viewed as a structure. The Uniform Building Code defines a "patio cover" as a one story structure not exceeding 12 feet in height that is used only for outdoor and recreational purposes.

And yes, there are specific requirements for their installation. Patio covers must be adequately framed, supported and braced, and they are subject to the requirements for property line setbacks.

Patio covers are allowed to be build on a 3 ½ inch thick concrete slab (a normal patio) without special footings as long as the weight and loads of the vertical supports do not exceed a certain amount.

The type of roof covering that you finally decide on, and the actual size of the patio cover, will determine the overall weight of the structure.

When laying out your patio cover, you need to take into consideration how the overhead structure will be built and supported.

Will it be free standing or will it be attached to the house? If it is attached to the house, it will only need to be supported at the outside end. If it is freestanding, it will need to be supported at both ends.

Both types of construction will require some form of bracing to prevent sideways movement.

The length that the patio cover projects out from the house will determine how large the overhead rafters must be and what will be required to support them.

Because patio covers have very little slope to the roof, the overhead joists or rafters are required to be a minimum of 2 X 6 inch boards. These boards are usually placed so that they are 2 to 3 feet apart. Their length or span is usually limited to 8-10 feet.

Supporting these rafters is a horizontal beam (header) that sits on vertical posts. The spacing between the posts is determined by the size of the header, which is usually at least, a 4 X 6 inch member.

Spacing between posts can be anywhere from 4 to 8 feet. Post spacing and location may be a consideration when determining the overall size of the structure.

The most common mistakes that people make when constructing a patio cover are:

1. Using rafters that are too small for the span of the roof, creating a sag to the roof structure.

2. Not using a header large enough header over the vertical posts to properly carry the weight loading of the roof covering.

3. Spacing the vertical supporting posts for the header too far apart, and allowing the header to deflect.

4. Not installing adequate bracing and fasteners to prevent sideways, or upward movement of the patio cover in the event of an earthquake or during periods of high winds.

5. Not adequately anchoring the patio cover to the house.

6. And finally, allowing the patio cover to encroach on property line setbacks.

Like a house, there are specific setbacks from the side and rear property lines for all patio covers.

The best advice that I can give you is to call your local building department and ask what their specific requirements are. These requirements can vary from city to city.

Many building departments have handouts with illustrations that will assist the homeowner with projects like this. If they do not, they will still be able to answer any questions that you might have.

Long-term rates declin ARMs stable

FREDDIE MAC

McLEAN, VA – In Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey, the 30-year fixed-rate mortgage (fixed-rate-mortgage) averaged 8.54 percent for the week ending June 2, easing from last week's average of 8.62 percent; a year ago, the 30-year fixed-rate-mortgage averaged 7.41 percent.

The average for 15-year fixed-rate-mortgages is 8.24 percent this week, dropping from last week's average of 8.31 percent. A year ago, the 15-year fixed-rate-mortgage averaged 7.04 percent.

The rate for 1-year Treasury-indexed adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs) averaged 7.25 percent this week unchanged from last week's average. At this time last year, the 1-year ARM averaged 5.85 percent.

"Fixed-rate mortgage rates are lower this week than last, as inflation subsided. But rates are higher than they were in April when we saw a slow down in home sales," said Frank Nothaft, vice president and chief economist for Freddie Mac. "This could indicate we may now be seeing a cooling down in the economy."

Refinancing drops off as mortgage rates climb

FREDDIE MAC

McLEAN, VA – Freddie Mac announced today that, according to its quarterly refinancing survey, approximately 20 percent of conventional mortgage applications in the first quarter of 2000 were for refinancing, down from 22 percent in the fourth quarter of 1999. In contrast, nearly 60 percent of conventional applications were for refinance in the first quarter of 1999.

"During the first quarter of this year, fixed-rate mortgage rates continued to climb, making refinancing less attractive than in the recent past, when interest rates were considerably lower," said Vassilis Lekkas, principal economist for Freddie Mac. "In such an environment, the 15-year product is less popular and we have indeed seen the portion of refinancings into 15-year product decline significantly during the last two quarters. Given the continuing increase in the 30-year mortgage rate, refinancing could dwindle to even lower levels in the coming months."

The survey found that refinancing into the 30-year fixed-rate mortgage lessened slightly in the first quarter of 2000 from the fourth quarter 1999, among all other products surveyed. The survey also found that 63 percent of borrowers originally holding 30-year fixed-rate mortgages who

CalPers reaches out to more state employees

They are calling it the "New" PERS. Traditionally, State of California employees, including teachers, city employees, Judges, municipal employees and even California State Assembly people and California state senators, are difficult to qualify for a standard conventional mortgage loan. Primarily so, because like teachers and public servants, they are often under paid and overworked.

But now, the California Public Employees' Retirement System ("CalPERS") is reaching out to its over 1,000,000 active, inactive and annuitant members. The State of California wants its current and former/retired employees to be homeowners.

There are many key advantages to a PERS loan. The loan amounts and loan to values have been increased.

One hundred percent financing is available to $350,000; 90 percent to $550,000; 85 percent to $650,000; 80 percent to $750,000; 75 percent to 850,000 and 70 percent to $1,010,800.

A PERS member may borrow $18,421 from their retirement account as long as they have at least two times that amount in their account and they are allowed to have all the closing costs paid by a gift.

More importantly, a CalPERS borrower can buy more mortgage with their income.

Underwriting can be done electronically to $1,000,000 (also know as desktop underwriting - or - DU) and ratios (housing expense and consumer debt expense divided by income) can far exceed the normal guidelines.

Credit is a consideration but not the end all as with other conventional loans.

Factors such as job stability, length of time in the system and retirement and savings accounts also play a major role.

One of the more favorable features of the PERS loan program is, while the rate is locked at submission for 60 days, it offers two free float-down options — at approval and when the loan documents are ordered.

> The State of California wants its current and former/retired employees to be homeowners.

This free "insurance policy" protects the borrower in this rocky interest rate market.

Normally, once a rate is locked, it is locked in stone. In this case, if the rates drop, the borrower takes advantage of the lower interest rate, if rates go up, the borrower is protected with the rate lock at application. The borrower is even protected from excessive lender and broker fees.

Direct lender costs, which usually range from $500 to $750 are limited to $315.

Mortgage brokers are limited to 1.25 percent of the loan amount and may not collect a processing fee (usually $400 to $600).

The mortgage broker may collect the credit report fee and appraisal fee, but only for their vendor's actual costs. The CalPERS mortgage loan may be made for either purchase money or refinance loans.

There are only a couple of "catches" that the borrower must be aware of when obtaining a CalPERS loan.

A CalPERS member may only have one outstanding CalPERS mortgage loan at any given time. Therefore, an eligible member who assumes the role of co-borrower on another member's mortgage loan (such as husband who is a teacher and his wife works for the city) is ineligible for another CalPERS mortgage loan until the existing loan is paid in full.

A CalPERS member must occupy the property as their primary residence for at least one year.

If, for any reason, they are unable to occupy the property for one full year they must notify the company servicing the mortgage loan (the lender where they are sending their payments) a complete written explanation.

Failure to comply will cause the mortgage loan to accelerate — the total principal becomes immediately due and payable.

This loan program has an additional advantage in that the interest paid on the loan goes back in to fund the California Public Employees Retirement System.

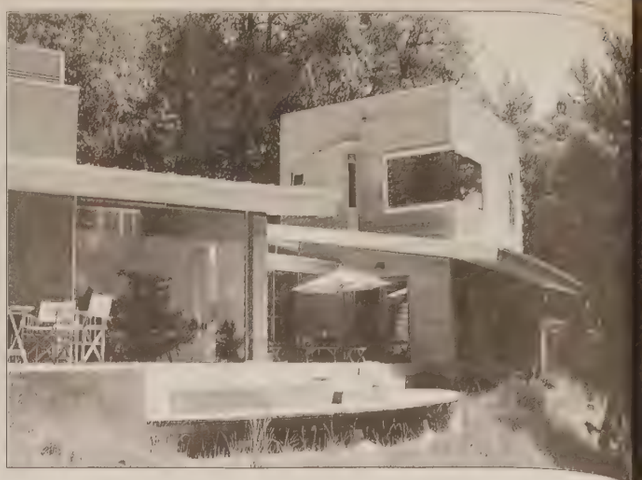

So as the CalPERS member makes the mortgage payment, they are, in a sense, paying themselves back.

CUSTOM-BUILT HOMES allow prospective homeowners to buy a residential lot at a good price and a house with the help of a construction loan. If done properly, this approach results in faster equity gains

Building your own dream custom home

■ Words of wisdom from a Realtor, an architect, a general contractor and a loan officer.

A healthy economy along with an upward spiraling home resale market has made the project of buying a lot and building a custom home more popular than ever in the bay area. Custom-built homes often allow the prospective home owner to get more bang for the buck since it is quite often more cost effective to buy a residential lot at a good price and build a house with the help of a construction loan. Also, if done properly, this approach results into much faster equity gains in the short run that the traditional alternative of buying a resale residence and when it comes to real estate who is foolish enough to say no to bigger equity gains ?

Buying a lot: A Realtor's perspective

"Now is an excellent time to buy a lot and build a custom home," says Walnut Creek-based Realtor and lot specialist, Steve Turnbloom. " Once you have made a decision to move forward, get pre-approved by a loan officer who specializes in lot and construction financing. The residential lot inventory is shrinking fast in the bay area and as we all know too well by now, prices are also going up . . . So the faster you move, the better off you'll be."

After getting pre-approved, hook up with a Realtor who understands land transactions. You'll need search utilities, soil conditions ments and governmental re tions." Turnbloom maintains site for prospective lot www.steveturnbloom.com.

"Most people see a lot on a sunny day and say: This is it ! Then they buy it. You need to study the lot during the setting sun. How hot is it? Reminder: do not forget the rain. Not the light rain, but heavy rain. Does the rain travel up hill? I have built homes in Tiburon with great views, but special construction details had to be used so the house would not leak.

"Another thing to watch for is the house next door." Are you the last one to build? It is great to see who has built and what they built next door.

If you are the first to build be prepared to go through upsets when the neighbors put up a power pole, garage, or something in your view."

Muscardini's Web site is www.creativespacesbuilders.com.

Building a custom home: An architect 's viewpoint.

Philip Mathews is an award-winning architect in San Francisco who has designed and built several projects himself. He offers novices the following suggestions: "A good lender is the perfect partner that doesn't ask too much. For some relatively reasonable fees and interest rate, the lender provides the lion's share of the money required to complete a project. What a great deal!"

Mathews also cautions about undertaking a project without adequate financing.

"It would be like leaving for the desert without your water flask. Based on personal experience, I'll also tell you that it is a very good idea to have a contingency fund of around 10 percent of the project's hard costs to cover unexpected circumstances.

Mathews can be reached by e-mail at mathewsarchitect@yahoo.com.

The author's perspective as a lending officer:

Problems used to be many when it came to implementing the financing phase of the project. For one thing, most lenders shy away from lot loans and the few who do not, often require a substantial down payment in the range of 30 percent to as much as 50 percent.

Moreover, the closing costs associated with getting a lot , a construction and finally a "take out" (regular Mortgage) loan was rather exorbitant.

Times have sure changed! Nowadays, lenders like National City Mortgage offer financing programs that go hand in hand with a "One Time Close" construction loan.

National City's lot program offers up to an incredible 90 percent financing on residential lots that meet the lender's criteria.

One Time Close (OTC) construction financing has the advantage of getting converted to a take out loan at no additional cost to the borrower in most instances.

This avoids the hassle and additional closing costs of getting the construction and the take out loan in two separate transactions. Keep in mind that these programs are designed for borrowers who intend to reside in the custom home after the end of the build time.

BETTER HOMES REALTY

Today's kitchens are really cooking

By Jennifer Hieger
THE ORANGE COUNTY REGISTER

You could practically waltz through some of these kitchens.

They're that big.

But it's not because homeowners love to cook. Americans are eating out more than ever — an average of four times a week.

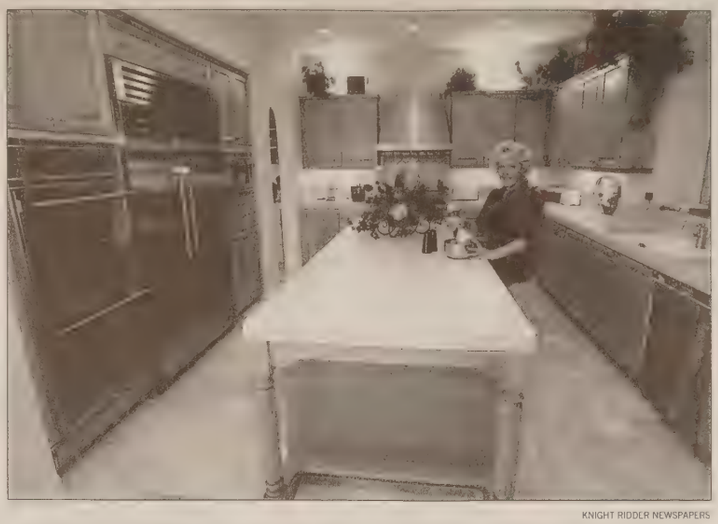

Instead, the kitchen has become the one place where harried parents and almost-as-harried kids manage to meet. So home buyers want lots of space, and they want it to look and feel just so.

Some buyers think nothing of spending thousands of dollars on imported tiles, deluxe refrigerators and handmade cabinets. California builders are responding enthusiastically, designing kitchens that are bigger and better than their predecessors.

The trend is most pronounced in larger, more expensive houses.

During the last big housing boom in California, in the late 1980s, kitchens in new houses typically had about 120 square feet of space, said Alan Nevin, director of economic research at MarketPoint Realty Advisors in San Diego, which studies the new-house market.

Kitchens

Size and elegance

Today's kitchens are far bigger — 200 square feet, Nevin said. ... also far fancier. Granite ... he said, are "almost a ...

... The growing preoccupation has ... to do with cooking. ... a complete anomaly," Nevin ... "But people do it because ... we've got to spend their money ... somewhere."

... observers see greater so- ... significance in the trend.

... Dawson, president of Daw- ... Hannouche Pate, a Newport ... architecture firm, said ... kitchens are getting bigger in order ... accommodate new, expanded du- ...

"We're working ourselves silly, ... which means we have very little ... time," he said. "The kitchen is basi- ... becoming the family room."

The real living room

... has an eye to that reality, Daw- ... has designed several houses under ... construction in Mission Viejo and ... outside San Clemente.

One house, which has about 2,000 ... square feet of space, includes a liv- ... room that isn't much of a living ... room.

It has just enough wiggle room ... four chairs and a table. Dawson ... it a parlor.

The kitchen, however, is big enough to accommodate two parlors, with space to spare.

As it is, the kitchen is the most expensive room in a house, and getting more so.

Building and equipping a kitchen costs about $300-$400 per square foot, 20 times as much as a bedroom, said Art Danielian, president of Danielian Associates, an architecture firm in Irvine.

That's up roughly 50 percent from a decade ago, Danielian said.

And there's more square footage to cover.

The loser?

"If one room disappears over the next decade, it'll be the living room," he said.

That's fine with Melinda Moherman.

At her house in Newport Beach, the kitchen is where "everything happens," said Moherman.

When Moherman and her husband, Darrell, bought the house last year, they paid careful attention to the kitchen.

Decorated in earth tones, it has limestone tiles on the counters and floors, maple cabinets and stainless steel Viking appliances.

Where the action is

When they host a party, the kitchen is big enough to accommodate two buffet lines, running along both sides of the large island in the center.

During the day, Moherman uses the kitchen as an office. She has a desk there with a computer.

Though she never particularly liked cooking, Moherman prepares a sit-down dinner about four nights a week.

> "Where do people hang out at a party? The kitchen."
> — Christopher Arnold, Expo director of interior design

It's an opportunity to spend time with her husband and son.

"I have to work at it because we're all going in so many directions. But it's important," she said.

More than any other room in a house, the kitchen makes or breaks a sale, said Patty Carmichael, director of sales and marketing at One Ford Road, a housing development in Newport Beach.

When prospective buyers tour a house, Carmichael said, they linger longest in the kitchen.

And when they buy, that's where they spend the most money on improvements.

House prices at One Ford Road range from $800,000 to nearly $2 million. Buyers typically spend an extra $100,000-$200,000 on upgrades.

More than half of the upgrade money goes into the kitchen, Carmichael said.

"It used to be that you sold the garage to the husband and the kitchen to the wife. It's not that way anymore," Carmichael said.

She said families cook, entertain and hang out in the same place — the kitchen.

Homeowners spare little expense on marble tiles for the countertop, warming drawers (for those occasions when an oven or microwave just won't do) and color-coordinated ranges.

Rather than spend $500 on a standard refrigerator, homeowners are opting for top-of-the-line Monograms and Vikings, which start at $3,000 or $4,000.

No longer secluded

In addition to being larger, kitchens also are more open, said Jessica Fabricant, marketing manager at Taylor Woodrow Homes.

"People don't want to be isolated in their kitchens," Fabricant said.

Stores such as Expo underscore consumers' desire for bigger, better kitchens.

The upscale house design chain, owned by Home Depot, has 15 stores nationwide. By 2005, the company plans to have 200 locations.

At the Expo in Huntington Beach, customers pay a $750 retainer for design services. Once their kitchen order reaches the $5,000 mark, the retainer applies to the purchases.

Virtually every customer reaches that threshold. Money doesn't seem to be a big issue, said Christopher Arnold, director of interior design.

The motivation is obvious, he said. "Where do people hang out at a party? The kitchen."

Rising interest rates shift focus to remodeling

THE AMERICAN HOMEOWNERS FOUNDATION

Recent increases in mortgage interest rates are beginning to cool sales of new and existing homes. The American Homeowners Foundation predicts this will lead more homeowners to turn to remodeling as a viable alternative to the limited selection and high prices that characterize many real estate markets today. Also driving the trend are recent changes in tax laws, which have opened up home equity for a variety of uses, including home remodeling.

As interest rates slow home sales, remodeling can also help sell a home faster. Many of the remodeling projects that can help sell the home faster can also return their full cost or more. Remodeling a badly outdated kitchen or bathroom can return more than 100 percent of its cost if you don't go overboard. Other efforts can show similar returns.

Local real estate agents are an excellent source for expert opinions on which type of remodeling jobs would bring the greatest financial return.

Unfortunately, along with the increase in remodeling in recent years has come an increase in complaints from homeowners about remodeling firms.

In one year complaints about remodels were the second most frequent category of complaint received by the Better Business Bureau.

Research by the Foundation revealed that disputes more often arise not over the specific terms of a formal contract, but rather over issues not addressed either verbally or in writing.

"It's amazing the number of major remodeling agreements that are based only on a one-page bid sheet or a handshake", according to ABF Executive Vice President Beth Hahn. "No one-page document can cover all elements of a good agreement or even most of the potential problems."

To help reduce disputes and improve relationships between remodelers and homeowners, the Foundation has updated its comprehensive plain English six-page remodeling contract. Homeowners, remodelers, architects, and attorneys all provided input into the development of the new edition.

"Its greatest value is that it helps both parties understand and focus on their respective responsibilities in advance", according to Hahn. "That's the time to ask questions and resolve potential points of contention. We used plain English because we believe mutual understanding is the best way to prevent disputes In most cases nether the homeowner nor the contractor is an attorney. A formal legal word may have a more precise legal meaning, but that doesn't help prevent misunderstandings if neither party knows what it means".

The remodeling contract also contains two pages of general provisions designed to provide fair and equitable treatment to all parties.

Among them are alternative dispute resolution procedures designed to reduce the incidence of lawsuits. The Remodeling Contract is phrased in plain English and is appropriate for all remodeling projects. The contract has space for payment schedule, by task, a description of the work to be done, a timetable for completion and special instructions and provisions

The ABF Remodeling Contract is the Foundation's best selling publication. It has protected many thousands of homeowners and contractors and gone through dozens of editorial improvements since it was first published in 1984. Copies of the ABF Remodeling Contract are available from AUF for $7.95.

The American Homeowners Foundation is the independent nonprofit educational and research consumer organization which has been serving the nation's 70 million homeowner and millions of prospective homeowners since 1984. ABF is dedicated to helping them make the wisest decisions regarding what for most Americans is their single greatest fi-

Contractors host Internet chat

CYBERSPACE — In celebration of California Contractors Week (June 12-16), the California Contractors State License Board (CSLB) is hosting a live Internet chat, where consumers and contractors alike can connect, click and communicate.

On Tuesday, June 13th, CSLB Registrar Dr. C. Lance Barnett will be poised at his keyboard, and responding to contracting-related questions from 6 to 8 a.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m.

This is the opportunity for the contractor and consumer public to ask."This is an innovative new way to make ourselves available to our licensees and the general public," said Barnett. Partic... pants can log onto the CSLB Web site (www.cslb.ca.gov) dur... ing the designated times, and link directly to the CSLB cha... room. Once there, participant... sign on with a self-designated name, and enter the chat room.

Questions are submitted via the chat room to Dr. Barnett, and he replies to questions — in order received — for all chat room guests to see. If unable to participate in the chat itself, a transcript will be available on the CSLB Web site the day after the event.The Registrar is the board's executive officer and ... rector of its 500 employees

Branch out: Plant a tree for beauty, protecti

IN THE POEM "TREES," Joyce Kilmer wrote: "I think that I shall never see a poem lovely as a tree." We couldn't agree more. A tree, however, provides more than beauty. It can protect your house from the elements, increase personal comfort and lower your utility bill. And, in the case of a fruit-bearing tree, it can lower your grocery bill.

MORRIS & JAMES CAREY
On the House

The basic goal when landscaping with trees is to block the cold winter winds and the intense summer sun while letting the beneficial winter sun and summer breezes through.

There are environmental benefits, too. A tree helps conserve soil and water and helps preserve the balance of gases in the atmosphere. A tree's leaves absorb carbon dioxide from the air. Trees also produce oxygen and release it into the atmosphere. Both of these processes are necessary for people to live.

Before you head off to the garden center, there are a few things that you should know to help you choose a tree that will meet your needs.

Check out the type

First, determine the type of tree you want: fruit-bearing or ornamental. Between the two of us we have enough fruit trees — orange, tangerine, lime, lemon, grapefruit, peach, apricot, plum and apple — to open a fruit stand. We live in a climate where these trees prosper. Such is not the case for everyone. Thus, an equally important decision when choosing a tree is its compatibility with your climate. A nursery professional should be able to help with this. And, there are reference books as well.

Another decision is whether your tree will be an evergreen or one that will lose its leaves (deciduous) in the fall. Evergreens provide year-round beauty, but, for the most part, are absent of the breathtaking color pallets that are common to deciduous trees. Moreover, a tree that drops its leaves will allow much needed rays of sun to warm the house during the cooler months of the year. This can reduce heating costs, and the added sunshine will also combat mold and fungus growth on roofing, siding, paths, patios and decks. Likewise, strategically placed shade trees can significantly lower the temperature in your house, thus increasing personal comfort and decreasing cooling costs.

When choosing a tree, consider the height and shape it will have at maturity. In addition to meeting your specific landscaping needs, doing so will also help you determine the number of trees to plant and how far to plant them from your house for the best shading.

Monitor maintenance

Another important consideration when tree shopping is maintenance. All trees will require some maintenance, some more than others. For example, a slow-growing evergreen won't need frequent pruning and there are no leaves to rake. On the other hand, a fast-growing shade tree that loses its leaves can require frequent mowing and several weekends devoted to raking leaves.

There are other care and maintenance issues to consider. Some trees drop seeds, nuts and Backfill the hole with soil, ...ing but not compacting. If your soil is poor, check with your nursery or garden professional for suggestions on planting amendments and a starter fertilizer.

An important step is the staking. Often people simply leave in the stake supplied with the tree, which is almost always inadequate for the first year's growth. Use two amply sized stakes driven solidly into the ground on either side of the tree. The trunk should be loosely tied to the stakes with rubber ties.

With the tree planted and staked, build a 4-inch berm around the outer edge of the hole to create a basin. Fill the basin with mulch to the top of the berm. The basin helps the tree get plenty of water and the mulch keeps the soil moist and helps to prevent weed growth.

Water the tree by filling the basin with water. This give the tree a good drink and settles the soil around the root ball. Lightly water every day for the first week and on a regular schedule thereafter.

Realtors celebrate Homeownership Week

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS

WASHINGTON (June 3) – Realtors nationwide are working to highlight homeownership opportunities within their communities, in celebration of National Homeownership Week, June 3-10, according to the National Association of Realtors.

During National Homeownership Week, local housing groups, including Realtor organizations, will host a variety of planned community events to recognize the importance of homeownership, educate the public on becoming homeowners and the benefits of owning your own home, assist low-and moderate income families achieve homeownership, and demonstrate the effectiveness of public-private partnerships at the local level in producing solutions to housing challenges.

NAR President Dennis R. Cronk, a Realtor from Roanoke, Va., noted that National Homeownership Week not only focuses attention on the benefits of homeownership, but on the overall housing needs of Americans and the many barriers that often prevent people from purchasing their own home.

"Homeownership is a key element in the strength and sustainability of neighborhoods," he said. "National Homeownership Week is an opportunity for everyone in a given community to see the value of homeownership and work together to help more Americans experience the pride and stability that can come with owning a home," Cronk said. Various activities planned by local associations of Realtors to highlight the week include homeownership fairs, home buyer information booths and homeownership classes and workshops. Other activities include sponsoring educational television and radio call-in shows that focus on homeownership opportunities, providing the public with resource guides about finding housing and qualifying for a mortgage, and poster contests at local elementary schools, after-school programs or community centers, designed to capture the benefits of homeownership as seen by children.

Many local associations of Realtors also work in partnership with various housing-related organizations, including Realtors, home builders, mortgage lenders and bankers, to build affordable homes for low-income families in conjunction with their local Habitat for Humanity groups.

A legislative priority for NAR continues to be introduction by the U.S. Senate of legislation similar to the measure passed by the U.S. House of Representatives, H.R.1776 The American Homeownership and Economic Opportunity Act.

The Act contains several key provisions that would expand homeownership opportunities and improve access to affordable housing for low-and moderate-income individuals, school teachers, police officers and firefighters. Specifically, H.R.1776 would permit qualified teachers, police officers and firefighters to obtain mortgages with a 1 percent downpayment requirement through the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), eliminating one of the biggest barriers to achieving homeownership — coming up with the necessary downpayment to purchase a home.

The Act also would also permit these qualifying home buyers to defer the payment of the usual FHA loan insurance premium, which typically accounts for 2.25 percent of the mortgage amount.

H.R.1776 also includes a provision that would make permanent the FHA downpayment formula by which lenders and borrowers calculate the amount of downpayment required for a FHA loan.

ROCKRIDGE BEAUTY
A short walk to College Avenue, facing Colby Park, is this 1910 classic home. Renovated by an expert craftsman who valued its antique features, it boasts three bedrooms, a bath, formal living, dining room, and a huge country kitchen on the main floor. Upstairs is a glorious master suite with large bedroom, a solarium with views of Oakland/Berkeley Hills, a smaller bedroom (or office) and bath with whirlpool tub and shower. Both baths and the kitchen showcase the best of marble/stone masonry. High ceilings, filled with light, this is a rare opportunity to own a spacious, urban home where all the work is complete!
Offered at: $595,000

Information is current as of June 6, 2000. For information on specific mortgage programs, call the lender. Rates, points and programs are subject to change and cannot be guaranteed. Points include discount and origination fees. Most quotes are for 30-day lock-ins, unless otherwise stated. Rates quoted are based on loan amounts of $125,000. Maximum conventional loan amount $252,700; jumbo loans are in excess of $252,700. Annual Percentage Rate (APR)—an interest rate reflecting the cost of a mortgage as a yearly rate. This rate is likely to be higher than the stated note rate or advertised rate on the mortgage, because it takes into account points and other credit costs. The APR allows homebuyers to compare different types of mortgages based on the annual cost for each loan. ARM–adjustable rate mortgage. LTV–loan to value. MI–mortgage insurance. NA–not available. NQ–rate not quoted. Lenders, to be listed in this paid column, call 1-800-CNS-8525. NOTICE
The Times'/ Ledger Dispatch
in cooperation with animal rescue groups, advises advertisers to always ask an adoption fee for animals. Giving away pets for "Free" can put them in danger. "Free" pets can easily end up being abused No amount of screening can prevent this . Also, it is a good idea, when possible, to obtain the new owner's full name, full address & phone number. For more information, contact Tony LaRussa's Animal Rescue Foundation at 925 685-1ARF or your local pet adoption agency

Crowd propels Glenn to new heights

By Phil Jensen
STAFF WRITER

NORWALK — Not many people can persuade 11,623 people to clap, or try to clap, in rhythm.

But that's what St. Mary's High School high jumper Ebon Glenn achieved at the California Interscholastic Federation State Track and Field Championships Saturday at Cerritos College.

Glenn won the hearts of the large track crowd by attempting, and making, the magical 7-foot mark. The mark clinched the state title for the senior.

"I knew 7-foot was in me. It was just a matter of time," said Glenn, who leaped 6-11 at the North Coast Section Meet of Champions. "At MOC, the crowd was fairly big. (But) this crowd got me over seven, and almost seven-two."

The crowd clapped rhythmically for Glenn on his three attempts at 7-0 and three attempts at 7-2. When he cleared 7-0 on his third attempt, Glenn started sprinting away from the high jump pit, then stopped.

"I didn't touch (the bar) at all. It wasn't shaking. I heard my coach (jumps coach Jeff Rogers) yelling," Glenn said. "I knew I had to keep calm. I just did my 7-foot run-through."

Glenn's clutch jump was the highlight of the day for Saint Mary's, which impressively finished third in the team competition with 20 points.

Berkeley's powerful girls team made a huge impact at the state meet, taking second place with 29 points. JW North-Riverside won the team title with 45 points.

The Yellowjackets won the 400-meter relay with a season-best time of 45.96 seconds. The team of Katrina Keith, Aisha Margain, T'Carra Penick and Simone Brooks bested second-place James Logan by a whopping .45 seconds.

Berkeley also received third-place finishes from Margain in the 100 (11.92), 200 (23.73) and the 1,600 relay team (3:45.53). In addition, Penick was sixth in the 400 (55.19).

Yellowjackets coach Darrell Hampton was proud of his team's consistency.

"When we started league, we were told, To come to state and still be just as strong ... We have to bring more of these (state plaques) back," he said.

Berkeley's Daveed Diggs also shined in the 100 hurdles final. The senior cleared the hurdles cleanly and finished third in 14.23.

Besides Glenn, St. Mary's boys placers included Halihl Guy in the 300 hurdles (fourth, 37.95), the 1,600 relay team (fourth, three minutes, 15.78 seconds) and the 400 relay team (fifth, 41.84). The Panthers' Denye Versher also finished seventh in the 400 final with a time of [illegible].

About the only disappointment for the Panthers was a leg injury suffered by horizontal jumps ace Solomon Welch on his second long jump attempt.

Welch, who won the triple jump in the NCS Meet of Champions and finished second in the long jump, was unable to compete in the rest of the meet.

He finished Friday's long jump trials with a best mark of 21-5 1/2.

St. Mary's girls squad had qualifiers in four events.

The Panthers were led by Kamaiya Warren, who reached the finals in two events and was a state placer in the discus. Warren, a sophomore, hurled the discus 140-4 on her sixth and final attempt to reach the medal stand. She set a personal record of 141-11 in the trials.

In the shot put, Warren placed ninth in 41-2 3/4.

Bridget Duffy, also a sophomore, reached the 1,600 finals with an impressive kick for second place (4:59.24) in her heat Friday. On Saturday, Duffy improved her time and finished seventh overall in 4:56.82.

Tiffany Johnson also competed in the triple jump finals and placed ninth with a mark of 36-11.

Ashley Lodree was the El Cerrito Gauchos' top finisher at the state championships.

The freshman had a good start in the 100 hurdles final and eventually took seventh place in 14.18.

Albany blanked in season opener

By Scott Strain

ALBANY — If the Albany Babe Ruth baseball team is anything like the Albany High team, then the scenario will play itself out like this: It will struggle in the early stages of the season, then come on strong and be one of the most improved teams in the league.

So far, no good. The Albany team played the East Bay Mustangs, a Connie Mack team, Wednesday afternoon at Cougar Field and lost 6-0. The loss dropped Albany to a 1-3 record but the team has a whole slew of games yet to play. It was the first game for the Mustangs (4-0) who were still introducing themselves to each other and their coaches before and during the game. Summer ball is like that.

There was also a subplot to this game. A total of nine players on the Albany team played for the Cougars' varsity, which lost in the first round of the Alameda Contra Costa Athletic League playoffs. Two Mustang players are from Piedmont, and the Highlanders lost 2-0 to Albany that ended a 17-game winning streak and started a four-game slide. The irony was not lost on Mustangs' reliever Danny Rubenstein, who played for Piedmont and who threw two perfect innings to close out the win Wednesday.

"Yeah," said Rubenstein, when asked about a revenge motive. "It was important and I thought about it. That's the team that ended our winning streak and you know what happened after that."

Lafayette Generals Smoke Oakland squad

By Mike McGreehan
STAFF WRITER

During a span of 4⅓ innings Tuesday, the young Oakland Smoke Connie Mack Baseball team held the powerful Lafayette Generals scoreless when the teams met on Lou Guisto Field at St. Mary's College in Moraga. The Smoke even managed to score a pair of runs against the Generals.

But the Smoke-versus-Generals game had no David-and-Goliath ending. It didn't borrow a page out of "Damn Yankees." There would be no magic.

That's because the Generals scored nine runs in the first inning, then added four more in the second en route to a 13-2 win.

"It was like having our high school team playing against a junior high team," said Smoke coach Joel Kaufman, who also coaches varsity baseball at Bishop O'Dowd High School. "Other than that first inning, it was a pretty good ball game."

Oakland has a 1-2 record through its first three games (it split a doubleheader with Fairfield on Sunday, see below). But Lafayette has what might be the most talented team of its class in the East Bay. The Generals also had the home-field advantage — none more so than starting pitcher Gabe Palma, who plays his collegiate home games at Lou Guisto for St. Mary's.

Palma, an Alhambra High School-Martinez graduate who just completed his freshman season with the Gaels, worked six innings. Palma threw 99 pitches, recorded five strikeouts and gave up just three hits.

ALBANY-BERKELEY GIRLS SOFTBALL LEAGUE RESULTS

By Lucia Hecht

Micro Division

Andronico's All-Stars
The Tiddlywinks

As the season drew near its end, the girls showed they knew what to do.

In the All-Stars' half of the first inning, Avery Peyton singled, and then advanced to second on Dominique Hall's single. Eliza Stuber, the next batter, hit the ball right at Tiddlywink Katie Tick, who fielded the ball and moved to her right to try to force Peyton at third.

Peyton was too fast, and made it to the base before Tick.

The next batter brought the same result at a different base: Ellie Arkin hit the ball to Ana Castillo-James, who fielded the ball to the right of first base, but couldn't make it to the base before Arkin.

Early in the Tiddlywinks' part of the inning, Hannah Cantor effected a beautiful swing and hit the ball back to Fiona Riley at pitcher. Riley snapped up the ball and ran to the plate, but wasn't in time to force Aisha Ferrazares.

The next batter, Castillo-James, also returned the ball to Riley, who again tried for the force-out at the place; this play was closer than the previous one, but Tick scored the run.

Elizabeth Allen followed Castillo-James with another shot to Riley. This time Riley scooped up the ball and made it to home for the out. Sara Herman and Ferrazares followed with hits up the middle for the Tiddlywinks.

Emma Rotem singled past the pitcher early in the All-Stars' second inning. Dorothy Gray fielded a liner to shortstop, turned and threw to third in hopes of a force, but Riley, the runner, got there first. The next batter was Hall, who hit a fly ball over third base.

Hall's drive was the longest, hardest hit seen in the Micro Division this year. It was fitting punctuation for the last regular-season game this year.

Sole Salon Sunbeams

The last game of the season was a cliff-hanger. The day began with the first run to home plate by All Star Sydney Morrone. Teammate Cara Hunt ran the bases like lightning, despite taking a ball to the head earlier in the contest.

Michelle "The Human Cannon" Rompel slugged one hit after another, and Phoebe Trout landed on each base with her signature hop. Twice, Zia Walker hit such straight balls that she landed out.

In the outfield, All Star Walker kept a vigilant eye on first. The award for the best father-daughter play goes to third baseman Lily Woodward-Logan and her dad, Jonathan. She managed to stay focused while he photographed her from every angle.

The Sunbeams shone as Megan Tokunaga scored her team's first run. Teammate Allie Presher, in her sprint to first, demonstrated exactly how the bases should be run, and both teams admired the pitching arm of Maggy DiCostanzo.

Batting stars included Taylor Ivancich and Isabelle Hubbard. With only five on their team, these girls did overtime in the field and showed great.

Younger Division

Dr. Brehnan's Smilemakers 14
Davitt Felder Stamps' Royals 5

In the final game of the season, the Smilemakers met the Royals on a sunny June afternoon in San Pablo Park for three innings of intense play. Despite the enthusiastic hitting and fielding of the Royals, the Smilemakers gained the winning edge by the end of the third inning.

Leading off the first inning, the Smilemakers' bats were hot with singles by Sabina Khan, Willa Keegan-Rodewald and Danielle Thompson. Then a slam to left field by Jenna Brotsky drove in two runs and earned her a double.

The Royals defense was tight with pitcher Emily Cooper and first baseman Yasmin Louie making several close plays at first, and second baseman Shelby LaRosa fielding a hit to make an out at second.

In the bottom of the inning, the Royals' batters responded with hits from Cooper, Grace Dixon, Tahirah Dunlap and Lily Felder. Smilemakers' shortstop Giselle Moreno stopped two hits for outs at second, assisted by second baseman Thompson. First baseman Rachael Masterson cut short a line drive for an out at first.

The second inning saw more solid hitting by the Smilemakers, the highlight of which was a center field triple by Maddie Cousens that drove in three runs.

Singles by Lisa Gilliland and Mary Creedon brought in additional runs. In the field, the Royals' third baseman Cooper made an unassisted out and second baseman Felder deftly caught a fly ball for another out. At bat, the Royals led off with hits from Molly Fullerton, Delarosa, and Louie, followed by an RBI blast to left field by Julia Overway. Hannah Port followed with a single.

The Smilemakers showed sharp defense with catcher Creedon's throw for a close play at first, and pitcher Keegan-Rodewald teaming up with first baseman Cousens to make all three outs at first.

Topping off the third inning, the Smilemakers secured singles by Masterson and Rae Lazansky-Weast. Khan demonstrated quick base-running in a double that brought in another run. Brotsky's second double of the game drove in an additional run. Johanna Alhorn Heyer singled and eventually scored.

Royals' pitcher Louie's precise throw to the first baseman Delarosa was responsible for one out. Then Louie beat the runner to the plate with the tag. Right fielder Dunlap was alert in fielding two hits and making a close play at first.

In the bottom of the inning, the Royals continued to hit with singles from Dunlap and Felder. Delarosa's drive to center field was retrieved by Smilemakers' Cousens, who relayed the ball to cut-off man Gilliland. Then shortstop Lazansky-Weast got the ball to tag the runner out at second. Two other outs were made on Heyer. Once again, the game reflected the enthusiasm, developing skills and good sportsmanship of both teams.

On The Beam Hammerheads 18
Nelson Meyer Kasrovi & Ung Bandits 13

In this season finale for both teams, the Hammerheads and Bandits played a sparkling four-inning contest marked by great teamwork and excellent fielding by both sides.

Early on, it looked like a day for the batters. Both teams batted around in the first inning, and the Hammerheads did it again in the second. When the Bandits loaded the bases with nobody out in the bottom of the second, runs looked like they could materialize by the dozens. But suddenly, Hammerheads Chloe Drulis, Violetta Alaiyan and Angelique Vaiera combined for the key play of the game, turning a hard-hit line drive into a triple play that slammed the door on the Bandits' rally.

The Bandits fought back courageously, shutting the door on Hammerhead rallies in the last two innings with strong defense that led to the side being retired both times.

Bandit Elizabeth Tulsky, who walloped two key hits and scored two runs, made two putouts at first base. Kirsten Rapella, who hammered a double among three hits, made one assist by throwing to home, and threw out three other Hammerheads at first base during the contest. Rachel Marie Chazin-Gray made the putout from Kirsten at home, and made another at third base the next inning while playing left field. Audrey Gutierrez not only had two hits and scored both times, but also made a key putout at first base.

Among the strong Hammerhead hitters, the always-tough Sonya Javits ripped a double to left field and scored two runs; Elana Pera had three sharp hits and scored three runs; and Manya Maier had four hits, scored a run and drove in two others. And dependable Elana Kessler, who had three hits and scored three runs, made two terrific putouts at first base.

The Bandits attempted to fight back. Caitlin Taffe had two smash hits, including a drive to the outfield in the third inning that scored two runs. Megan Dervin-Ackerman had another excellent hitting day, singling three times and scoring each time. And Hannah Guletz finished a strong rookie season with two hits, and showed determination by stopping balls in the field as well.

Ask Jeeves 23
Red Oak Realty 17

Ask Jeeves "Mad Dogs" lead off the top of the first with blistering hitting, with doubles by Chanece Uboldi, Kelsey Fredriksen, and Lisie Dohrer, accompanied by singles by Mattison Peters, Kaitlyn Sandel, Rebecca Studin, Barbara Barnes, Emily Cote, Valerie Dohrer, and Liana Egan. This swept a season-high eight runs across the plate for the Mad Dogs.

The Red Oak "Sluggers" came back by sending all 10 batters to the plate, with strong hits by Aine Ritchie-Boland, and Madeline Luckel. Runs were scored by Marina Hunt, Brenna Ritchie-Boland, Haley Beckett, Sarah Burger, and Aniya Whitfield.

Two outs were had: one unassisted at third base by Fredriksen, and another unassisted by catcher Egan who astutely picked up a short hit in front of the plate and stepped on home for the force.

Ask Jeeves kept sizzling hitting alive with singles, including hits by Rosie Kirstetter and Kelsey Murakami. One unassisted out was made by Brenna Ritchie-Boland at second after a fine fielding play.

The "Sluggers" responded by sending 10 to the plate again. Emily Radcliffe and Aine

Ritchie-Boland hit line drives. Ask Jeeves' two outs were made by Egan at third and a 1-3 that went from L. Dohrer to Murakami .

Defense tightened for both teams in the third, but bats came alive again in the fourth. Mad Dog

Barnes led off with a solid drive to right, followed by a clothesliner from Cote to left field. Kirstetter's drive through the pitcher's box and into center field was the power for the inning and was the sole double.

Hitting back in the bottom of the fourth, Red Oak sent eight batters to the plate, but, given the strong defense, was unable to best the Mad Dogs in this hard hitting game.

Middle Division

Black, Brown, Lanier & Jackson "Justice" 8
Acrylic Art "All Stars" 3

In a game showing solid skills and strong defense, the Black, Brown, Lanier and Jackson "Justice" team met with the Acrylic Art "All Stars" at Cordonices Park.

The first inning began with a stunning triple by All Star player Christina Skonberg, followed by a double by Selina Tambakos. Justice player Nina Gordon-Kirsch ended the inning with an out at first, thrown by shortstop Santelia Rose.

In the bottom of the first, Justice player Nina Gordon-Kirsch hit a single. A pop-fly by a Justice player was caught by All Star Ashanti Shariah.

Justice pitcher Jenna Nation struck out two All Star players at the top of the second inning.

In the bottom of the inning, Kayla Sims and Rose doubled and Irene Farrimond and Lacey Taylor singled. All Star first baseman Shariah, caught a foul ball along the first base line, as the All Stars held Justice to four runs that inning.

The third inning was short, both teams showing excellent defense. Justice second baseman Farrimond threw to Nina Gordon-Kirsch for an out at first. actually pitched pretty well. Wildness (three walks) and an error cost him a run in the second, but he held the Mustangs pretty much in check in the five innings he pitched. He gave up another run in the fifth when he hit Robert Schiff, who then stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Dan Pfister drove him in with an infield hit for a 2-0 lead.

Silvio Lund came into pitch in the sixth and was absolutely wonderful for an inning, striking out two of the three batters he faced. He wasn't so impressive in the seventh, walking two and giving up three hits — one of which was a grand slam by Pfister over the center-field fence that decided the issue.

"Yes, it (the seventh) was pretty bad," he said. "I wish I could have pitched it like I did the sixth." Lund did finish off the Mustangs by striking out two more batters and getting the third to ground out. He just hasn't pitched that much against quality opposition.

It probably wouldn't have made much difference for Albany if Lund had pitched perfect ball. Mustang pitcher Andy Boero and Rubenstein held Albany to four hits, none after the fourth inning.

Albany's first threat came in the third when with two out, Onweller grounded a single to left and stole second. Bryan Gross then tapped a slow roller to the right of the mound. Boero came off the hill, picked it up and fired a strike to first baseman Brett Webster, who made a sweeping tag to get Gross. Rubenstein then came in and slammed the door, retiring all six batters he faced.

Smoke

Nash Robertson came on to shut the Smoke down in the top of the seventh to end the game. Robertson played the previous six innings at third base where he made some fine plays, including a fine stab of Ted Kearns' hot grounder to end the third inning.

Lafayette has a team loaded with talent. Palma is just one of four collegiate or junior college players on the roster. The team also has some fine prep stars such as pitcher Reed Johnson, who went undefeated for North Coast Section 3A champion De La Salle.

The Smoke aren't slouches. They're just a relatively young team that doesn't have the Generals' experience.

"We're still in our experimental phase; we have a lot of kids who don't go to our school," said Kaufman. "We don't know what the pitching rotation is going to be heading into next week."

Kaufman is familiar with most of his players, as the majority also play under him at O'Dowd. Under Kaufman's guidance, O'Dowd has accumulated a 48-7 record in the past two seasons. The Dragons were especially strong this season, winning the West Coast Classic in April and finishing 25-3 after losing to eventual NCS 3A runner-up Monte Vista in the semifinals.

Two of those players, Kearns and Jon Marshall, are playing for Kaufman with the Smoke this summer before heading off to major college programs. Marshall, a slugging catcher, heads to the University of San Diego. Kearns, a first baseman who excels both offensively and defensively, will head to the University of San Francisco.

Also playing on the Smoke from O'Dowd are second baseman Bob Saunders, outfielder Brendan Burke, reserve infielder Dominic Ruma and freshman Steve Singleton. Singleton, who played third base for O'Dowd, played in right field for the Smoke against the Generals. He is considered the heir-apparent for Stanford-bound Jonny Ash's shortstop position for O'Dowd next season.

Nick Meyers, an O'Dowd junior varsity player, pitched one scoreless inning for the Smoke on Tuesday. Other O'Dowd players on the squad are pitchers Matt Capell, Matt Radosevich and Jon Kelchner.

Though the Smoke has a heavy O'Dowd influence, it is not just O'Dowd by another name. Drew Olson has already shown his mettle his first two years at Piedmont High and promises to get even better. Olson will catch and play outfield for the Smoke.

Outfielder Noah Roper comes from Berkeley High and shortstop Chris Weakley is a key player for Albany High.

Cameron Johnson, listed as a pitcher, infielder and outfielder, played on Head-Royce's NCS Class A championship team.

Miramonte-Orinda also provides the Smoke a strong group of players. Greg Chapman pitched effectively against the Generals on Tuesday. Chapman gave up two runs in four innings, holding the Generals scoreless in the third, fourth and fifth. Fellow Miramonte player Jonathan Woodcox is a catcher and designated hitter. Charlie Robertson is solid at third base.

Last year's Smoke team went 8-2 in its conference. This year's team will have a very challenging schedule.

Lafayette, who the Smoke faced the second time in three evenings on Thursday, already might have presented the biggest nonconference, nontournament challenge.

On Tuesday, Jesse Ingram led off the bottom of the first inning for the Generals with a walk and Chad Ross followed with a two-run home run over the fence in right field.

From there, the game imploded on the Smoke. An error led to Lafayette's third run, and Steve Hammond belted a grand slam over the left-field fence for a 7-0 lead. Josh Mayo's two-run double concluded the first-inning scoring.

For the Smoke, even things that should have gone right went sour. Lafayette's Derek Williams led off the second inning by reaching on a third strike that went to the backstop. Williams went to second on another wild pitch and scored on Robertson's RBI single.

Robertson later scored on Manny Machi's RBI single. A triple by Matt Kalafatis drove in Machi, and a single by Ingram brought in Kalafatis for a 13-0 advantage.

The Smoke scored their only runs in the third. Singleton led off with a walk and Burke followed with a double to left, putting runners at second and third. Saunders followed with a hard bouncer past Robertson at third base to bring both runners home.

Oakland kicked off its season with two games against Fairfield at Fairfield High on Sunday. Fairfield won the opener 9-7 but the Smoke stormed back to take the nightcap 12-2.

Lodree also competed in the long jump and 300 hurdles in Friday's trials. She finished 14th in the long jump (the top nine marks qualified for the finals) with a mark of 16-10 1/2, and also had the 15th-fastest time in the 300 hurdles (45.10).

Chijioke Onyenegecha was also unable to advance past the state trials in the 100 and 200. The junior was fifth in his heat of the 100 (10.96) and sixth in his heat of the 200 (22.48).

"That's terrible for me," Onyenegecha said. "This is the toughest meet I've ever run."

THE CANDIDATE? Jonathan Moscone says being artistic director is a bit like running for office.

Moscone dreams of turning Cal Shakes into a year-round festival

By Pat Craig
TIMES STAFF WRITER

Jonathan Moscone slides out of his big Ford SUV as it rolls to a halt. He bustles toward the California Shakespeare Festival headquarters in once-blue-collar West Berkeley, nods a couple of hallway hellos and pounds up the stairs to his office.

The company's new artistic director is just back from a first read-through of "Hamlet." He's toting small, clear containers of green salad and tuna salad because he's doing Atkins ("it's impossible to find no-carb dessert; I looked all over the grocery store last night"), and breathing enthusiasm the way others do air.

"I love the read-throughs; it's so exciting to see it all beginning to come together like that," says Moscone as he devours his 3 p.m. lunch.

If you were to draw a cartoon of Moscone, you'd sketch in those speed lines that always follow people in a hurry. He's a man on an inspired mission; an evangelist preaching the gospel of theater and eager to win as many converts as possible.

"It isn't a matter of making something new or building an audience; we already have a great audience," he says. "It's a matter of where we go from here."

Listening to Moscone, it becomes obvious that where he would like to take the festival is into the theatrical big leagues.

Moscone joined the festival in December, replacing Joe Vincent as artistic director. He came from the Dallas Theatre Center, where he had served as associate director since 1993. He is the first to confess that his new job is a bit like running for political office.

You can see it whenever he encounters a crowd — he wades in to chat and shake hands, finding out what people have on their minds and how he can make the theater on a hillside in Orinda indispensable.

Moscone is at Berkeley Rep's opening night, chatting with Rep artistic director Tony Taccone and his ACT counterpart, Carey Perloff. He's talking to people in the theater, basking in their energy and infusing them with his own enthusiasm. He appears to have learned that from his father, former San Francisco Mayor George Moscone, who was assassinated in 1978.

Another thing he appears to have learned is the importance of building a constituency.

Given his way, the festival. which opens its season Saturday with "Taming of the Shrew," will grow into a year-round operation that includes an indoor theater or two, and a program of plays that doesn't begin and end with the Bard.

"The Oregon Shakespeare Festival at Ashland doesn't depend entirely on Shakespeare; Stratford doesn't; many theaters that began with Shakespeare don't rely completely on his plays," says Moscone. "You grow or you die. What I want to do each year is present a season of plays that need to be seen. It could be four Shakespeare plays, it could be something else."

Moscone is talking about ideas — signing actors for single shows, for example, rather than entire seasons, as has been done in the past; concepts for growth, with people such as Oakland Mayor Jerry Brown, who apparently sees the wisdom of more professional theater in his town. There's nothing concrete yet, just ideas — just trying to share the excitement he feels about theater.

"The ultimate goal and final equation has to always include the audience," he says. "You can't put on a play without an audience, and we, the artists and the audience, are the humans who bring the words to life."

Theater, he says, works best when audiences are excited about what they are seeing on stage — not nec-

'Big Momma' no weighty fare

Martin Lawrence's debut on the plus-size screen is better than what you'd expect of the comedian-in-drag genre

By Karen Hershenson
STAFF WRITER

Seems at some point in every comedian's career, he must don latex buns and a pair of flour-sack breasts, and make like a plus-size person.

Robin Williams did it in "Mrs. Doubtfire," likewise Eddie Murphy in his rollicking "The Nutty Professor." Now Martin Lawrence jumps on the double-helping-of-gravy train with "Big Momma's House."

There's no major talent required — anybody can get laughs by wiggling some prosthetic booty. The real challenge comes in sustaining the joke through an entire movie.

For those of us who aren't huge Lawrence fans, a little of his wide-eyed, off-color humor goes a long way.

But the comedian gets ample back-up in "Big Momma," and once you get past the juvenile bathroom gross-out, the movie finds its groove.

Lawrence's trashy instincts are offset by the more subtle comedic talents of Paul Giamatti ("The Negotiator," "Man on the Moon"), and classy love interest Nia Long ("Boiler Room").

The director is Raja Gosnell, who directed Drew Barrymore's "Never Been Kissed."

Like most buddy movies, this one centers on a crime-related caper, with Lawrence and Giamatti a couple of FBI agents trying to track down a dangerous escaped con.

The assignment lands them in a small Southern town, where an oversized matriarch known as Big Momma reigns supreme.

Her niece Sherry (Long) had been unwittingly involved with the escapee, and she's expected to show up at Momma's doorstep, seeking shelter. But when the grandmother unexpectedly heads out of town, Lawrence's character, Malcolm — a master of disguises — decides to step into her size 10DD shoes.

There are some funny moments as the partners prepare the mask and body parts, which are shown draped over sofas in odd poses.

But the resulting creation is pretty scary, and only vaguely reminiscent of the actual Big Momma. Actually, these latex-enhanced ladies rarely look anything like the real thing, despite what must be hours spent with a make-up artist.

Then comes the spectacle of Lawrence as a 300-pound woman, barely containing his lust for Sherry:

"What's that under the covers, Big Momma?"

"Oh, that's my flashlight."

Scenes on the basketball court and in self-defense class are stronger, with Momma whipping the homeys, or pinning her instructor to the mat.

Gosnell's light touch is apparent as Malcolm blows his cover to make a move on Sherry, and begins to connect with her little boy, Trent.

There's actually a story here, and some genuine emotion shines through.

Combined with Lawrence's sometimes raunchy humor, it's a mixed bag, but a fairly amusing one.

"AMERICAN BEAUTY": Kevin Spacey and Annette Bening give Oscar-caliber performances (and Spacey won) in this darkly comic drama about alienation festering beneath suburban bliss. Director Sam Mendes, who mounted "The Blue Room" for the stage, infuses the film with an offbeat beauty that is both immediately entertaining and profound. Noteworthy work by younger members of the cast, too: Thora Birch, Wes Bentley and Mena Suvari ("American Pie") as the budding Lolita who triggers the chaos. — K. Hershenson. (R: (strong sexuality, language, violence and drug content.) 1 hour, 58 minutes. A

"AMERICAN PSYCHO": Director and co-screenwriter Mary Harron ("I Shot Andy Warhol") has turned Bret Easton Ellis widely reviled novel about '80s avarice and alienation into a highly stylized but strangely remote film. The grisly violence has been toned down, but without enough true satire to compensate. What's left is fascinating, chilling, but slightly without purpose. Welsh actor Christian Bale portrays an icy Wall Street serial killer with a penchant for "swordfish meatloaf" and Valentino suits. The period details are dead-on, with strong supporting performances by Chloe Sevigny as a fawnlike secretary and Reese Witherspoon as a self-absorbed fiancée. — K. Hershenson. (R: strong violence, drug use, sexuality, language.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. B-

"BATTLEFIELD EARTH": The great thing about this science fiction film version of L. Ron Hubbard's best-selling novel is you can leave at any time since the plot's so simplistic. John Travolta stars as a big, bad alien taking on the potential savior of civilization, a primitive type played by Barry Pepper. It's the biggest folly of Travolta's career. — K. Hershenson. (PG-13:) 1 hour, 57 minutes. D-

"BETTER LIVING THROUGH CIRCUITRY": This impassioned documentary about the rave culture recalls the heady days of the '60s. Much of the documentary features interviews with members of the rave scene, who talk about the artistry behind the technological make-up of the music as well as its ability to alter consciousness. Included are performances by noteworthy musicians such as Moby. The movie, however, is essentially pro-Ecstasy, treading gingerly over the drug issue. — S. Holden (NR) 1 hour, 32 minutes. B

"THE BIG KAHUNA": In a hospitality suite at a convention in Wichita, three men debate questions of life, death and industrial lubricants. Kevin Spacey and Danny DeVito are old comrades, road warriors of the tool and die industry. Peter Facinelli is the new kid at his first convention. All depends on landing a key client known as the Big Kahuna. The kid talks to him — but about Jesus, not lubricants. This is heresy to the other two, whose religion is sales. Smart, funny, hard-edged, uncommonly thoughtful. — R. Ebert. (R: language.) 1 hour, 30 minutes. A-

"BIG MOMMA'S HOUSE": Martin Lawrence dons latex buns and flour-sack breasts to portray an oversized matriarch in this sometimes raunchy, sometimes sentimental comedy about undercover cops. The comedian's trash-talking style is nicely offset by Paul Giamatti ("Man on the Moon") and Nia Long, as the real Big Momma's niece. — K. Hershenson. (PG-13: language, sexual innuendo.) 1 hour, 45 minutes. C+

"BOSSA NOVA": Director Bruno Barreto seeks to achieve a becalmed magic along the lines of a Francois Truffaut film. Unfortunately, his film is too wan to achieve a rhythm. This anonymous romantic farce starring Amy Irving as an American living in Brazil who finds herself falling for a suave lawyer has the dubious distinction of reminding one of "The Odd Couple." An inconsequential movie that relies on its music to provide chemistry. — E. Mitchell. (R: soccer hooligan language and steamy clinches.) 1 hour, 35 minutes. C

"CENTER STAGE": The dance sequences soar in this hybrid of "The Turning Point" and "Flashdance" as fresh-faced recruits to a New York City ballet academy experience heartaches and triumphs. When the camera turns to human interaction, the energy lags. It's not that the young cast isn't trying, it's just that most them aren't trained actors. — K. Hershenson. (PG-13: language and some sensuality.) 1 hour, 53 minutes. C+

"THE COLOR OF PARADISE": A worthy but manipulative offering from the director of the Oscar-nominated "The Children of Heaven." Set in Iran, it tells the poignant story of a boy (Mohasen Ramezani) whose father's impending marital plans impinge on their relationship. Baldly heart-tugging, the film doesn't stack up against some of the best works by Iranian directors. Nevertheless, it's a powerful experience. — K. Thomas. (PG) 1 hour, 30 minutes. B-

"DINOSAUR": Disney's wondrous fusion of computer artistry and real-life settings propels animation to the next evolutionary stage. But the story line isn't nearly as engaging as the visuals, basically about a saurian trek to the nesting grounds. The dinosaurs talk without losing their dignity, voiced by a just handful of well-known names, including Alfre Woodard. It's earnest, largely authentic and mostly gimmick-free. — K. Hershenson. (PG: intense scenes.) 1 hour 22 minutes. B

"EAST IS EAST": In the spirit of screwball comedy, "East Is East" begins with a wedding gone wrong. But, unlike Hollywood fare, it's more interested in the people left behind when a groom-to-be flees from the altar. Omi Puri stars as the patriarch of the family in this likable but disorganized film. Unfortunately, the script and its subplots aren't developed as well as they should be. — H. Italie. (R: violence, profanity and adult situations.) 1 hour, 36 minutes. C+

"THE LIFESTYLE" (NR)

"ERIN BROCKOVICH": With a name like this, it's got to be good, and between a breakthrough performance by Julia Roberts and masterful direction by Steven Soderbergh, it is indeed. Armed with an array of push-up bras and stiletto heels, the actress recounts the true-life drama of a former beauty queen who stumbles upon evidence that Pacific Gas and Electric Co. contaminated nearby drinking water. With Albert Finney as the attorney who reluctantly brings this firebrand aboard. — K. Hershenson. (R: language.) 2 hours, 11 minutes. B+

"THE FLINTSTONES IN VIVA ROCK VEGAS": Yabba-dabba-yuck. This latest live-action feature spinning off the TV show is prehistorically bad. Everything about this prequel is B-list, from the casting — Stephen Baldwin is the biggest name — to sets reminiscent of Play-Doh. The amusing 1994 original had John Goodman as Fred, but here we get Mark Addy from "The Full Monty." It's full of tacky innuendo that has no business in a kids movie, spurred by Alan Cumming ("Romy and Michele's High School Reunion") as an alien sent to study human relationships. — K. Hershenson. (PG: comic violence, gambling, some cleavage.) 1 hour, 32 minutes. D

"FREQUENCY": Dennis Quaid plays a fireman who died in 1969. Jim Caviezel plays his son, a policeman, in 1999. Because of sunspots, northern lights and other plot devices, the father and son find they can communicate over the 30-year gap on the father's short-wave radio. The son tells his dad how to avoid dying in a fire — and we discover that changes in the past change the nature of the present in ways that become labyrinthine as the movie continues. They're in a baffling maze of time, but the movie works because the central story is so simple: a father who died when his son was 6 is saved by the son, and then is able to help his son. — R. Ebert. (PG-13: intense violence and disturbing images.) 1 hour, 57 minutes. B+

"GHOST DOG: THE WAY OF THE SAMURAI": Jim Jarmusch's movie doesn't work unless you concede that the title character is insane. Then his loneliness and alienation become poignant instead of simply bizarre. Forest Whitaker stars as a professional Mafia hit man who reads "The Way of the Samurai" and gets his instructions by carrier pigeon. Some funny scenes as mobsters find out the truth about their mysterious assassin, but some of the hits (including a shot up through a lavatory drain) demand Inspector Clouseau. Weirdly intriguing. — R. Ebert. (R: strong violence and language.) 1 hour, 58 minutes. B

"HIGH FIDELITY": John Cusack is a record-store clerk who obsesses over the moments of his life in this hip romantic comedy based on Nick Hornby's novel. The actor appears in every scene, revealing the audience through his narrating the film. Jack Black is terrific as a self-absorbed music geek, and Lisa Bonet shows up as a brief fling. But director Stephen Frears ("The Grifters") stumbled over the cast Danish actress Iben Hjejle as the girlfriend; the worst case of stunt casting since Jennifer Love Hewitt took over for Audrey Hepburn. (R: drug use, language, some sexuality.) 2 hours. B

"HITMAN": Hong Kong action master John Woo ("Face/Off") contracts the coldness of the original "Mission: Impossible" with this sexier, easier-to-swallow sequel. But his trademark flourishes — intense face-offs, slow-mo gunfire and acrobatic leaps — are so over-the-top, they're astonishing. Star Tom Cruise (who also produced) is as charismatic as ever, but his pairing with Thandie Newton ("Beloved"), an actress he helped land for the assignment. But the paper-thin story never takes off, overshadowed by extended motorcycle chases and mid-air gunfights. Uneven, but wacky fun. — K. Hershenson. (PG-13: intense action, violence.) 2 hours 6 minutes. B-

"REASON OF MIND": Demi Moore keeps herself buttoned up in this drama about a woman living two lives — one when she's awake and another when she's sleeping. When the lines between them blur, the intriguing premise finds her guessing which is reality and which is dream, although the dialogue seems filled at times and the story becomes a bit too convoluted, "Passion of the Mind" doesn't simply because the idea is so fascinating. — C. Lemire. (PG-13: brief sexuality.) 1 hour, 45 minutes. C+

"RETURN TO ME": Bonnie Hunt's directorial debut matches a grieving widower (David Duchovny) and waitress (Minnie Driver) who — unbeknownst to both — happens to have his wife's heart. The romantic comedy clearly embraces the fantastic, but is grounded by its down-to-earth humor and a charming ensemble cast including Carroll O'Connor and Robert Loggia as Driver's caretakers, plus Joan Grier as the well-meaning vet-and-man pal, and Second City alumni Bonnie and Jim Belushi as a loving and exasperatingly fertile couple. — V. Chan. (PG for sexuality and thematic elements.) 1 hour, 56 minutes. A-

"ROAD TRIP": Josh (Breckin Meyer) goes to Ithaca College and his longtime girlfriend, Tiffany (Rachel Blanchard), goes to the University of Austin, and their telerelationship seems to be fading fast. Then he's seduced by an Ithaca sexpot named Beth (Amy Smart). They videotape their adventures, and wouldn't you know it, the tape gets accidentally mailed to him requiring an emergency cross-country road trip to retrieve it. Awkwardly dirty at times, with lots of nudity, most of it feeling contrived, in a comedy that never reaches escape velocity. — R. Ebert. (R: strong sexual content, crude humor, language and drug use.) 1 hour, 31 minutes. C

"ROMEO MUST DIE": There isn't much Shakespearean about this action film starring Jet Li, except for the excessive number of dead bodies. If you can silence the logic portion of your brain, it works as a campy martial-arts action thriller, with some dazzling fight sequences and kooky fashions. The threadbare plot takes place in Oakland where Asians and African-Americans battle for control of the city's waterfront. When his brother is murdered, Han (Li) breaks out of prison to seek vengeance and, in the process, falls for an owner of a snazzy boutique (Aaliyah). The two don't generate much sexual heat, and the plot unfolds as Action Flick 101. — K Hershenson. (R: violence, language and brief nudity.) 1 hour, 50 minutes. D+

"RUNNING FREE": That's what you'll be longing to do after viewing this often absurd drama told from an orphaned colt's P.O.V. Gorgeously shot in the Namibian desert, it traces the roots of a herd of wild horses, many abandoned by German settlers at the brink of World War II. Producer Jean-Jacques Annaud also did "The Bear." — K. Hershenson. (G) 1 hour, 23 minutes C

"SHANGHAI NOON": Shades of "The Frisco Kid"! This Far East-meets-Wild West version shamelessly throws in all the clichés to make it work. Jackie Chan as the imperial guard sent to rescue kidnapped princess Lucy Liu inadvertently teams up with outlaw Owen Wilson. Chan at 46 exudes vitality; meanwhile, Wilson's independent film roots shows in his quirky, often hilarious movie. — V. Chan. (PG-13: language, some violence, pronounced cleavage.) 1 hour, 50 minutes. B

"SMALL TIME CROOKS": A flat-out comedy from Woody Allen, who plays an ex-con with a screwy plan for tunneling into a bank. To cover the operation, he sets up his wife (Tracey Ullman) in a cookie shop in the storefront above the tunnel, and the cookies take off big-time. Rich beyond her dreams, Ullman hires Hugh Grant to give her lessons in culture, and he flatters his way into grabbing distance of her fortune. Elaine May plays Ullman's cousin, who comforts Woody with simple pleasures while Ullman rockets into the lowest reaches of the social stratosphere. — R. Ebert (PG: language) 1 hour, 35 minutes

"TIME CODE": This latest by the boundary-stretching Mike Figgis ("Leaving Las Vegas") isn't so much a movie as an experiment in digital filmmaking, and one likely to induce headaches or nausea in the viewer. The screen is divided into fourths, each featuring a different story, improvised in one continuous take. Charismatic Salma Hayek is most successful at drawing you in amid the cinematic noise, with Jeanne Tripplehorn and Kyle MacLachlan among her co-stars. — K. Hershenson. (R: drug use, sexuality, language and a scene of violence) 1 hour, 33 minutes C-

"TITUS": Shakespeare as seen with the ironic sensibility of a horror film, as Anthony Hopkins strides through the Bard's bloodiest and least consequential tragedy. The first film by Julie Taymor, director of Broadway's "The Lion King," it's brilliant and absurd, a gore-fest set to poetry. Opening with the image of a modern child smashing his action figures, she approaches "Titus" as a cross between revenge melodrama and a video game. With strong performances by Jessica Lange as the Goth queen, Alan Cumming as the vile emperor and Harry Lennix, stealing scenes as the scheming Aaron the Moor. — R. Ebert. (R: violence, sexual images.) 2 hours, 45 minutes. B+

"TOPSY-TURVY": British director Mike Leigh brings rare depth and feeling to this exploration of the relationship between Victorian-era musical-theater collaborators Gilbert and Sullivan. Visually splendid and brimming with intelligence and wit, it taps into the essence of the creative process as the pair, who are temporarily blocked, break through with "The Mikado." — K. Hershenson. (R: scene of risqué nudity.) 2 hours, 40 minutes. A

"U-571": Rife with every drippy, miserable, claustrophobic, melodramatic moment that marks this overworked genre. Submovie lovers will be in hog heaven, but others may find little that's intellectually buoyant. Despite the hype, Matthew McConaughey does little to advance his troubled career as a World War II naval officer heading a dangerous mission to overtake a German U-boat and steal its precious coding device. The boat floats from one harrowing episode to another, with knockout special effects. — K. Hershenson (PG-13: war violence.) 1 hour, 56 minutes. C+

"UP AT THE VILLA": Kristin Scott Thomas is smashing as a penniless British widow who is a guest at the Florence villa of a princess (Anne Bancroft). Within a few days, she is proposed to by a British diplomat (James Fox), propositioned by an American millionaire (Sean Penn), and makes love to a hapless refugee (Jeremy Davies). All of these threads come together in a final conversation in which scandal, while it cannot be denied, need not disrupt good manners. It's the kind of movie that makes you happy you're watching it and not in it, because you would never know how to converse with people of such style. — R. Ebert. (PG-13: thematic elements.) 1 hour, 55 minutes. B

"THE VIRGIN SUICIDES": An accomplished, if overly dreamy, debut by Sofia Coppola, daughter of Francis Ford. The soundtrack by the French duo Air, the costumes and the cinematography are all exquisite, even though the tale of the lovely Lisbon sisters and their untimely demise sometimes lags. Kirsten Dunst and Josh Hartnett give nuanced performances as gorgeous, lustful teens, with James Woods and Kathleen Turner as spirit-squelching '70s suburban parents. — K. Hershenson. (R: strong thematic elements involving teens.) 1 hour, 37 minutes. B-

"WHERE THE HEART IS": Natalie Portman proves she can not only steal movies but carry them in this self-consciously quirky drama-comedy based on the popular novel. She's a barefoot and pregnant teen who holes up in a Wal-Mart after being ditched by her boyfriend. But after connecting with local Southern-fried eccentrics — played by Ashley Judd and Stockard Channing — she taps into some photographic talent and begins to bloom — K. Hershenson. (PG-13: intense thematic material, language and sexual content.) 2 hours. B

"WINTER SLEEPERS": Made before "Run Lola Run," director Tom Tykwer's wired neo-Gothic thriller isn't the perfect, playful little prize that "Lola" is, but it still rocks. Set in an alpine village where the slopes are covered in snow and a spiritual torpor covers the land, "Winter" follows four outsiders whose lives intertwine and lead to a series of bizarre circumstances. Too long and a little vague, "Sleepers" nevertheless crackles with kinetic suspense. — S. Rea (R: sexual situations, violence.) 2 hours, 4 minutes. B

Venezuelan-style jazz comes to Berkeley tonight

By Andrew Gilbert

The explosion of interest in music from other countries has introduced American audiences to amazing singers such as Susana Baca from Peru and Cape Verde's Cesaria Evora. One South American country that has yet to make inroads in the U.S. consciousness is Venezuela, which is part of what makes the recent work of Oakland-based singer Maria Marquez so fascinating.

"It's not hard to hear Colombian music, but music from Venezuela is very mysterious and unknown," Marquez said. "What I'm doing is a fusion of folkloric, Afro-Venezuelan music and jazz."

Born in the Venezuelan capital of Caracas, she came to the United States in the late '70s to study at Berklee College of Music. Marquez moved to San Francisco in the '80s and collaborated with fellow Venezuelan Jackeline Rago and Claudio Gomez from Colombia in the band Altimira, where they infused South American folk music with a jazz sensibility. She spent much of the '90s back in Venezuela, working as DJ for a Caracas jazz station, and since returning to the Bay Area has been most visible as a vocalist in the world fusion band Wild Mango.

Now, with the release of her gorgeous North American solo debut, "Once Cuentos de Amor/Eleven Love Songs," Marquez is forging a beautiful synthesis of Venezuelan folkloric music and jazz. The result is a haunting collection of boleros, all by Venezuelan composers, set to Afro-Venezuelan rhythms, calypso and a distinctive merenge beat that's decidedly different from the Dominican Republic's popular dance.

Marquez celebrates the release of "Eleven Love Stories" tonight at La Peña Cultural Center in Berkeley with a band capable of rendering her nuanced and highly textured music. The group features percussionist John Santos, guitarists Andre Bush and Robin Lewis, vibraphonist Gerry Grosz, steel drummer Tom Miller, bassist David Belove, accordionist Rich Khuns, reed players Sheldon Brown and Don Gardner, and multi-instrumentalist Jackeline Rago. She is also bringing in two Venezuelan jazz musicians, pianist Otmaro Ruiz, best known for his work with trumpeter Arturo Sandoval, and drummer Aaron Serfaty.

The event, which is made possible in part by a grant from the Zellerbach Family Fund, starts at 8 p.m. with a musical seminar on the folkloric elements in Venezuelan jazz. The music starts at 9 p.m. Tickets are $15; 510-849-2568.

Pleasant Valley Swing

For the past five years, trumpeter Mike Vax and the New Oakland Jazz Orchestra have been raising funds for musical education. Each summer NOJO has raised thousands of dollars for the Oakland Youth Symphony, which uses the funds to send six kids to jazz camp. "Our whole thing is giving back to the community," said Vax, a veteran of Stan Kenton's orchestra. Boasting some of the Bay Area's top big band veterans, NOJO recently released an excellent hard-swinging CD "Alternate Route," which features the work of local writers. The band performs 8 p.m. June 9 at Pleasant Hill's Valley View Middle School, 181 Viking Drive, in a benefit for the school's award-winning music department. Sharing the bill is the Valley View Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of Peggy Vax, who was named Teacher of the Year by the California Chapter of the International Association of Jazz Educators. Tickets are $10 general, $6 for students and seniors. For concert information, call 925-609-9341 or 510-420-4560.

Remembering Eddie

Jazz In Flight, the all-volunteer organization that produces the Eddie Moore Jazz Festival, has announced the lineup for its 11th annual fest. The Aug. 7-13 event at Yoshi's at Jack London Square opens with Orquesta la Moderna Tradicion, an excellent 11-member ensemble led by percussionist and dancer Roberto Borrell. The group specializes in Cuban danzón.

Other highlights include Cindy Blackman, a smokin' jazz drummer best known for her longtime association with rocker Lenny Kravitz. She'll be making her West Coast debut as a band leader to celebrate the release of her new High Note label album, "Works on Canvas." New Orleans clarinet master Alvin Batiste and avant garde saxophone legend John Tchicai join forces with bassist Mel Graves and drummer George Marsh and a string section led by Bay Area cellist Kash Killion that includes Anthony Blair and Steve Kindler (violins) and Vincent Tolliver (viola). The weekend includes performances by Chicago's Ritual Trio, with tenor saxophonist Archie Shepp, and an amazing collaboration billed as the Southern Brothers, featuring jazz flautist James Newton and Indian master musicians Kadri Gopalnath and Srinivasan Poovalur. soon become the first prominent dot.com to declare bankruptcy.

But former KPIX medical reporter and ABC "Good Morning America " contributor Dr. Nancy Snyderman has already done quite well by the failing company — she's on Dr. Koop's board. Fortune says that "although the stock is down, don't cry for Dr. Koop insiders." Snyderman made $2.6 million cashing in stock options between Feb. 18 and 25 at around $10 a share. All perfectly legal. Shortly after, the stock began plummeting, and is now trading down at around $1.30 a share. So, is it any wonder Snyderman's always smiling on camera?

MEDIA NOTES: Not only is anchoring this weekend's French Open tennis finals the biggest career break for long-time KCBS/Giants' sportscaster Ted Robinson, it was also a sound move by NBC. The talented Robinson is bright, plus, he's not a hack like the pedestrian NBC tonsil he replaced, Dick Enberg. Robinson keeps things on an intelligent, businesslike level while working with outspoken partner John McEnroe, and Robinson doesn't make fatuous or otherwise trivial remarks just to fill air time or to massage McEnroe. Watching the world's best tennis players play with clay in Paris? Good gig, Ted. Even to those of us in the Bay Area who don't follow sports that closely, classy long-time East Bay resident Robinson has always been a pleasant departure from the norm ..

Maybe THIS Time He Means It: Local radio talk-show veteran Jim Eason has quit conservative talk station KSFO — yes, again. But this time it just might take — he told me last Friday management had accepted his resignation, then he went on the air Monday and repeated all this, telling listeners he'd be retiring at the end of this month.

Eason's afternoon KSFO show was due to be cut back from two hours to one on July 3 when KGO physiologist/Ph.D. Laura Schlessinger comes to KSFO. When I asked the sly old talk host about the truncation of his show last month, Eason chuckled and even joked about it. But now he's had time to think about it — and to stew.

Eason's already quit once this year, back in March when he had run-ins with one manager and with controversial KSFO talk host Michael Savage. Eason was coaxed into returning by KSFO management then. But this time it seems different — his resignation's been quickly accepted. Still, if Eason fans besiege the station, who knows?

Eason told me he'd asked KSFO manager Jack Swanson about cutting out an hour of Dr. Laura's show so he could still do two hours between 2 and 4 p.m., "But Jack told me they couldn't do that contractually," Eason says, adding, "You could say there's tension in the air." The conservative and popular Eason, who does his weekday program out of his basement in Asheville, N.C., has done talk shows for ABC Radio (KGO, KSFO) in the Bay Area for 30 years.

Far(si) Out, Man: Finally today, Tehran is rockin' again, says the Wall Street Journal. Pop music, prohibited in Iran for most of the zany, fun-lovin' Islamic Republic's 20-year existence, is now making a comeback, says the WSJ. Officials feel that since pop and rock music is such a strong influence among youth and is also inevitable, promoting homegrown music is preferable to letting unwholesome Western music flourish. (The Journal article reports that Dire Straits' "Sultans of Swing," not surprisingly, is a local favorite.).

So, in the months to come, I predict that the Iranian pop charts will be filled with such cover-version hits as "Allah Really Want to Do" and "Put Your Head on My Chador." Homegrown knock-off bands like Megadeath to Satan and The Mullahs of Invention will also find an audience in this new regime — as will female pop/lounge singer Jari Veil.

essarily because it's the best thing they have ever seen, but because it represents a passion and a vision from those who are presenting it.

"I will always stand by a production that is strong in its impulses, deeply felt and smart," Moscone says. "And it may miss the mark, but it is always alive and ambitious. Our audiences have the potential to go anywhere (with the theater), so it's up to us on the front lines to take it somewhere — that's what leadership is all about."

That's what leads to a world-class company and thoughts of indoor seasons and ambitious schedules. What it begins with, though, is a burning need to see a certain play produced on the stage.

Moscone calls it a schedule of plays that need to be seen at a particular time. It was that notion that makes him want to develop seasons at Cal Shakes that will take the offerings beyond only plays by Shakespeare.

"Just because a play is a classic is not a reason to produce it. You have to ask why you are doing it now — not every great play should be done simply because of the nature of the work," says Moscone. "It has to start with a deep connection between the artist and the play that makes it necessary to reveal that vision right now. It may take many different forms. It could be very personal, very political, or there might be something about the play's poetic landscape that will link us to the journey the director wants to take us on right now."

There have been thousands of productions of "Hamlet," for example, and there will be thousands more. But for the production scheduled by Cal Shakes to work, there has to be this sort of vision for that specific production.

"That doesn't mean a perfect production; something like that doesn't exist. It's what the artist brings to the show," Moscone says. "Basically, it's the idea of showing the audience what you do with the play when you take it down off the mantel, and how you will make yourself vulnerable and share it with us."

Like most theatrical producers, Moscone is interested in attracting younger people to shows, but his interest in "youthful" audiences isn't restricted to chronology.

"What you really want is a youthful spirit, and that is not literally manifested in age," he says. "It's about adventure, imagination and the willingness to have an open mind."

$40 For Your Thoughts

We here at The Berkeley Voice want to provide you with the most helpful, informative and entertaining newspaper possible. To do that, we need your comments on The Berkeley Voice as it exists today and your ideas on how it can be improved.

We will be conducting focus groups in June to discuss what it is you like and dislike about The Berkeley Voice and are now looking for people to take part in those discussions. Participants will be paid $40 for their time.

The focus groups will be approximately two hours long -- from 7 to 9 p.m. at a location still to be determined. If you are interested in participating, please complete the form below in its entirety and mail it to the address indicated at the bottom, or fax it to us at 510-644-1735 if that is more convenient. The information will be used to help form groups of people with different interests, ages, occupations and newspaper reading habits.

IS YOUR HOME Fire SAFE?

Diablo FireSafe COUNCIL

Fire season is almost here and homeowners should prepare now for what could be a dangerous season. Taking some simple precautions could save your home—practicing a fire evacuation plan and making sure your address is clearly visible are just some of the steps homeowners should take. Use the following checklist to make sure your home is firesafe.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

- ❑ Consider installing residential sprinklers

Kitchen

- ❑ Keep a fire extinguisher in the kitchen
- ❑ Maintain electric & gas stoves in good operating condition
- ❑ Keep baking soda on hand to extinguish stove-top grease fires
- ❑ Move the handles of pots & pans containing hot liquids away from the front of the stove
- ❑ Place flammable curtains & towels away from burners on stove
- ❑ Store matches & lighters out of reach of children
- ❑ Properly store flammable liquids in approved containers & away from ignition sources such as pilot lights

Living Room

- ❑ Install a screen on your fireplace
- ❑ Store the ashes from your fireplace (& barbecue) in a non-combustible container & dispose of only when cold
- ❑ Clean fireplace chimneys and flues at least once a year

Hallway

- ❑ Install smoke detectors between living & sleeping areas
- ❑ Test smoke detectors/alarms monthly. Replace batteries twice a year, when clocks are changed in the spring and fall.
- ❑ Consider installing long-life, 10 year lithium battery, smoke alarms
- ❑ Make sure the electrical outlets are designed to handle appliance loads
- ❑ Install child safety plugs (caps) on electrical outlets
- ❑ Replace electrical cords that do no work properly, have loose connections or are frayed

Bedroom

- ❑ If you sleep with the door closed, install a smoke detector in the bedroom
- ❑ Turn off electric blankets & other electric appliances when not in use
- ❑ Do not smoke in bed

Bathroom

- ❑ Disconnect hot appliances such as curling irons & electric irons when done; store in a safe location until cool
- ❑ Keep flammable items such as towels away from wall & floor heaters

Garage

- ❑ Mount a fire extinguisher in the garage
- ❑ Install a solid core door with self-closing hinges between living areas and garage
- ❑ Dispose of oily rags in metal containers
- ❑ Store all combustibles away from ignition sources such as water heaters
- ❑ Disconnect electrical tools & appliances when not in use
- ❑ Allow hot tools such as glue guns and soldering irons to cool before storing

Roof

- ❑ Remove dead branches overhanging your roof
- ❑ Remove any branches within 10 feet of chimney
- ❑ Clean all dead leaves and needles from your roof and gutters
- ❑ Install a fire resistive roof that meets or exceeds your local ordinance
- ❑ Cover your chimney outlet & stovepipe with a nonflammable screen of 1/2 inch or smaller mesh

Landscape

- ❑ Create a "defensible space" by removing all flammable vegetation at least 30 to 100 feet, or to the property line, from all structures & replacing it with fire resistive plants
- ❑ On steep slopes, remove flammable vegetation out to 100 feet or more
- ❑ Space native trees and shrubs at least 10 feet apart
- ❑ For trees taller than 18 feet, prune lower branches within 6 feet of the ground
- ❑ Choose ornamental landscaping plants that are fire resistive
- ❑ Reduce the number of trees in heavily wooded areas
- ❑ Maintain all plants by regularly removing dead branches, leaves & needles
- ❑ Clear all vegetation & other flammable materials from under your deck. Enclose undersides of elevated decks with fire resistive materials
- ❑ Do not plant trees under power lines that grow taller than 20 to 25 feet at maturity

Yard

- ❑ Stack woodpiles at least 30 feet from all structures & clear away flammable vegetation within 10 feet of woodpiles
- ❑ Remove all stacks of construction materials, pine needles, eucalyptus bark, leaves & other debris from your yard

Access

- ❑ Identify at least 2 exit routes from your neighborhood
- ❑ Post clear road signs to show traffic restrictions such as dead-end roads, & weight and height limitations
- ❑ Make sure dead-end roads & long driveways have turn around areas wide enough for emergency vehicles
- ❑ Clear flammable vegetation at least 10 feet from roads and 5 feet from driveways. Cut back overhanging tree branches above roads
- ❑ Post your house address at the beginning of your driveway, or on your house if it is easily visible from the road
- ❑ Create easy fire fighter access to your closest fire hydrant

Outside

- ❑ Designate an emergency meeting place outside your home
- ❑ Practice emergency exit drills regularly
- ❑ Make sure that electric service lines, fuse boxes and circuit breaker panels are installed and maintained as prescribed by code
- ❑ Contact qualified individuals to perform electrical maintenance & repairs

CRAGMONT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL 644-8811

FROM THE LIBRARY

Many thanks to loyal volunteers: community member Rhoda Bunnell, for reading with students and shelving; Ian's grandmother, Louise Anderson, for helping third graders and shelving; instructional assistant Caroline Damerell, for replacing worn book covers; and especially Sam's mother, Lita Ramos-Perlberg, for five years of volunteering, doing anything necessary. Thanks also to those who donated new and used books to the library.

CARNIVAL KUDOS

Cragmont School thanks everyone who helped make this year's Carnival a success. Mill Dorntge and Jimmy Lyons headed the effort. Maria Kersey led many people in making pots on her pottery wheel. Jesse Anthony brought the Martin Luther Middle School band. John Burns brought students from Cuong Nhu Karate. The Caribbean Steel Band laid down a mellow groove that everyone got behind. Lita Ramos-Perlberg ran the Silent Auction and helped with food. Sharon Tyson and Sarah Martiniak also organized food. Rosa Vanegas organized the Mexican food. Cheryl Tanouye organized the games. Anne Armstrong arranged the parent participation. May Lynne Gill lead the quilt venture, with help by Wendy Snyder, Amy Brueggemeyer and Alix Barbey. Jeff Bartlett did the outreach publicity. Michele Dorntge arranged the photo-shoot activities. Mill Dorntge organized the entertainment. Marla Kane organized the tickets, money-handling and accounting. Tom and Frederika Horton, and Cheryl Tanouye organized the setup of Cowboy Town. Among the school staff, Jason Lustig bravely lent his head as a target for the Sponge Throw. Nancy Charlson graciously spent the day selling tickets. Mitchell MacClain (Mack) the custodian tirelessly kept all the facilities working properly.

Vendors who kindly donated food were Aidell Sausages, Grocery Outlet, La Val's Pizza, Monterey Market and Noah's Bagels. And of course many parents brought baked goods and other delicacies. Finally, thanks to all of the many other parent volunteers who were so good-spirited and helpful in putting on the Cragmont Spring Carnival.

BERKELEY UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT MEMORANDA

ITEMS IN THE B BUILDING

As of today, there is no information about what is to happen to return items to students and staff that are in the B Building. As soon as information is received, a message will be sent over the E-tree and the information will also be mailed to parents and students. If you have questions or concerns about items left in the B Building, please send principal Theresa Saunders a note or e-mail and let her know. She can be reached at <Theresa_Saunders@berkeley.k12.ca.us> Written documents can be given to Robbie Valentine, School Secretary in the Administrative Portable.

PARENT HELPERS NEEDED

Parent Volunteers are urgently needed to help with graduation rehearsals on Wednesday, June 14, 10 a.m. at the Donahue Gym at BHS and on Thursday, June 15 at 9:30 a.m. at the UC Berkeley Greek Theatre.

Parent volunteers are needed to assist with the distribution to students of the Master Schedule and teacher preference forms on Monday, June 12, from 12:30-1:30 p.m. Vice Principal Barcenas is the administrator in charge of this task.

Parent Volunteers are needed to work from their home computers (IBM or Mac). All teacher preferences must be entered on an internet site. This task can be performed at home on a computer. This job is essential if we are to have teacher preference. If you can volunteer to work approximately 8 to 10 hours total sometime between mid June and mid July (the task needs to be completed by mid July) on this easy at-home job, please contact Janet Huseby at <jhuseby@pacbell.net.> Please include your phone number in your response.

BUSD ADMINISTRATION 644-6504

INTERDISTRICT TRANSFER REQUESTS FOR 2000-01

The applications submitted by perspective BHS students who live out of district were destroyed in the B building fire. Although BUSD has a list of the students for whom applications were submitted, they have no contact info for these students. Currently BUSD is depending on word of mouth to inform these families that they need to bring in a Xerox of the original application packet--application for inter-district transfer signed by district of residence, recent report card, and student essay. For any questions, call Parent Access coordinator Helen Younger at 644-6504.

AN ADVERTISING FEATURE

The Cantina

4239 Park Blvd., Oakland
(510) 482-3073

Visualize the perfect Mexican Restaurant ... what would you create? Dishes are created with the freshest ingredients available, with cilantro and a variety of mild and hot peppers.

An extensive collection of hot sauces from around the world allow you to add your own special spice to make your meal truly your own. Margarita's are made to tickle your taste buds. Great luncheon specials, Monday thru Saturday; Hottest Happy Hour. Dine indoors or out.

Garibaldi's on College

5356 College Ave., near Manila
Oakland (510) 595-4000

The menu focuses on Mediterranean-California style food, from tantalizing appetizers (sautéed asparagus with pancetta, grilled portobello mushroom) to perfectly done entrees (wood oven roasted chicken, paella inspired seafood risotto), and a rich dessert of warm chocolate pudding-cake, espresso ice cream and toasted nuts.

First-rate wood-fired pizzas and cold tapas style dishes make this a great place for sharing, and a semi-private dining room is perfect for larger groups. Wheelchair accessible.

Kimball's East

Emerybay Public Market,
Emeryville (510) 658-2555

La Creme de la Creme

5362 College Ave., Oakland
(510) 420-8822

Chefs at La Creme de La Creme have prepared a special menu in celebration of Spring.

The special menu features an Early Bird Prix-Fix menu of 3 courses for just $20.00 per person. It includes soup or salad, choice of entrees: Roast spring lamb with mint jelly or petrale sole with lemon butter sauce, vanilla ice-cream with hot chocolate or caramel sauce and a free glass of house wine.

Please make reservations early at (510) 420-8622 and enjoy this spectacular menu in our garden patio.

Rockridge Steak Bistro

Sergio's Trattoria

5299 College Ave., Oakland
(510) 655-2869

Now celebrating its 5th year anniversary on College Avenue, Sergio's Trattoria is a neighborhood landmark.

Sergio's features hearty pastas and entrees. Don't miss the anti pastas and desserts. Most customers can relive their trips to Italy here. Without personality in the dining room, this would be just another Italian restaurant. Open 5 p.m. to 10:30 p.m

Tsing Tao

1479 Solano Ave., Berkeley
(510) 526-6223

A fixture on Solano Avenue for over twenty years, Tsing Tao offers a varied menu. Speciality orders can be prepared with 24-hour advance notice. Over 25 luncheon specials are offered from four to six dollars. Open 11:30 - 9:30, M-Th; 11:30- 10:30 F & Sat.; 12:30 - 9:30 Sun

Walker's Restaurant & Pie Shop

1491 Solano Ave., Albany
(510) 525-4647

Our favorite homestyle restaurant on Solano is now open for Sunday breakfast. This is a first for Walker's and has been long awaited. Breakfast will be served from 9 a.m to 1 p.m. Many of the classic favorites will be served: French toast, omelettes, the "Grand Daddy" and as always, delicious one-of-a-kind pies. Walker's opens back up again at 4 p.m. on Sunday afternoon with a return to the regular menu. Walkers is a true East Bay landmark serving the same scrumptious food and delectable pies for 35 years in real homestyle comfort

Keane on Wheels

Tiny Toyota 2000 MR2 Spyder is big on excitement

MOTOR MATTERS

TOYOTA 2000 MR2 SPYDER is powered by a mid-mounted, 1.8-liter, four-cylinder, DOHC, 16-valve multiport EFI with an aluminum block and aluminum alloy head. Larger people may not be able to get in and out of this car easily.

First, the good news. Toyota's 2000 MR2 Spyder is a fun-to-drive, mid-engine roadster designed for driving enthusiasts. We'll get to the bad news later.

A Toyota spokesperson explains it this way: "This two-seat, mid-engine, soft-top roadster is simple and functional and a blast to drive." He also touts its price: $23,098.

I totally agree with his comments. My observations include such words as eye-catching and cute. That's one reason this car gets so much attention; its diminutive size puts it in the "cute" category. The overall length is only 153 inches. In addition, the designers used clever body lines, causing most people to stop and give it their once-over.

Unfortunately, any car that's remarkably small has a drawback — getting in and out of it. People of large proportions should not even think of trying. As for me, I sort of slithered into the seat and struggled every time I got out. But once I got behind the wheel, the enjoyment of this little sports car was immense.

There aren't too many mid-engine cars worldwide. Most of them are upscale expensive vehicles, such as the Ferrari and Lamborghini. The Porsche Boxster also features a convertible top, but it is almost twice the price.

A mid-engine is located just behind the seats and slightly in front of the rear axle. One reason mid-engine cars are exciting to drive is they are extremely well balanced; over-steering or under-steering is much less likely to occur.

Balance allows making sharp, flat turns with virtually no lean or sway. In addition, the Spyder has a strong suspension system, comparatively long wheelbase, and a wide track. Since it is built so close to the ground, it would be very difficult to roll it over. If I wanted to make a 90-degree turn, I'd simply turn the steering wheel regardless of my speed. That's an exaggeration, but you get the idea.

Speed in this roadster is twofold: actual and imaginative. Because the engine is right behind the driver, every brumm-brumm coming from the engine compartment is heard loud and clear, resulting in an exciting pulsation. For example, traveling at 20 mph and accelerating to 40 mph, the brumm-brumm of the engine could actually be felt against my back, triggering a stir within my mind. Accelerating from 20 mph to 90 mph, the stirring is exhilarating. In reality, however, this is not a powerful car; it just feels that way.

The Spyder is powered by a 1.8-liter, four-cylinder, DOHC, 16-valve multiport EFI with an aluminum block and aluminum alloy head. The MR2 produces only 138 horsepower and 125 lb-ft of torque, but the curb weight is a mere 2,195 pounds. Steering is quick and precise,

Drive, She Said

By Denise McCluggage

Slaughter on the highways can be a two-way street

Cadillac's Night Vision allows a driver to see an animal that is farther down the road than the car's headlights will shine. It's a marvelous idea, but what about the drivers that don't have such technological advantages?

The fact is, although deer are killed by hunters throughout the country, more are killed by cars and trucks. Not only deer are slaughtered, but other animals, both wild and domestic, become road-kill statistics.

The carnage, however, is not one-sided. People are also injured or killed in vehicular collisions with animals, particularly with the larger ones. A moose, a horse or a bull will cause extreme damage when in direct confrontation with most cars, even if there is no collision with an animal. There is no way to determine the number of accidents caused by a driver's imprudent but almost reflexive swerving when an animal — whether chipmunk, dog or deer — darts into the road.

But there are ways to reduce the risks of hitting an animal. One is to avoid fixing your attention at one set distance on the roadway alone. Scan. Let your eyes move from near to far distances regularly.

Try developing greater awareness. In the country, keep an eye on the fields and roadside, as well as the road ahead. In the city, take extra precaution near yards and playgrounds where a little dog may be chasing a ball.

Cultivate peripheral vision. The corner of your eye is particularly adept at discerning motion. Learning to trust it can buy you precious reaction time.

And notice your surroundings. With woods on one side of the road and water on the other, animals can be expected to cross your path, particularly in the evening or early morning.

Flick your lights up and down as you drive through high risk areas. Fixed beams can freeze animals into immobility. Altering the beam periodically might break that hypnotic effect.

Keep an eye out for the "Deer Crossing" signs. Understand they mark a general area, not an exact path.

Carry alertness with you. Be aware that deer are social creatures — if you see one there are probably others. And deer love suburbia where people plant succulent shrubs and flowers.

Understand that "Open Range" signs mean no fences. Cattle roam freely and move slowly. They could be in the middle of the road around the next bend.

On the other hand, fences are not infallible. If you spot a cow or a horse grazing in the ditch while others are behind a fence, assume there is a break somewhere and other animals might be loose.

(A neighborly act is to find the nearest farm house and report where you saw the stock. You'll lose time, but you might save a life.)

Here are other points to keep in mind: Wear your seat belt and shoulder harness always.

Adjust your speed to suit high-risk areas. Leave a bigger cushion of space between your car and the one you are following.

The driver ahead might brake suddenly for an animal you cannot see.

On straight country roads with no traffic, drive in the middle of the road. Placing yourself in the middle puts more room between the passenger's side of your car and the road's edge.

You get a better view, a split second more to react to an animal's sudden appearance, and more room for dodging.

That brings up a critical matter. Dodging, swerving — evasive maneuvers of any kind — can upset the balance of your car, wrest it from your control, and cause you to crash.

Meanwhile the tiny critter you avoided has high-tailed it to safety.

Driving experts advise: "Do not swerve to avoid a small animal." They say hit the animal instead of risking hitting another car or overturning yours. (Big animals are not in this category.)

But what if you react reflexively?

A small animal bolts into your path — tail high, legs stretched, fleeing with every ounce of strength — and you automatically swerve before you remember the experts' advice.

If that happens, immediately counter-swerve.

The instant your brain has registered that you have cranked the wheel to avoid an animal, crank the wheel back the other way!

Do not wait to see if you have missed the animal.

Do not wait at all. Counter-steer immediately.

In counter-steering instantly you will put your car back under control before control is really lost.

And, too, it is likely — in your car's brief divergence from its path — it will have missed the animal that prompted the swerve.

and shifting through the short-throw, five-speed manual transmission adds to the enjoyment.

This little tyke gets decent fuel economy: 25 city and 30 highway. But the highway mileage didn't entice me because I couldn't go on a distant trip in this car — which is the bad news.

Suppose two people wanted to toss the canvas top down and get away for the weekend. There simply isn't any place to store an overnight suitcase. There is only enough room to store an attache case. Golf clubs? No way. The same applies to grocery shopping.

With a passenger aboard, one grocery bag is the maximum. What the Toyota designers were thinking of, I don't know, but they weren't thinking of people who travel or go grocery shopping.

The designers seem bent on one purpose: making an affordable, exciting little car for having fun. To that end, they hit the nail right on the head.

MOTOR MATTERS

DKW SONDERKLASSE: 5.60 x 15-inch tires, three-cylinder, two-cycle, 54 3/4-cubic-inch engine, ...-speed transmission, top speed 80 mph (though the speedometer registers speeds up to 100 mph).

Owner believes good omen led him to 1958 DKW

By Vern Parker

...ked in York, Pa., I had a 1957 ... Schrom said. He recalls ...ading for the very used Ger... car and happily driving it dur... concrete-free high school days, al... remembering to mix oil with ... gasoline.

...ar's untimely end came one ... when Schrom's father happened ...following him in traffic. Notic... all four wheels were wobbling, ...ordered the car junked. Still, ...served its purpose

...ades later, Schrom stopped by ...ague's office and was im... by a framed picture of an ...ck. "Yeah, that's my old car," ...league said. Schrom volun... that he, too, would like an old ...perhaps a Ford or Chevrolet ...the muscle-car era. However, ...didn't know how to go about it.

...om's colleague handed him ... copy of Hemmings Motor ... a telephone book-size list... anything to do with antique ...Hemmings Motor News is pub... primarily with the unchal... dream "The bible" of the col... hobby.

...e next weekend, Schrom ...ed at the publication with mus... in mind. Instead, the book ...ed to a page with a single pic... illustrating a 1958 DKW Son... for sale. He took that as ...n and decided to follow up ...telephone call. The caller had already decided that if the car were too far away from Virginia, or if it were in poor condition he would just forget about it.

Schrom didn't stand a chance. A radiologist on Long Island, N.Y., had recently restored the car and along with the deal came a dismantled parts car (just in case).

Upon learning of all the details, Schrom's wife, Jenny, urged her reluctant husband to go for it. "It was out of character for him," she says, "but I knew he would like it." The deal was consummated on the telephone in the summer of 1990.

On Mother's Day that year the Schroms rented a van and drove to Long Island. With the parts from the parts car packed in the van, she drove the van behind the DKW with him at the two-spoke white steering wheel. They left Long Island headed for home with the rack and pinion steering giving a positive feel.

With the little 5.60x15-inch tires on the DKW singing a happy tune, Schrom was marveling at what phenomenal gasoline mileage the DKW was delivering. Here they were in New Jersey and the gas gauge still read full. With a cough and a sputter the DKW gave up the ghost at the same time Schrom figured out that the gas gauge did not work.

Leaving the disabled DKW by the side of the road, the Schroms drove the chase van to a nearby garage to seek help, While telling the owner of the garage their tale of woe, they were surprised to see their DKW go by on the hook of a tow truck. The garage owner knew the tow truck operator and, after a quick call, the DKW was returned and dropped off at the garage.

> The book fell open to a page with a single picture ad illustrating a 1958 DKW Sonderklasse for sale. He took that as an omen and decided to follow up with a telephone call.

Not expecting the garage owner to know much about three-cylinder, two-cycle engines, Schrom was astonished to learn that he had built race cars using that very engine. After a night in a nearby motel, the Schroms were delighted to discover their DKW was once more roadworthy. They continued on home with no further trouble.

On the gas cap is the two-step reminder in German: I — Oel, II — Benzine. The Solex downdraft carburetor feeds fuel to the 54 3/4-cubic-inch engine from the 12-gallon gas tank. The 40-horsepower engine is kept lubricated with 2.5-quarts of oil. The radiator, which is mounted behind the engine, circulates nine quarts of coolant. A six-blade fan circulates air through the radiator.

Schrom has since learned his sporty DKW delivers 27 mpg. The car with a Saxomat four-speed transmission reportedly has a top speed of 80 mph, even though the speedometer registers speeds up to 100 mph.

"My colleagues at NASA can't believe I bought such an odd little car," Schrom says. "As for me, it's a dream come true."

Jaguar begins featuring aluminum in its high-end models

Use points to automaker's high-tech touch

LONDON-Making a bid to put a high-tech touch on its brand, Jaguar will begin using aluminum in at least one of its high-end models.

The next-generation XJ series sedan will feature an aluminum unibody.

The unibody will be held together about 2,000 rivets, bonded with an adhesive and then heat-treated for rigidity.

Jaguar plans to build the large sedan in March 2002 at its Browns Lane factory in England. Production targets call for fewer than 30,000 cars annually.

The use of aluminum will cut the weight of the new XJ by approximately 441 pounds over the current model.

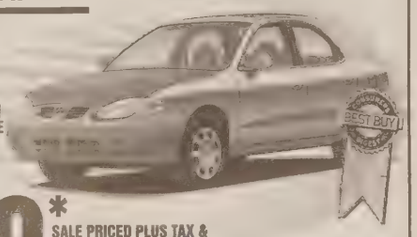

Sources also say Jaguar is also contemplating using aluminum for its F-type sports car and possibly even its XK series.

Both Jaguar and aluminum industry sources say the project has the approval of Jac (cq) Nasser, Ford Motor Company CEO.

BIOTECHNOLOGY

Sr. Associate Scientist
Scientist
Molecular Technologies

From its founding in 1865, Bayer Corporation has developed into one of the most broadly based healthcare firms in the United States The Bayer Center for Biotechnology in Berkeley, CA is responsible for the discovery production, and preclinical development of novel biopharmaceuticals that address highly unmet medical needs These agents are developed together with the worldwide Bayer organization, offering you the opportunity to join a global team whose values are linked directly to our patients and to the lives of future generations

The successful candidate will participate in the generation and execution of structure-function studies of protein-protein interactions and its application to the engineering of novel properties in native proteins. These studies will be conducted with considerable independence, but also with collaboration with project teams and other laboratory members. Technical applications of molecular biology, mutagenesis, phage display, and biological or biochemical assays will drive the experiment approach.

Requires a degree in Molecular Biology, Biochemistry or related discipline. Demonstrated expertise in molecular biological techniques, protein biochemistry, and phage display is required, in particular with application to the relation of ligand/receptor interactions. Eukaryotic cell biology expertise is desirable Excellent written and oral communication skills are essential

It's time to grill up that king of the grate: a nice tasty steak

By Reagan Walker
COX NEWS SERVICE

By now, the grill has been pulled from its winter cover and scrubbed. Some backyard chefs have already smoked theirs up a few times, grilling ribs or burgers and maybe some fish.

Memorial Day weekend was the official coronation of the grilling season, so it's time to enjoy the king of the grate — the steak.

"Beef is still the meat of choice," said Tom Perini, author of "Texas Cowboy Cooking" (Time Life Books, $24.95). "And if it's a special occasion, then it's got to be steak."

Perini would be a bit partial. For years, he's operated the Perini Ranch Steakhouse in Buffalo Gap, Texas, which is about 15 miles south of Abilene.

"Just get on I-20 and head west," he urged in a recent interview, as if driving halfway across the country is nothing when there's a good steak waiting at the end of the road.

In fact, folks from Dallas often make the three-and-one-half-hour trek for his beef. He started as a rancher, developed cooking skills operating chuckwagons for his cows and then quit ranching and started cooking full time.

His reputation sizzled as each steak was served. He's cooked for Texas Gov. George W. Bush and taken his chuckwagon kitchen on the road to special events across the country and across the ocean to Japan.

The secret to great steaks? Great meat, for starters. Perini recommends USDA prime or choice meats for grilling. Prime is the top grade, but "choice is really fine for home cooks.

> "The ribeye is my personal favorite for grilling because of the marbling of fat. Some marbling is important for flavor."
> Tom Perini, author, "Texas Cowboy Cooking"

That's (the best possible grade) most will find in their grocery stores," Perini advised. Look for cuts of beef labeled USDA choice, which are sometimes pre-packaged but often kept at the meat counters of finer grocery stores.

Next, choose a cut that grills well. "The sirloin is an excellent family steak. You can cook two — one at medium rare, one at medium — cut up and serve," Perini suggests.

"And the ribeye is my personal favorite for grilling because of the marbling of fat. Some marbling is important for flavor." Perini also recommends the porterhouse/T-bone cuts, both of which have a loin and a tenderloin side separated by bone. (The porterhouse will have a bit more meat on the tenderloin side than the T-bone.)

Perini doesn't like flank steaks or round steaks because they demand some attention ahead of time (for marinating). He prefers a quick rub and then to the grill.

But for many, a marinated chuck, round or flank steak can be an economical crowd pleaser.

"They can be very juicy or tender, but they do require a different type of cooking than a ribeye or loin," said Jennifer Dunn, nutritionist and spokeswoman for the Georgia Beef Board.

"If you marinate them for four to six hours, it will break down some of the connective tissue and make them more tender. And they can be full of flavor."

The difference in cost may be worth the extra effort. A quick check of prices on webvan.com showed top round steaks and flank steaks ranging from $3.77 a pound to $4.57 a pound. The cost for a New York strip was $6.27 a pound and for a ribeye $6.87 a pound.

Thickness also is important. Dunn did a master's degree research project on how the thickness of steak affects cooking.

She prefers a 1-inch thickness; superthin steaks are likely to be overcooked, and a very thick steak can take a while and be trickier to cook evenly.The debates over charcoal, wood or gas apply to steak as to anything else. Perini prefers wood, but no matter what's used, it's important to start with an even heat that's fairly high so the meat will sear.

But not too high, unless you like black char on the outside and cold meat in the center.

"Go with a medium-high heat. Place your hand three inches above the coals. If you can keep it there five seconds without pulling back, you're ready," said Dunn.

Both Perini and Dunn warn that the most common mistake is overcooking. "When you start cooking a steak above medium, you are in harm's way," said Perini. The harm, of course, is not a food safety concern, but rather a flavor concern.

Steaks cooked past medium become tough and dry. There are tips for getting it right — but the best advice is to practice, practice, practice. (Using a meat thermometer can really help eliminate the guesswork.) Pull the steak off the grill before it's perfect.

"If it's perfect on the grill, then it will be overdone when you are ready to eat it." Perini said. That's because of "hangover heat," as the cowboy describes it.

The heat from the exterior is going to continue to cook the interior. A steak can cook another five degrees once it's pulled off the grill.

So the final step — and do not overlook this — is to let the steak rest five to 10 minutes before serving. It completes cooking and allows the juices to come together.

Inside, we share Perini's steak rub, along with methods for cooking several cuts of steaks and pairings with delicious marinades, sauces, condiments and sides."Don't be afraid to grill steaks. Enjoy it," Perini urges. "And always cook a little extra. Cold leftover steak is great for sandwiches and salads."

The five secrets of making a great steak

1. Buy prime- or choice-grade meats.
2. Marinate tougher cuts.
3. Cook over an even, medium-high heat.
4. Pull steak off the heat just before it reaches desired temperature.
5. Let it rest 5 to 10 minutes before serving.

Perfectly done steaks make for sizzling summer treats

By Reagan Walker
COX NEWS SERVICE

How can you tell if a steak on the grill is done?

"Just make a little cut in it and peek," suggests Mumbo Jumbo chef Shaun Doty. "It's OK to do that. Really. Just don't make too many cuts or it will end up looking like Freddy Krueger," he advised, referring to the horror film character in "Nightmare on Elm Street."

His advice serves a larger purpose — to remind home cooks to relax and use a little common sense when grilling steak.

Witness the information on cooking times below. There are a number of ways to tell, from exact (meat thermometer) to thereabouts (the thumb test). Experiment with them all and see which way works best for you.

Same goes for the turning rule. Most recipes and directions advise turning only once for all but the largest cuts. I probably always turn twice, searing both sides and then moving the steak to a bit lower heat to finish cooking.

Works for me. You'll know what works for you when you get the "perfect" steak by your standards. The trick is to pay attention while you are grilling, and then jot down what you did.

We give you plenty of scrumptious steak ideas below to aid in your summer research project. So get sizzling.

How to tell if steak is done

There's so much advice out there on how to tell if a steak is "done," it's enough to make your brains sizzle. Seems the easiest way is simply to get a meat thermometer — 140 degrees for rare, 160 degrees for medium and 170 for well-done.

Remember the steak will continue cooking for a few minutes after it comes off the grill. I like to take the steak off when it registers 145 degrees so that the final cooking temperature will be about 150 degrees, somewhere between medium-rare and medium. Instant-read meat thermometers can be picked up at most grocery stores for just a few bucks.

Or maybe you'd prefer a Thermafork, which is a battery-operated steak fork with a light that will read medium-rare, medium, etc. We spotted them at Bed, Bath and Beyond for $9.99.

Many experienced cooks can tell when the steak is ready by touch. One guide is to touch your index finger to your thumb, forming an O.

Turn palm side up and, with a finger of your other hand, feel the firmness of the thumb muscle by poking at the base of the thumb. This is what a raw or barely cooked steak will feel like.

Now, touch the other three fingers to the thumb one at a time and notice how the thumb muscle firms up. The middle finger is rare, the ring finger is medium-rare and the pinkie is medium to well-done. A inexact method, but one some pros swear by.

Time charts also can be helpful, but they are only a guide. Below, we provide the chart from Weber grills, found at www.weberbbq.com. But as Weber points out, the guide is based on a 70-degree day with no wind. How often do we have those in the Bay Area? Certainly not in June. So that's why all cooking times on charts are approximate.

And of course, the time varies greatly, depending on the heat of the grill. Try the hand test — it's ready when you can leave your hand 3 inches above the heat for 4-5 seconds before pulling away.

Tom Perini, author of "Texas Cowboy Cooking" (TimeLife Books, $24.95) offers this take on the different cuts of steak.

Flank/London broil: A popular cut, but can be very fibrous and tough if not properly prepared. It's best to marinate, to tenderize and season. Better not cooked rare or well-done. Slice across the grain.

T-bone/porterhouse: A classic cut of steak that's a little like having two steaks in one. There's a bone running down the middle, and on one side you have the strip and on the other the filet. There is some fat and flavor around the bone, while the

Carmel's Hog's Breath Inn hosts a truly grand opening

Clint Eastwood's former restaurant staged a June 5 opening gala for local waiter hyped by a stroke

CARMEL —Restaurateur Kasier Morcus, the new owner of Clint Eastwood's former restaurant and bar in the quaint village of Carmel-by-the-Sea, hosted a Grand Opening gala last Monday for Ermie Os-[illegible], a local waiter felled by stroke in April.

Ozan is a longtime hospitality worker in Carmel and a favorite of diners at The Pine Inn and The Mission Ranch. The Hog's Breath Inn granted admission to 100 for the buffet dinner. Diners paid $100 for their tickets.

"One hundred percent of the entire price will go to Ermie. People will come in and see that we have a fine Hog's Breath true to its old form, have fun and do some good for a cause at the same time," Morcus said.

Kaiser Morcus also operates the Kaiser Grille, celebrity restaurants in Palm Springs and Palm Desert, California.

The Hog's Breath Inn had been closed for 13 months. "A substantial number of customers are out-of-town visitors who know the Hog's Breath reputation, but haven't followed it," [illegible] closely," said Morcus.

In 1999 Clint Eastwood's operating partner Maxie Becker, widow of the co-founder of the Hog's Breath, Walter Becker, had tired of the demands of restaurant management. The restaurant, hidden down a narrow walkway off San Carlos Street near Fifth Avenue, was shuttered; ghosts of good times were still in place.

Locals and frequent visitors mourned the passing of an era made famous by former mayor, actor-director Clint Eastwood's professional and political triumphs. One visitors service continued to clock over 7,000 requests for directions to the Hog's Breath Inn per year.

The restaurant, founded in 1972, frequented often by Eastwood, combined small town graciousness with big consciousness as America transitioned through several cultural epochs, including the war in Vietnam, Watergate, disco music, the fall of Communism and the emergence of the Internet. The continuity of service was itself unusual in a rapidly changing society. The fact that "Dirty Harry" was the co-owner made The Hog's Breath's survival all the more satisfying somehow. Once closed, on April Fools Day 1999, the spirit of the place lived on though the restaurant was dark.

Kaiser Morcus has done more than perform CPR on The Hog's Breath Inn. He wisely retained the low ceiling interior and walled garden. The outdoor bar is re-roofed in identical shakes with the old. The two story outdoor mural remains. Three open air fireplaces continue to warm against the nearby Pacific's evening chill. The ambiance is not tinkered with. Morcus, though, is known for a high-quality operation, and his focus on the menu makes the new Hog's Breath Inn more than a picture to send home.

In his restaurant food is the star. The new menu is serious without pretension, Ahi Furikake being an example. The Morcus treatment is fresh Ahi steak Black Pepper seasoned, seared rare, (cool in the center) Pineapple-Ginger Coconut Wasabi sauce, Chef's rice, crispy sweet potatoes and Furikake (nori sesame garnish).

Locals and frequent visitors mourned the passing of an era made famous by former mayor, actor-director Clint Eastwood's professional and political triumphs. One visitors service continued to clock over 7,000 requests for directions to the Hog's Breath Inn per year.

A bar menu, served from 3 - 11 p.m. will again have a lot of appeal for strolling visitors to Carmel. Most items are less than $10 and all are something to write home about, for instance, Humongous Fungus, an appetizer of Broiled Portabello Mushroom, marinated in wine, herbs and garlic, topped with caramelized onions, roasted garlic and gorgonzola, Marsala sauce and toasted leeks.

Kaiser Morcus is aware he has taken possession of a piece of property sacred in the annals of "attitude."

He is also conscious that Carmel is a destination visited by millions, but also hometown to families, workers and young people.

As did his predecessor, Morcus intends to continue support of community needs.

steaks themselves are lean. Look for a good 1 1/2 inch thickness.

Strip/top loin: The strip is a lean cut from the top loin that's quite popular. Because it has less marbling, it also can have less flavor. A great choice for those watching fat content. Usually sold an inch thick or more.

Sirloin: A larger cut of steak with wonderful flavor because the bone is in. Cooks nicely on the grill, then can be divided into smaller servings or sliced, so it's nice for a family.

Ribeye: A cut with quite a bit of marbling (and Perini's favorite for the grill). It's really the same cut as the prime rib, only it's cut into steak for the grill (instead of roasted and sliced). The marbling gives flavor and tenderness.

Tenderloin/filet mignon: Cut from the tenderloin, the filet is the leanest cut of meat. It takes a little longer to cook because it's the thickest cut. Because of the leaness, it can lack flavor, which is why they are often wrapped in bacon. For cooking medium-well or well-done, butterfly the steak first.

MAIN-DISH SALAD

Beef and Romaine Salad With Blue Cheese and Anchovy Dressing

Makes 6 servings Preparation time: 20 minutes

Steak and blue cheese have a surprisingly wonderful affinity for each other; the tart greens and tomatoes help cut their richness.

A great way to use up leftover steak, it's also impressive enough to serve for company.

For the dressing:

4 anchovy fillets
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar or balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped fresh oregano or 1 teaspoon dried
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/3 cup extra-virgin olive oil

For the salad:

1 large head romaine lettuce, washed, outer bruised leaves removed and discarded, remaining leaves torn into small pieces
2 vine-ripened tomatoes, cut lengthwise into wedges
4 ounces blue cheese, such as Danish blue, Maytag blue or Roquefort, crumbled
1/2 to 1 pound cooked steak or roast beef, cut into 1/4-inch-by-1-inch strips
Chopped chives or green onions

To make the dressing: Put garlic and anchovies in a food processor and process to a paste. Add mustard, vinegar, oregano and pepper. With the motor running, pour the oil through the feed tube to make a creamy dressing.

For the salad: Pour dressing over the romaine and tomatoes and toss with the cheese to coat the leaves. Lay the beef strips on top and garnish with chives or green onions; serve.

MAIN DISH

Bloody Mary London Broil

Makes 6 servings Preparation time: 15 minutes Marinating time: 30 minutes Cooking time: 15 minutes

Although usually flank steak, the term London broil can be used for any thin cut of meat that is broiled or grilled and sliced on the diagonal, or bias.

2 cups tomato juice
1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce

3 tablespoons prepared commercial horseradish
3 tablespoons dry sherry, vodka or pepper vodka
2 teaspoons crumbled, dried marjoram
1 teaspoon crumbled dried basil
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
3 1/2 pounds London broil, about 1 1/2 inches thick, trimmed
Vegetable oil cooking spray

Stir together tomato juice, Worcestershire sauce, horseradish, sherry, marjoram, basil and pepper in a small bowl.

Place steak in a single layer in a glass or ceramic dish. Spoon the tomato juice mixture over the meat, spreading to cover. Turn the meat to coat the other side. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours or set aside at room temperature for no longer than 30 minutes.

Prepare a charcoal or gas grill. Lightly spray the grill rack with vegetable oil cooking spray. The coals should be moderately hot to hot.

Lift the meat from the marinade. Discard the marinade. Grill the steak for 8 minutes. Turn the steak and grill for 7 to 10 minutes longer for medium-rare, or until it reaches desired doneness.

Let the steak rest at room temperature for about 5 minutes before slicing on the diagonal into thin strips. — From: "Prime Time: The Lobels' Guide to Great Grilled Meats" by Evan, Leon, Stanley and Mark Lobel (MacMillan, 1999)

Preparation time: 5 minutes
Cooking time: 8 minutes

This T-bone put Florence, Italy, on the steak map. For the authentic taste, a fire of wood and vine cuttings is best; charcoal will do; gas is out. In Italy, this steak is usually served in solitary splendor, with only bread at hand for mopping up the juices.

4 T-bone steaks (about 12 ounces each), cut 3/4 inch thick
1/4 cup olive oil
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
2 lemons, each cut into 8 wedges

Remove steaks from the refrigerator and allow them to come to room temperature. Trim any excess fat, pat dry and coat lightly with olive oil.

Preheat grill or prepare a hot charcoal fire. Place steaks on grill.

Cook to sear one side, 2 minutes. Turn and season the cooked side with salt and pepper. Sear the second side for 3 minutes. Turn, season the second side with salt and pepper and continue cooking until the steak is well-crusted and medium-rare, about 3 minutes more.

(A Tuscan never would cook Fiorentina to medium, but if you must, lengthen the final stage to 4 or 5 minutes.)

Transfer the steaks to large plates or platters, garnish with lemon wedges and serve. — From: "Steak Lover's Cookbook" by William Rice (Workman, 1997)

GRILLED GIANT PORTERHOUSE

Serven With Sherry-Shallot Vinaigrette

Makes 6 servings Preparation time: 10 minutes.

Cooking time: 14-16 minutes

Garlic, sherry and shallots combine for a lovely steak sauce that's great on grilled veggies, too.

2 porterhouse steaks (about 1 1/2 pounds each), cut 1 1/2-inches thick
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 shallots, chopped
1 tablespoon minced garlic
1 1/2 tablespoons dry sherry
1 1/2 tablespoons sherry vinegar
1/3 cup extra-virgin olive oil
Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Prepare the coals for grilling.

Allow the steaks to come to room temperature; pat dry and coat both sides with olive oil. Set aside.

Combine the mustard, shallots and garlic in a small bowl. Whisk in the sherry and the sherry vinegar. Pouring slowly, whisk the oil into the shallot mixture. Season with salt and pepper and set aside.

When the fire is hot enough for you to hold your hand at grill level for only 5 seconds, place the steak on the grill and sear one side until nicely browned, about 3 minutes. Turn and sear the second side for 3 minutes. Move the steak, to keep the tenderloin away from the most intense heat, cover the grill and cook for 3 minutes. Then turn and move the steak again. Season the steak with salt and cover the grill. Cook for 3 minutes, turn it, season with salt. Cook, covered, for 2 minutes more for medium-rare or 5 minutes more for medium.

Transfer to a cutting board and let the steak rest for 5 minutes. Remove the bone and carve the meat into 3/4-inch-thick slices. Stir the sauce and, if desired, heat it briefly in the microwave. Divide the meat among warm plates, spoon the sauce over and serve. — From: "Steak Lover's Cookbook"

A tender, crisp temptation: pizza on the grill

By Kathy Martin
CONTRA COSTA TIMES

...story of a grilled pizza is the ...ust, so keep the top- ...e and spare. ...ter a scant handful of corn- ...evenly over two cookie sheets. ...cookie sheets should have no sides so that you can slide the dough off onto the grill; if yours have sides, turn them upside down and use the bottoms. A wooden bread peel works even better.)

Divide the dough into two portions, and form each into a ball. Working with one ball at a time, place it on a lightly floured surface and use a rolling pin to roll it into a circle that's about 8 inches across.

(The dough will spring back at first; let it rest a few minutes to relax the gluten and roll again.)

Lightly dust your hands with flour. Grasp the dough by the edge, pick it up and "walk" your hands around it, rotating the circle and stretching it as you go.

When you have stretched it into a circle that's 12 to 14 inches across, lay it on one of prepared cookie sheets.

(Don't worry if the shape is irregular.) If holes appear in the dough, pinch them closed. Repeat with the remaining dough.

Jiggle the cookie sheets back and forth to make sure the dough slides freely (the cornmeal acts like tiny ball bearings); if it sticks anywhere, lift it up and scatter a little more cornmeal underneath.

Place topping ingredients and necessary implements (tongs, spoon, brush) next to the grill.Tilt the pan

Don't forget the dough

Bread flour contains more gluten, which gives pizza dough more structure, but all-purpose flour will work. You can add cornmeal for extra crunch; the dough should be on the wet side to produce a really crisp crust. To save kneading time, use a mixer with a dough-hook attachment or a heavy-duty food processor, following manufacturer's instructions.

PIZZA DOUGH

½ cup hot water
1 package active dry yeast
Pinch of sugar
2 ¼ teaspoons kosher salt
Extra-virgin olive oil
¼ cup cornmeal
2 ¾ cups bread flour or all-purpose flour

Combine the milk and water in a large bowl (mixture should be lukewarm). Add the yeast and sugar; set it aside for a few minutes until the yeast foams. Stir in the salt, 1 tablespoon oil and the corn meal. Gradually stir in the flour, forming a soft dough. Turn it out onto a lightly floured work surface; knead until smooth and shiny, about 10 minutes.

Wash the bowl in cold, soapy water (hot water makes the dough stick); dry it well. Coat the bowl lightly with oil; add the dough.

Cover the bowl tightly with a piece of lightly oiled plastic wrap (or a clean plastic shower cap) and set it aside to rise for about 2 hours, until double in bulk. Punch down the dough.

over the hot grill and slide the dough on, guiding it with tongs; it will immediately firm up and begin to bubble. (Pop any big bubbles with the tip of the tongs.) Cook the dough until it is lightly browned and has grill marks on the bottom, about 4 minutes. (Lift the dough with tongs from time to time to make sure it's not burning; reduce the heat or slide it to a cooler spot if it is.)

Flip the crust over and add half the topping ingredients, in this order: Brush on olive oil, scatter on garlic, sprinkle on cheeses, dab on tomato sauce (do not coat crust completely) and sprinkle on basil.

(If you'd rather not work over the hot grill, flip the dough over and let it cook for about 30 seconds, just to set the bottom. Then slide it back onto the cookie sheet — well-cooked side up — carry it into the kitchen, add toppings there and return it to the grill.)

Once pizza is topped, put grill cover in place and cook until cheese melts and bottom crust is browned and crisp, about 4 minutes. Repeat with second pizza. Makes two pizzas, four main-dish servings

Proceed with the pizza recipe, or cover tightly and refrigerate for up to 24 hours. Makes enough for two large or four small pizzas (four main-dish servings).

The glory of a grilled pizza is the tender-crisp crust, so keep the toppings simple and spare.

But don't skimp on quality; use real Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, and check the specialty-cheese case at the supermarket for imported or premium domestic mozzarella and provolone (smoked provolone is good). Skip the pre-shredded mozzarella; Carole suggests putting the cheese in the freezer for 15 minutes to firm it up and then shredding it with a food processor.

BALSAMIC-GLAZED STRIP STEAK

Makes 4 servings
Preparation time: 5 minutes
Marinating: at least 3 hours
Cooking time: 12 minutes

There are debates about whether to salt a steak before or after cooking. The concern is that salt can drain the juices from the meat. Here, the salt comes at the end of cooking. But most chefs we asked said it's OK to salt ahead, but just a moment before the meat goes on the grill.

3/4 cup balsamic vinegar
1/2 cup olive oil
3 plump garlic cloves, chopped
4 (14- to 16-ounce) strip steaks, about 1 1/2 inches thick, at least choice grade
Kosher salt or other coarse salt
Freshly ground black pepper
Sprigs of fresh herbs such as rosemary, sage, thyme or parsley.

At least 2 1/2 hours and up to 6 hours before you grill the steaks, combine vinegar, oil and garlic in a medium bowl. Place steaks in a plastic bag or shallow dish, pour marinade over them and refrigerate. Turn occasionally.

Fire up the grill for a two-level fire capable of cooking first on high heat (1 to 2 seconds with the hand test), then on medium heat (4 to 5 seconds with the hand test). Remove steaks from refrigerator and drain, straining the marinade into a small, nonreactive saucepan. Let the steaks sit uncovered at room temperature for 30 minutes. Bring marinade to a boil over medium-high heat and boil vigorously until reduced to 1/2 cup syrupy glaze. Blot the steaks and sprinkle both sides with salt and pepper to taste.

Grill steaks uncovered over high heat for 2 1/2 to 3 minutes per side. Move the steaks to medium heat, turning them again, and continue grilling for 2 1/2 to 3 minutes per side for medium-rare. The steaks should be turned a minimum of three times, more often if juice begins to form on the surface. Brush the steaks with the glaze in the last few minutes of cooking on each side. If grilling covered, sear both sides of the meat first on high heat uncovered for 2 1/2 to 3 minutes; finish cooking with the cover on over medium heat for 5 to 6 minutes, turning the steaks once midway.

Brush the steaks with glaze when you turn them and again when they come off the grill. Serve the steaks hot, garnished with herbs. — From: "Born to Grill: An American Celebration" by Cheryl Alters Jamison and Bill Jamison (Harvard Common Press, 1998)

THE TASTE OF summer

NATURE'S SWEET TOOTH: THINGS THAT TASTE GOOD & ARE GOOD FOR YOU

BEAUTIFUL BLACKBERRIES In the same family as raspberries and strawberries, blackberries come in over 1,000 varieties. Choose firm, glossy, loosely packed blackberries, and gently rinse just before serving. Dried blackberries were a common treat for American Indians, and are a good source of vitamin C and potassium.

COOL CANTALOUPE An excellent source of potassium, cantaloupes are delicious fresh. Try flavoring them with ginger, lemon or lime juice, or sherry. As an ancient Roman appetizer, melons would be cut in half and the cavity would be filled with port wine. Choose melons that sound hollow when tapped lightly, and that have a delicate aroma on the end opposite from the stalk.

BIG NEWS ABOUT A LITTLE FRUIT! What's the most nutrient-dense fruit? According to a study by Dr. Paul Lachance of Rutgers University, it's kiwifruit. The fuzzy fruit has more than 100% of the RDA of Vitamin C and the highest level of magnesium (a limited nutrient in the diet and important for cardiovascular health). Kiwis are also a good source of potassium, vitamin E and fiber - not to mention flavor. The vivid juicy jade-green flesh has a sweet tartness that's fabulous on its own or in salads.

SUBLIME STRAWBERRIES Today's strawberries are descendants of small, sweet, wild strawberries from Europe and North and South America. Today's larger, fleshier strawberries may have come from a French blend of two varieties of wild strawberries in the 18th century. A source of vitamin C, potassium, folic acid, vitamin B and magnesium, strawberries are best when stored loose and covered in a container in the refrigerator, where they will keep for two to three days. Gently rinse just before serving.

OH MY! ORANGES! Chock full of vitamin C, oranges are also a good source of potassium. Oranges are native to China, and were introduced to Spain, Egypt and Africa by the Arabs. Choose firm, heavy oranges with smooth skins, and store for a week at room temperature (or longer in the refrigerator).

BODACIOUS BLUEBERRIES Native to North America, the blueberry is chock full of anthocyanides (an antioxidant), which gives the blueberry its deep blue color. A study from Tufts University indicates that blueberries are one of the healthiest food choices in the fight against aging, because antioxidants can help neutralize the effects of free radicals. Choose firm, uniformly blue blueberries, and store unwashed in the refrigerator.

RAPTUROUS RASPBERRIES Delicious fresh, raspberries should be washed only when absolutely necessary. A good source of vitamin C and fiber, raspberries may help to relieve heartburn. Choose plump, loosely packed raspberries, and eat 'em fast! They will only keep for a day or two in the refrigerator.

THE PANACHE OF PAPAYA! Papayas are delicious when scooped out with a spoon and eaten like a melon - especially when you sprinkle the fruit with a little fresh lime or lemon juice first. You'll know your papaya is ripe when the skin turns yellow, though some prefer to eat the fruit when the skin is 3/4 yellow and the flesh is soft to the touch.

BANANARAMA Bananas are related to lilies and orchids, and are thought to have existed for close to a million years. An excellent source of vitamin B6 and potassium, bananas convert starch to sugars as they ripen. A great ingredient for increasing the texture and thickness in smoothies!

WHILE SOME PRODUCE IS BEST STORED UNWASHED, ALWAYS WASH PRODUCE BEFORE SERVING.

NEW CHAPTER BLOOD-TYPE SUPPLEMENTS

What does blood type have to do with cancer, heart disease, digestion or weight loss? Hundreds of research studies have demonstrated that genic blood type groupings have a greater tendency toward certain diseases, digest foods differently, need nutrients in different amounts and respond to exercise and therapy in different ways. Your blood type genetic evolution may unlock the door to the mysteries of health, disease, longevity and diet.

New Chapter Blood Type Formulas combine superfoods and nutrients with this new insight, creating healing supplements tailored to your genetic individuality. These blood type-specific, organic, whole food supplements grown and cultured by New Chapter take the hit-or-miss guessing out of supplement usage.
